Council Approves C. of C. Traffic Plan

The Statesboro Mayor and City Council approved a plan on Tuesday of this week to permit the Chamber of Commerce that is designed to improve traffic flow and safety in the business section of downtown Statesboro. According to the plan submitted and approved, the parking meters will be removed on North Main from the Statesboro Buggy and Wagon Co. North to the Olliff Ford Company and the curb-yellow lined to illeminate parking. This move will allow left turns into Simmons Shopping Center and at the same time allow north bound traffic to move on in the right-hand lane. In addition the curbing directly in front of the First Methodist Church on South Main Street will be yellow-lined to allow a southbound turn into the church yard causing traffic to stop and back up behind.

The additional recommendation to put a traffic light at the intersection at West Main and Walnut streets was tabled pending a study by traffic engineers.

A copy of the letter submitted and signed by Mr. Tal Calloway along with the various Merchants Division representatives follows:

Mr. W. A. Bowen Mayor
City of Statesboro
Statesboro, Georgia

Dear Mayor Bowen:

In the interest of helping the even flow of traffic in our City, the undersigned members of the Executive Committee of the Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce offer the following suggestions:

1 - That the four parking meters on the East side of North Main Street just north of Courtland Street be removed and that northbound through traffic be held to the inside lane of the highway, by means of arrows, from the traffic light at the intersection of North and South ad East and West Main Streets and that the parking alley behind the Statesboro Buggy and Wagon Shop. This will allow through traffic to flow and cars wishing to make a left hand turn into Simmons Shopping Center, when headed north along North Main Street. The owners of the afore mentioned Statesboro Buggy and Wagon Co have agreed to the advisability of this action.

2 - That a traffic light be installed at the intersection of West Main Street and Walnut Street to facilitate the flow of traffic along Walnut Street. Under present conditions, it is not only difficult but often dangerous to cross or even turn into West Main Street from Walnut Street.

A Fine Project

The 2nd Annual Tobacco Festival is now history and from every side comes commendations of a "job well done."

Any project in which the whole community participates is usually a guaranteed success. The business houses, the Chamber of Commerce, the several civic clubs of the community all working hand-in-hand is itself an example of community spirit and cooperation from which something is to be gained.

Our hat is off to those who put long hours of planning and hard work into the various phases of the program and to the public generally for supporting it so generously.

It's a good thing and should continue to grow in interest and support.

Some Chickens!

Nowadays we talk about billions almost as if they were chicken feed. The vast growth of tax collecting and tax spending is largely responsible for that airy attitude.

Next year's federal budget, for instance, will be around $92.5 billion. And one commentator has visualized its magnitude in this fashion:

Suppose you were able to authorize your wife to spend $1,000 per day, ad infinitum. It would take her 277,500 years to spend that $92.5 billion!

To come closer to earth, suppose you were a tightwad and put a meager $1 billion ceiling on her $1,000 a day spending. It would take 3,000 years for her to run through the bankroll.

If billions seem to be chicken feed, about all one can say is: Some chickens!

You Can't Stand Still

It's often been said that, when it comes to retailing, the customer is king.

That is more than just a felicitous phrase. There's a world of truth in it, in this, our highly competitive free market economy.

For instance, the nation's major variety chains are aiming at a $300 million sales increase during this year. These chains plan to open about 500 new stores by year-end, and five-year estimates are pegged at 2,200. According to one authority, variety stores will be the biggest general merchandise outlets in 90 per cent of all the new shopping centers that are springing up around the country.

The stores have elaborate plans to expand their business and, also, to make their operations more efficient. Various cost reduction practices are being aggressively followed — practices which make it possible to offer better value. At the same time, major effort will be given to improving the attractiveness of the stores in every particular.

The president of one of the biggest of these chains put it this way: "We are expanding to meet the customers' more sophisticated wants. The all-purpose one-stop variety family store is becoming a reality . . ."

What is true in the variety field is true, one way or another, in other retail fields. It's a business in which no one can afford to stand still. You go forward — or you go back.

Read John 7:30-37

In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. (John 7:37).

One day we went to see an ancient and historic castle. There were numerous interesting things to be seen, but to me the most interesting of them all was the well inside the castle. In a time of a siege a garrison could hold out for quite a long time, for they had an unfailing supply of water — a well within.

