I. Policy

First-year students (those who have earned fewer than 30 credit hours) receive early alerts in each of their courses. Faculty may indicate that students are doing satisfactory work or unsatisfactory work because of grades, missing/missed assessments, engaged participation, attendance (or any combination of these), or insufficient data. Students are able to view their early alerts in their WINGS student account as soon as faculty enter them. (To view early alerts, select "Student Records" and click "Early Alert.")

Approved by the Faculty Senate, September 15, 2014.
