Scholarly Communications Work Team Charge
Charge Approved: February 6, 2017

Charge: The Scholarly Communications Work Team provides a venue for library personnel to discuss, develop recommendations for, and support the library's scholarly communications-related activities. These activities include the institutional repository, scholarly profile services, usage data services, data management services, copyright and re-use licensing services, and open access policies and procedures. The team supports development and promotion of these services pursuant to advancing the library's scholarly communications role at Georgia Southern.

Membership: Attendance is open to all Henderson Library personnel with an interest in scholarly communications.

Process Notes: Team coordinator(s) will be selected by the team members for a specified period of time; terms may be renewed.

Meeting agendas will be prepared in advance of each team meeting and distributed via Zach-1. Meeting essence notes, consisting of a brief summary of topics addressed, will be distributed via Zach-1 and archived in Digital Commons. Team recommendations must be ratified by the library faculty. Recommendations will be distributed to the faculty no less than three days in advance of the faculty meeting where they are to be considered.