The Christian has a well within. Jesus said, "The water that I shall give him will be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

All those who trust Christ find that they have an unfailing source of strength.

PRAYER: O God, our Father, who art the source of all strength, help us this day to drink from the unfailing fountain of life. For all the tasks we have to do and the temptations we have to face, may we find within us the strength Christ promised to all who trust Him. In His blessed name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The Christian's security is in Christ's indwelling presence.

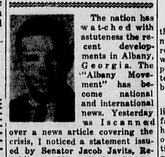
High Hopes

I've Been Thinking . . .

LEHMAN FRANKLIN, JR.



The nation has watched with astuteness the recent developments in Albany, Georgia. The "Albany Movement" has become national and international news. Yesterday was I scanned over a news article covering the crisis, I noticed a statement issued by Senator Jacob Javits, Republican, New York. Senator Javits wired one of the leaders of the Albany Movement the following telegram.

"Should my presence in Albany be useful at any time, be assured that I shall come without a moments' hesitation. I have again communicated with the Justice department today and will with my colleagues keep right on top of the situation on an hour by hour basis."

Upon reading this statement, my emotions varied from amusement to a slowing-burning anger. I couldn't help but think sarcastically to myself, "Surely the recipient of this wire was elated to know that Senator Javits was keeping on top of the situation, not day by day but hour by hour. And in addition he could not help but receive comfort from the realization that a New York Senator stood ready to come to Albany, Georgia "without a moments hesitation". In deliberation I thought "Wouldn't it be amusing to see Senator Javits demonstrating in the streets of Albany, Georgia?

However my attitude changed upon re-reading the wire. Senator Javits' statement is not a foolish one. It will furnish him with many votes in New York. What displeases me, however, is the realization that he is using an unpleasant incident in Georgia to enhance his own personal political fortunes. His statement will not produce any solid and concrete benefits to the demonstrators. Such statements tend to produce futher racial bitterness and to aggravate a dangerous situation.

Consequently, an appropriate reply to Senator Javits' "benevolent" offer for assistance should be along this line.

Dear Senator Javits, Albany's and Georgia's affairs are none of your d!!!!! business. Signed: The people of Georgia.

Open Letter To Parents Of Ga. Teenagers

From Ben T. Huiet,
Commissioner of Labor

As one who has been close to the labor force in Georgia for a number of years, I feel it is my responsibility to apprise you of what lies in store for the young people who do not prepare for a technical, highly competitive labor market.

There has been considerable publicity recently concerning the sad fact that Georgia rates second high in the nation in school dropouts. There are a number of questions that immediately come to mind: Why the excessive dropout rate? What kind of a future awaits these young people? What can we do about it?

There are, perhaps, many reasons for the high percentage of quits before finishing high school, but one of them, and it is the one with which I am concerned, is a lack of realization of the difficulty they are going to have in finding and holding jobs and supporting families. Georgia has a bright future. Industry is moving at a rapid rate. As we advance into the space age, the jobs being created by the new industry are more and more technical. At the same time, the industries, and farms, too, for that matter, that are already here are installing machines every day that replace many hands. The less educated and unskilled workers are the victims of a squeeze play as more jobs are done away with without a compensating demand for workers on new jobs.

The question as to what the future holds for these young people just about answers itself. Their jobs will be the least satisfying, the least paying, and the least secure. The workers and their families will not share in the bright future that is Georgia'—and this is tragic.

What can we do about it? A number of departments of government are doing all they can. I know of several civic and veterans organizations working on the problem, and the press is doing a fine job. One wonders what our relative positions would be without these efforts when we are already the second high in the country.

The purpose of this letter is to suggest to you that if you have a teenager who is toying with the idea of not returning to high high school or college this fall, move fast and stop it if you can. Perhaps he has a summer job and is enjoying more spending money than he ever had before, and this adds to the temptation to keep on working. Impress upon him the necessity for continuing his education.

Almost a year ago, I reminded the young people that the monetary advantage alone is sufficient reason to continue their education. In the past a typical high school graduate has been able to earn $50,000 more during his adult earning years than an eighth grade graduate, and $30,000 more than a high school dropout. College graduates have been able to earn $100,000 more than a high school graduate.

