History of the University

Armstrong Atlantic State University, part of the University System of Georgia, was founded in 1935 as Armstrong Junior College to enhance higher educational opportunities in the community. The college was established by the mayor and alderman of the City of Savannah and was housed in the Italian Renaissance Armstrong House, a gift to the city from the family of George F. Armstrong. Over the years the college occupied six additional buildings in the Forsyth Park and Monterey Square areas.

In 1959, as Armstrong College of Savannah, it became a two-year unit of the University System of Georgia. The Board of Regents conferred four-year status on Armstrong State College in 1964. Two years later the college moved to its present 250-acre site, a gift from the Mills B. Lane Foundation and Donald Livingston. Additional buildings joined the six original structures as Armstrong added professional and graduate programs and quadrupled in size. On July 10, 1996, the institution gained university status and a new name: Armstrong Atlantic State University.

Today, Armstrong Atlantic offers more than 100 academic programs and majors in the College of Education, College of Health Professions, College of Liberal Arts, College of Science and Technology, and Graduate Studies. The academic community includes more than 7,500 students from nearly every state and more than 75 countries, and more than 580 faculty and staff members. The university granted its first Doctor of Physical Therapy degree in May 2010. Armstrong Atlantic State University has been accredited as a senior institution by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools since January 1, 1968, and was last reaccredited in December 2002.

Armstrong began celebration of its 75th year in January 2010. The opening of two new facilities, Windward Commons new freshman housing facility and the new Student Union, transformed the campus into a residential hub of student activity. The Student Union was the first green building on campus, housing a 200-seat auditorium, a 300-seat food court style dining room, the bookstore, a convenience store and lounge areas and porches which offer an expansive view of campus. Windward Commons houses 567 freshmen, bringing the number of students who reside on campus to nearly 1400.

The University System of Georgia

The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia was created in the reorganization of the state government in 1931. The act establishing the Board of Regents became effective January 1, 1932. The board is a public corporation and a constitutional body. It governs, controls, and manages all of the state's thirty-four public institutions of higher education. There are twenty-one universities and thirteen two-year colleges located throughout the state. The board receives the appropriation from the state in a lump sum, based upon an enrollment-driven formula for the University System of Georgia, and determines institutional allocations.

The eighteen members of the Board of Regents are appointed by the governor on a rotating basis to serve a seven-year term. All officers of the board are elected for one-year terms beginning on July 1, except for the chancellor who serves at the pleasure of the board. The chair of the board has the authority to appoint committee chairs and members.

It was her experiences in marketing research that led her back to higher education. In 1987, she chose to continue her education on a university campus, this time as a teaching instructor at her alma mater, Georgia State University. Three years later, she earned her academic credentials, a master's and a Ph.D. in management, once again from Georgia State.

She began her career at Georgia Southern as an assistant professor of management in 1990. Over the following years she would serve as acting chair of the department of management, associate dean of the College of Business Administration, vice president for student affairs, acting provost and vice president for academic affairs and lastly provost, a position she held since 2005.

A long-time resident of Savannah—she commuted to Georgia Southern all those years—Bleicken knows and cares deeply about Savannah and the Coastal Georgia region. She has served on the Ossabaw Island Foundation Board since 2007 and is a member of the Savannah Rotary Club.

As the new leader of AASU, Bleicken has strong ideas that will guide the future of university. At the top of her agenda are to continue AASU's tradition of anticipating and meeting the region's workforce needs and elevating the level of student success. Over the coming years, she sees AASU enhancing partnerships with area businesses, education and healthcare providers to build great opportunities for the citizens of the region.

* "Traditional" refers to freshmen under the age of 24. Definitions vary when distinguishing between "traditional" and "non-traditional" college students. Most studies defining the non-traditional student use several characteristics such as delayed enrollment, part-time enrollment status, financial independence, working full-time, etc. For the purpose of this analysis, we define non-traditional student only as one who is 24 years or older, the typical age of demarcation used to establish financial independence.

Lane Library

Lane Library, built in 1966 and extensively expanded in 1975, supports the academic programs of Armstrong Atlantic State University. The staff combines the traditional repository responsibilities of academic libraries with newer concepts of librarianship, including course-integrated bibliographic instruction, computer-assisted information retrieval, and media production/circulation.

The library collection consists of more than 900,000 total items, including 232,588 book volumes, close to 700,000 microforms, records, slides, motion picture kits, and videotapes, and 990 periodical subscriptions. The Florence Powell Minis Collection contains university archives, material of local color, and a special collection of first editions by Conrad Aiken and other Savannah authors. An automated interlibrary loan service permits access to the resources of other libraries throughout the United States.

Lane Library utilizes state-of-the-art technology to improve its services and operations. Cataloging is enhanced through membership in a national bibliographic utility. The reference services are reinforced with computerized bibliographic searching, and media services encompasses distribution and presentation of materials in a variety of formats.
