Bringman Selected as Chancellor's Learning Scholar

February 8, 2019

Rehabilitation Sciences Program Coordinator and Assistant Professor David Bringman, PT, DPT, was one of three faculty selected from Georgia Southern University to participate in the inaugural cohort of the Chancellor's Learning Scholars program initiated by the University System of Georgia (USG).

As a Chancellor's Learning Scholar (CLS), Bringman will lead a Faculty Learning Community (FLC) this spring where ideas regarding teaching and learning will be shared. The two-year program aims to provide additional faculty development opportunities across the state.

In addition to participating in the program, Bringman will receive a USG Certificate of Teaching Excellence and other recognition. To be considered for the program, faculty had to submit an application of interest and demonstrate an expertise and passion for working with colleagues to enrich courses and deepen student learning.