These figures are no longer adequate to illustrate the point for a high school diploma no longer opens the door to opportunity as it once did — it is a foundation, only. If the present trend continues, by 1970 there will be 60 per cent more jobs than now for professional and skilled technical people, 25 per cent more for semi-skilled workers, and no more than now for unskilled workers.

Thoughts Of An Oldster

Self Pity

Do you know any "Calamity Janes"? Aren't they tiresome folks? Always talking about themselves and their troubles! It is a kind of disease, and the proper name is selfiness!

The word endurance comes from the Latin word meaning to harden. So we must harden ourselves to take anything and everything that the Good Father sends upon us.

"Having done all, stand." Stand like a rock, immovable, endure. And wait on the Lord."

One of the most beautiful poems in all literature is found in the Bible, and is called "Song of Solomon."

It may be, as modern critics claim, merely a love song, composed by King Solomon, honoring one of his many wives. But I don't agree with that interpretation. To me it is a poem in honor to this beautiful world of ours; to Nature, God's flower garden.

Read the poem again, and enjoy its beauty.

"Awake, O north wind . . . Blow upon my garden,

Several flowers which flourish in the north will not grow in the south. These are mostly bulbs which must feel the bitter cold of winter and of the north wind. As examples: peonies, tulips, lilies of the valley, etc. They must bloom for one season, and fall to come up for the next.

That is like life! If the soft, cooling breezes from the south are all we ever feel, how can we harden? How can we learn endurance?

It is said that behind every great poem lies a great sorrow.

I have just read a life of the artist, Vincent Van Gogh. Back of all the great pictures lay heart breaks.

The cold north wind spares few of us. When the "days are dark and dreary" is is hard to believe that "behind the clouds is the sun still shining."

But endurance is the test of our character, whether we shall come out of life's crucible as refined gold, or worthless dross.

TOUR OF THE WEEK

NEW GOLD RUSH

Gold fever is catchin', but don't take anybody's word for it. Visit the Big Buck gold mine near Dahlonega and see for yourself.

One of the nation's earliest discoveries of gold was made in the Dahlonega region in 1828. For years, there was a United States mint here turning out millions of dollars worth of coins. It was abandoned in 1861.

Although the rich strikes in California in 1848-49 lured many hopefuls westward, north Georgia mining operations were continued until well into this century. There is still enough gold in the hills for everyone to strike it rich.

The Big Buck mine was originally discovered after the War Between the States and, like other mines in the area, was productive until the 1930's. Nearly is an old stamp mill or ore crusher, once used to extract the metal from ore.

Owner of the Big Buck, E. C. Boyd, is always on hand to show you the art of panning gold. Placer or loose gravel in the sluice box is continually washed by the cool waters of Ward's Creek. After four or five minutes of panning out the large rocks, mud and other debris only heavy, black sand is left. It is in this sand that you will find your treasure.

Mr. Boyd's policy is that no one goes home empty-handed. Besides the gold, there are some other extras you might find.

North Georgia has often been described as a rock hound's paradise. The area is rich in several minerals and semi-precious stones. Good specimens of quartz, black tourmaline and Rhodolite garnets are not too hard to come across. But regardless of your luck, a day spent prospecting can be a lot of fun.

The Big Buck mine is located east of Dahlonega and is open every day in the week. Take U. S. 19 or Georgia Highway 52 and look for the signs.

Save Those Shirt Boards

Many homemakers are in the habit of throwing away the shirtboards from their husbands freshly laundered shirts, without realizing that they can be very useful in the home. Here are some hints from the American Institute of Laundering, research and education center for the professional laundry industry, on how to make use of these versatile shirtboards.

Homemakers will find shirtboards convenient when preparing food for the family. Fruits or vegetables for salads can be cut or peeled without mess on these boards. Besides making a nice cutting surface, the board absorbs juices lost in cutting, and makes a sturdy wrapping when folded around the peeling for disposal.

Shirtboards are stiff enough to hold sweepings when no dust pan is available and, if you're building a home, save those shirtboards to pick up wood shavings, plaster, as well as dirt and mud tracked into the house.

