Georgia Southern Opera presents a Trick and a Treat

OCTOBER 12, 2015

The Georgia Southern Opera presents "Opera Breve VII: Trick AND Treat!" This year's double bill is the Opera's seventh annual installment of the popular "Opera Breve" series and is comprised of two American one-act operas, Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Medium" and William Bolcom's "Lucrezia." Performances will take place on Friday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Oct. 18, at 3 p.m., in the Emma Kelly Theatre at the Averitt Center for the Arts, 33 E. Main Street. Admission to the event is free.

Just in time for the Halloween season, "The Medium" is guaranteed to give you chills. Madame Flora, a charlatan fortune-teller, experiences something unexplainable and horrifying during a séance. Her subsequent descent into delirium and madness ends in unspeakable tragedy.

Written in 2008, "Lucrezia" is a relatively new and unknown work and a rare treat for opera audiences. It was favorably reviewed in The New York Times and was mentioned for its "eclectic score featuring tango, bullfighting music, a Straussian waltz and jazz."

"'The Medium' has become a popular classic in American opera, and 'Lucrezia' is guaranteed to do the same. I have never laughed so hard as I did when I listened to 'Lucrezia' for the first time," said director Arikka Gregory, D.M.A., assistant professor of voice. Gregory promises a night you won't forget.

With free performances both the day before and the day after the homecoming football game on Saturday, Oct. 17, the opera is a great opportunity for students, parents, and alumni to discover some of the University's great cultural events.

Georgia Southern University Business Innovation Group receives Excellence in Economic Development Awards

OCTOBER 12, 2015

Georgia Southern University Business Innovation Group (BIG) has received a Gold Excellence in Economic Development Award from the International Economic Development Council (IEDC) for its 2015 project in entrepreneurship for communities with populations of 25,000 – 200,000.

The honor was presented at an awards ceremony on Monday, Oct. 5, during the 2015 IEDC Annual Conference in Anchorage, Alaska.

Through the launch of Georgia's Enterprise Network for Innovation and Entrepreneurship

(GENIE), a platform for a virtual incubator program, BIG received nearly $300,000 in a grant awarded by the U.S. Community Adjustment and Investment Program (CAIP). GENIE offers services to entrepreneurs located in five eligible counties (Jeff Davis, Jefferson, Lincoln, Telfair and Wilkes) at no cost to the individual, and the CAIP grant allowed the University to offer the services of the virtual incubator to any entrepreneur located in those five counties free of charge. Since its inception in May 2012, GENIE advisors have connected with more than 40 businesses and are currently providing services to 23 businesses. In addition, more than 85 University students have assisted incubator clients by administering customer satisfaction surveys, developing employee handbooks, outlining a marketing assistance plan and conducting basic market research. This hard work allowed BIG to win the highest award in the entrepreneurship category.

“Though we are very humbled and honored to receive such a prestigious award, this recognition simply highlights the strides we are making to help advance entrepreneurship throughout our great state,” said Dominique Halaby, D.P.A., director of BIG.

In addition to receiving the Gold Award for Entrepreneurship, the Georgia Southern University City Campus was recognized with a Bronze Excellence in Economic Development Award by the IEDC for its 2015 project in real estate redevelopment and reuse for communities with populations of 25,000 – 200,000, also at the Anchorage conference. Having secured more than $3 million in public and private support and an additional $1.1 million grant from the Economic Development Administration, the City of Statesboro, Downtown Statesboro Development Authority and the University are renovating an additional 10,000-square-foot space for a Fabrication Laboratory (FabLab) and Innovation Incubator. Once completed, there will be office space for 20 new businesses, creation space for eight artists, and a cutting-edge maker space.

“The City Campus is quickly becoming a model in redevelopment,” said Halaby. “Our partnerships with the City of Statesboro, Downtown Statesboro Development Authority, Bulloch County Development Authority, and others, are truly what make this initiative work.”

“From localized community projects to large scale endeavors, economic development efforts have played a vital role in the global economy,” said JoAnn Crary, CEcD, chair of the International Economic Development Council and president of Saginaw Future Inc. “As we address new and longstanding challenges, these efforts continue to take on even greater importance. The award serves as a salute to pace-setting organizations like the Georgia Southern University Business Innovation Group for leading the charge.”

Recipients of IEDC’s Excellence in Economic Development Awards demonstrate to an experienced panel of judges that they are at the forefront of the economic development profession. They are recognized as the world’s best economic development programs and partnerships, marketing materials and the year’s most influential leaders. These awards honor organizations and individuals for their efforts in creating positive change in urban, suburban and rural communities.
