Don’t Let Your Data Collect Dust!

Digital Commons@Georgia Southern archives and publishes a wide array of research datasets, from tabular data to images and video. In addition to meeting funder and publisher requirements, sharing your research data increases the visibility of your research and opportunities for collaboration. For more information, see here.

Faculty, if you have research data that is collecting dust or needs to be shared, contact the Digital Commons Team at (912) 478-4056 or digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu for an initial consultation.

Library Resources

JSTOR provides several tools, including Data for Research, Text Analyzer, and the Understanding Series, that leverage data and data connections to help researchers discover and analyze the scholarly literature in the JSTOR digital library. Register for the April 16th webinar to learn more about JSTOR’s data-driven tools for research here.