Another variety of uses, the Institute says, occurs when there is painting to be done in the home. When shirtboards are used, the board can be held over the glass so it will receive the excess paint. Small cuts can be made in any or straight edges and as "splatter boards" under paint cans,

Shirtboards can be used under potted plants to protect the paint and or varnished window sill, on newly scrubbed or waxed floors to prevent dirt tracks or foot marks, as picture backing when mounting photographs or paintings, as a protection from paint on snow when held in place by the windshield wiper on the family car.

Shirtboards will come in handy on days when your 3 Blue is keeping the children quietly busy in the house. The children can use them for coloring books, tracing paper and stencils, or for building houses or boats.

County Agent

Practices Before Harvest Affect Cotton Quality

Pre-harvest practices have an important bearing on the quality of cotton they will harvest, County Agent Roy Powell reminded Bulloch County cotton producers today.

Quality of course has a lot to do with the price the grower will get for his cotton.

The county agent listed three pre-harvest steps that should be taken to help get high quality cotton:

1. Control late season grass and weeds, especially if she cotton crop is to be harvested mechanically. If the picker mixes grass and grass seed with seed cotton, the gin cannot remove all of it and the farmer will suffer a heavy loss in bale values.

2. Avoid too-early defoliation so that bolls will be able to mature their fibers fully.

3. Do everything possible to get a uniform stand. Uniformity is one of the keys to successful defoliation, to quality harvesting with mechanical pickers and to other practices that aid in producing quality cotton.

"Money is made by selling cotton, not growing it. Anything that affects the quality and selling price is extremely important," the county agent concluded.

Time To Plan For Defoliating Cotton Plants.

It is time to start thinking about defoliating cotton plants in preparation for harvesting.

Defoliation, which is simply removal of leaves of the plants by chemicals is very important for mechanical harvesters. Defoliation will operate on cotton that has not been defoliated, but lint grade is lowered and the cotton stays wet longer each morning. Lower lint grade, of course, means a low price for the cotton and wet cotton means the pickers will be idle when they need to be working.

Defoliation is beneficial in allowing sunlight and air to penetrate dense cotton, allowing faster drying and picking. Benefits derived from defoliation will vary with plant condition, method of harvest and weather conditions.

Defoliants should be applied to mature plants still in an active growing condition. About one-third of the bolls should be open with a minimum of immature bolls less than 30 days old.

The chemicals can be applied with equipment used in the insect control program, but larger volumes of dust or spray are needed to best results. Each leaf must receive an application of the defoliant. About 20 to 40 pounds of dust defoliant or 15 to 25 gallons of spray solution per acre should be used.

In droughty cotton or when there is no dew, it is best to use a spray defoliant. For normal cotton and when dew is present, dusts and sprays are about equally effective.

It normally takes about a week after the defoliant is applied for the leaves to fall. Thus, the chemical should be applied 7 to 10 days before machine picking. Staggered applications can be timed so that harvesting can begin on each field or section of field soon after the leaves fall.

Protecting Shelled Corn

The use of a premium grade of malathion as a protectant on shelled corn has given outstanding results in preventing insect infestations under reasonable conditions of temperature and humidity.

This protectant should be applied immediatay after harvest as grain goes into storage. The material should be applied in a continuous spray to a continuous stream of corn on elevator or auger.

One spray nozzle should be as base of the elevator as possible, and the nozzle should be protected from the wind.

Calibrate elevator or augar to determine number of bushels loaded per minute or hour. Then, calibrate sprayer and nozzle as so to deliver as near five gallons of mixed solution per 1,000 bushels.

For additional information on the mixed solution, contact my office.

Forage Testing Program

There is a new program for you if you are involved in the forage business on your farm.

The Cooperative Extension Service, University of Georgia College of Agriculture, and the Georgia State Department of Agriculture are involved in this service.

This program is designed to aid you in increasing productivity of your livestock and reducing your feed costs by producing good quality forage to the best advantage.

This forage test will gauge the value of your forage so that you may determine if you are feeding proper amounts of supplemental feeds. This test will also show an evaluation of the previous year's forage practices that should show what improvements are needed.

I will gladly give you all the help you need in testing your forage this year, so at me know when I may be of assistance.

More Money From Beef Cattle

Would you like to have more money from your beef herd?

