February is Black History Month. In this month's newsletter we'll be discussing some famous Black Historians that should be talked about more often. We'll also be taking a moment to listen to the Black National Anthem. Let's explore trainings available to students at GSU. Lastly, check out some good reads form our OIE library here on the Statesboro campus.

Let's hop into this months news!
BLACK NATIONAL ANTHEM

(Click the Link to Listen)
When it comes to Black History, we all know about Martin Luther King Jr., Rosa Parks, Malcolm X, and other famous historians who are always mentioned. Let's explore some Black Historians that should be known, who don't often get mentioned during Black History Month, like Alice Coachman, Bessie Coleman, Yosef Ben-Jochannan, Pauline A. Young, Carter G. Woodson, Letitia Woods Brown, and Bayard Rustin.

Yosef Ben-Jochannan
1918-2015
Yosef Ben-Jochannan was an American writer and historian. He is known for publishing 49 books, which many of them are informing and/or exposing the truths about African history.

Pauline A. Young
1900-1991
Pauline A. Young was a civil rights leader, educator, member of Delta Sigma Theta, and librarian. However, she is best remembered for her 30-year career at Howard High School, where she inspired generations of students and helped preserve the history of African Americans.

Carter G. Woodson
1875-1950
Carter G. Woodson was an American historian, journalist, author, and the founder of the Association for the Study of African American Life and History. He believed that textbooks and the teacher using the textbooks downplayed African American history. His dedication to expressing the importance of African American history came to life in 1926. He launched Negro History Week in the second week of February to coincide with the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass. Negro History Week was later expanded into Black History Month.

Letitia Woods Brown
1912-1987
Letitia Woods Brown was born in 1915 in Tuskegee, Alabama. Brown was the first African American woman to earn a PhD in History from Harvard University. She worked as a researcher and historian for over forty years. She worked at several different institutions including Tuskegee Institute and LeMoyne-Owen College to name a few.

Bayard Rustin
1912-1987
Rustin was best known for being a key adviser to Reverend Martin Luther King Jr. He was also an LGBTQ and civil rights activist. Gov. Gavin Newsom pardoned Rustin for an arrest in 1953 when he was found having sex with two men. Newman noted how LGBTQ people are unjustly punished for being who they are. This helped bring light to the injustice of LGBTQ.
