Arts Envoy Program Offers Opportunities for the Humanities

“The Arts Envoy Program annually enables approximately 200 American artists and cultural experts (known as Arts Envoys) to travel abroad for individual programs or as part of an ensemble or group to engage and consult with key foreign audiences through performances, workshops, meetings, seminars, and appearances in foreign media. By addressing topics identified and developed by U.S. Missions (generally U.S. Embassies and Consulates) worldwide in cooperation with ECA, the program promotes an understanding of U.S. policies and institutions, and the political, economic, social, and cultural context from which they arise. Arts Envoy individuals and groups are programmed in one or more countries with a variety of audiences from a wide range of disciplines in the cultural arena, including in the performing and visual arts, and in arts management, as well as with museum professionals and other cultural experts. Arts Envoy programs range from five days to six weeks in length.”

Applications for the next funding window will be due at the end of May, 2017. The new announcement will be posted in April of 2017. Grants.gov New Release Forecasts the Future of Funding Grants.gov will make significant changes with release 15.2 on June 18-20, 2016. The biggest change will be the addition of grant forecasting to allow researchers to see the likely funding opportunities coming from grantors.

The new forecasting tool should benefit both grantors and applicants. By posting a forecast on Grants.gov, grantors can increase the views for each opportunity and provide more time for applicants to prepare.

Forecasts help applicants find out about opportunities sooner, providing more time for planning. This additional time to prepare the application and coordinate key partnerships may result in higher-quality applications. For more information, check out the releases here.