Three ways to increase your income for your beef cattle are to wean heavier calves; wean better calves, and wean more calves.

How to do this involves keeping records on the cow herd to identify the less productive and poor milking brood cows. They should be culled and replaced with daughters of the higher producing cows to increase the weaning weights of calves.

Good records are worth their weight in gold to the good cattleman.

Farm Facts

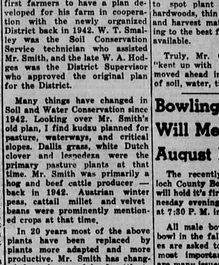
Of 12 to 13 inches of average annual precipitation in the 17 Western states, only about 30% contributes to the fresh water supply.

According to J. S. Robbins of the Agricultural Research Service, much of the moisture evaporates from soil, water, and plant surfaces. The rest infiltrates the soil and is transpired back into the atmosphere by vegetation.

An additional inch of water for plant use could increase Western wheat production up to five bushels per acre.

Scientists are studying plastic or mechanical barriers to control water or vapor flow to the soil surface and are testing chemical or physical treatments of soil to inhibit water loss.

At Tempe, Ariz. they're experimenting with sprays to sterilize the soil and kill weeds, stabilize it to prevent water infiltration, and make it water repellent to control erosion.



Ground covers of butyl rubber sheeting or asphalt-coated jute fabric are being used in Utah to move runoff from areas into reservoirs or special bags.

Selecting Plant Material

Many persons are disappointed each year in the plant material they have around their house. Today, I would like to give you a few points in selecting the proper plant material for your yards.

Make sure the plants fit the overall design that you have made for your place. Speaking of places, also make sure the plant is adapted to the particular area.

Don't think of the plant as it appears in is earliest stages, but think of it as a grown, mature plant. If you do this you will allow space for it to grow.

It is most important, too, that you purchase your new plant from a reputable dealer.

3 Billion Pine Trees Planted In The South

More than three billion pine tree seedling have been planted and distributd in the South by pulp and paper companies and independent pulpwood suppliers since just after World War II.

Henry J. Malsberger of Atlanta, general manager of the Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association, reported that these trees comprised seedlings planted during the seasons of 1947-48 through 1961-62.

The number of seedlings planted during the latest season, as revealed in an 11-state survey just completed by SPCA, totaled 280,811,200.

The figure for the 1961-62 season was slightly higher than the regional average of 280,201,400 seedings planted annually in the previous nine years.

While the planting of trees each year by the pulp and paper industry and by individual landowners is an important part of the South's continuing reforestation program, Mr. Malsberger stressed that by far the greatest number of new trees comes from natural re-seeding.

As a result of this natural regrowth, aided by wise forest management and supplement by the annual plantings of trees by man, woodlands today are growing faster than they are being used, he added.

Commenting further on the seedlings planted by the industry in the 1961-62 season, the SPCA general manager observed that although the regional average was above the previous nine-year average, there was considerable variation among individual states.

The comparative figures for each state are as follows:

STATE	1961-62 PLANTINGS	9 YEAR AVERAGE

Ga. Receives Free Use Of Facilities

Georgia has obtained free use of $1,260,863 forestry facilities, President John F. Kennedy, on June 25, signed an Act providing for the various States to continue using Soil Bank forestry facilities without cost to the States. The Act was passed by the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives.

Under the Act, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to permit continued use of equipment and improvements, acquired or constructed under the Soil Bank program, for forestry in other related Federal and State forestry programs without payment from the States. The Soil Bank Program began in May, 1956 and ended in Oct., 1960.

Soil Bank funds, $1,260,863, made available to the Georgia Forestry Commission, through the U. S. Forest Service, to construct the following facilities: Morgan Memorial Nursery, Byron; Page Memorial Nursery, State Prison land, Toomba Co.; Walker Memorial Nursery, State Prison land, Tattnal Co.; and to expand facilities at Hertz Nursery, Albany. In addition, a seed extractory, cold storage building, and seed testing laboratory (now Eastern Tree Seed Testing Laboratory) were constructed at the Forestry Center, Macon.

The State's contribution in this building program was $55,984 of which $35,000 was for land purchase. The Macon Area Development Commission and Houston County contributed $12,500 and $2,500 respectively towards land purchase for the Morgan Nursery.

