ABOUT THE COLLECTION

Biographical History: The son of Osborne Callaway Banks and Laura Smith, Smith Callaway Banks was related to thousands of citizens in Bulloch and surrounding counties. As a businessman, he was president of City Dairy, owner of Smith Banks Antiques and a board member of Statesboro CATV, Inc. Banks was both a founder and a leader of the Bulloch County Historical Society. He was also an avid supporter of the Statesboro Regional Library and the area's leading historian and genealogist. He was instrumental in forming the library's Brannen genealogy room, and also served as chairman of the library's board for nearly 20 years. Banks was an author, having written, "A Roster of Confederate Soldiers of Bulloch County, Georgia" and "A Bulloch Sampler." With another Bulloch County historian, Del Presley, he has co-wrote two pictorial histories, "Images of America- Bulloch County" and "Images of America-Statesboro."

Scope and Content: This collection consists of the personal and business papers of Smith Callaway Banks. Materials span 1933-1983 and include financial documents, government information, newspapers, photographs, receipts, and informational booklets on a variety of subjects.

System of Arrangement: The first box contains various information pertaining to Archibald Bulloch, City Dairy Company, Bulloch County Chamber of Commerce, George Walton, programs, financial information, newsletters, news clippings, booklets, government information, and Primitive Bethlehem church papers. The second box contains financial information. The third box contains religious journals and booklets. The fourth box contains original letters of Asbury Wesley Hodges, Sallie Smith Papers, Smith Callaway Banks papers, photos, journals, patriotic organizations documents and confederacy history. Box five contains various folders with postcards. Box six contains newspapers and miscellaneous items.