Georgia farmers placed, under contract with the Farm Reserve Program, 32 percent of all forest acreage planted to trees under the Soil Bank Program in the United States, Some 692,940 acres were placed under lease, requiring 678,526,000 tree seedlings that were grown by the Forestry Commission from 1956-1960.

Movement for passage of this legislation, that will permit states to continue using these facilities without cost, was begun by the Association of State Foresters in their meeting at Macon last year. In view of the large Soil Bank program conducted in Georgia, Georgia received the largest amount of federal assistance than any state in promoting the forest trees needed by landowners.

Supporting the passage of this Act were Georgia's Senators Richard B. Russell and Herman E. Talmadge. Also supporting the measure were the following Congressmen: G. Elliott Hagan, Sylvania; J. L. Pilcher, Meigs; E. L. Forester, Leesburg; John J. Flynt, Griffin and James C. Davis, Decatur.

Others are Carl Vinson, Milledgeville; John W. Davis, Sumnerville; Congresswoman Iris F. Blitch, Homerville; Phil M. Landrum, Jasper and Robert G. Stephens, Jr., Athens.

Forestry Commission Director Ray Shirley stated that he was pleased with the Act's passage. He added that it enables the Commission to meet the needs of future forest farm programs that may be enacted into law.

FAY FOY SMITH RECEIVES HONORS

Fay Foy Smith received top honors recently at the Lewis Arnold Edwards Camp at Bogart. Fay Foy was selected as the senior "Best Camper." She also was runner up in the archery tourney. Fay Foy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Smith, was presented her awards at a banquet held at the close of the third session.

The trouble with the cronic borrower is that he always keeps everything by his word.

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION NEWS

Cluise Smith, a cooperator of long standing with the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, has recently had his farms replanned. Mr. Smith was one of the first farmers to come to this area developed for his farm in cooperation with the newly organized District back in 1942. W. T. Smalley was the Soil Conservation Service technician who assisted Mr. Smith, and the late W. A. Hodges was the District Supervisor who approved the original plan for the District.

Many things have changed in Soil and Water Conservation since 1942. Looking over Mr. Smith's old plan, I find acres planned for pasture, waterway, and critical slopes. Dallis grass, white Dutch clover and lespedeza were the primary pasture plants at that time. Mr. Smith was primarily a hog and beef cattle producer — back in 1942. Austrian winter peas, cattail millet and velvet beans were prominently mentioned crops at that time.

In 20 years most of the above plants have been replaced by plants more adapted and more productive. Mr. Smith has changed from hogs and beef cattle to dairy farming. Pensacola bahia and coastal bermuda have replaced kudzu and dalls grass. Hybrid millet and soybeans have replaced cattail millet and velvet beans. Back in 1942 farmers would have brought out the old double barrel shotgun to anybody recommending planting bermuda grass on their farm. Now, coastal bermuda is not only accepted as a pasture grass, but as a base for crop rotations.

Another big change has come in care and management of our woodland since 1942. On Mr. Smith's old plan all that was mentioned was to remove worked out turpentine trees and other undesirable trees as needed for fuel, etc. Now, Mr. Smith is planning to not plant trees, kill scrub hardwoods, thin overdense stands, and harvest mature trees according to the best forestry knowledge available.

Truly, Mr. Cluise Smith has "kent up with the times," and moved ahead in his conservation of soil, water, timber and wildlife.

FRAUD UNDRESSED

The logic of mental conduct does not always withstand searching investigation. When we refer to people as exercising their right to think for themselves, we should go further and ascertain whether their thoughts are based on overt acts, personal experiences or the utterances of others whose statements are tinted by prejudices, greed, avarice or passion. To think intelligently is to do one thing and not a half dozen improvident things. Scatter brained thinking is a dangerous thing.

We are so often persuaded to give approval to the clown like cleverness of an imbecile whose ravings are perile, we judge the performance not the degree of intelligence the back of it. Just because the words of a critic are caustic does not mean they are right or blind with truth. If we would pry into the secrets of the person's habits, desires, weaknesses, more often than not we would deep rather than embrace the theories. It is a pure myth to go crazy so-called "liberal interpretation" of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, it amounts to abandonment of thoughts, beliefs and teachings of the creators of the Constitution, which in effect became a contract between the Federal Government and the states and basic rights were seventeen to the social fabric of society. The States in turn by legislation guaranteed certain rights to the people which were good moral promises, good law until 1954.

The propaganda about "equality, human rights, equal justice" before the law are fraudulent, it is intermarriage they want. Dilute an entire nation to answer the demands of a minority whose voice count in a few states.

Our knowledge of other people's minds is limited to observation, overt acts and experience. We are so easily persuaded by free-agenda rather than facts the hypocritical protestations, the Judas Kiss of religious charity, we only deserve no sympathy. The instant facts do not vary from those of a hundred years ago. Two of the desires of the jungle inhabitants. The baboon with his fiendish appearance crave the white flesh of maidens as do those who protest before the courts. Adam Clayton Powell, Father Divine, Joe Lewis, Sammy Davis — so-called leaders — have proven the point, while vives when all about them languish the educated of their own race whose loyalty to them would be happily given as the self-respect of their paramours has been wasted.

The nature of all races is measured by the degrees of complexity their nature provides. The difference between human behavior is metered by their weaknesses and the causation is provided by the instincts that float in their bloodstreams and feed the brain so that it may lay schemes to answer the body's demands. Minds and bodies are different sorts of things, yet, life long companions. Many drifting through life the body, while provision comes from the brain. Mental processes are in antitesis to the demands of a rigidly governed body in compliance with the laws of nature, while restraint, morals and character are the children of the brain. The strength of the two prevails. The body belongs to the physical world, of matter, flesh but not of conscious appreciation of right and wrong. It presents a notorious difficulty that has been only partially solved in two thousand years by education, training and parental restraint. Yet, we are invited, threatened, cajoled, persuaded to accept the companionships, the equality status, the embraces of a people who have been in seventy-five years two scholars, Booker T. Washington and Dr. Carver of Tuskegee. The architects of fraud nor the philosophers of hate can neither erect a memorial to the race nor create friends of such a vacuum. They appear as disciples of nudist camps when compared to the raiment of dress of civilization.

The protesters have become unwinding plants where ribbon colored theories are constantly unwinding. Their purpose of attracting votes, rather than the sinewy arms of justice and by justice, they would rape the Temple of freedom of press permit a school of bubble gum editors to lamblast a proud race with theories lacking

"Roy Harris is now supporting Marvin Griffin — read what he said in 1954."

What is this strange love between these merchants of hate??????

Excerpts from the "The Augusta Courier" August 9, 1954 Issue of

STRICTLY PERSONAL

By ROY V. HARRIS

I still say you can't trust Marvin Griffin.

You can't trust him intellectually and you can't trust him politically.

Let's take his plan for keeping segregation in the public school system as an example of his intelligence. And how does he propose to keep segregation? . . . Well, it's the silliest proposition that any supposedly intelligent human being ever conceived . . .

2 You can't trust Marvin politically.

It may shock many of his record shows that he has jumped about worse than a flea hopping around and he has changed colors more than any lizard ever has . . .

Mark my word. when they undertake to get out from under the present highway department. It is not roads they are after. It is money they are after for the contractors. the materialmen. for the machinery dealers and the politicians . . . I say to you that any man who comes with this proposal can't be trusted.

Let's not make the same mistake twice

Sanders Proposes Plan To Attract Retired People

Senator Carl Sanders has proposed a new program for Georgia to attract and retain retired persons.

"We can build 'sunshine cities' for retired citizens all over Georgia," he said, "and we will not only keep our native retired persons, but also attract out-of-state retired persons."

He pointed out that definite attractions should be offered in order to develop the "sunshine cities," one of these being an additional homestead exemption," for persons in retirement.

"This could amount to $1,000 over the regular $2,000 homestead exemption," he added.

The candidate pointed out that the all-out development of such cities would create jobs and home-building industry and benefit many counties in Georgia and semi-skilled building trades.

"It would also be a big boost to our economy, for retired people in many of our towns," he said.

Sanders explained that we have ideal conditions for retirement — a mild climate, plenty of moderately-priced land and concerned recreational facilities.

"In fact, we have more advantages for the retired persons than Florida does," he declared.
