Online Resources and Services
Monday, November 28, 2016 at 3:00PM
Library Conference Room

Attendees:
Lori, Ruth, Jessica G, Jessica M, Fred, Chelsea, Debra, Greg, Sue, Lisa, and Clement

1. Recent questions/comments/problems from faculty & students
   a. Rebecca asked about designing a way to make Georgia resources more easily findable. Jeff offered 3 possible solutions: Create a Research Guide on Georgia resources, develop an FAQ about it, and add a heading of “Georgia Resources” in the A-Z Database List. The A-Z Database List would be the quickest solution.
   b. Ruth demonstrated an instance of when a Discover search identified magazine article as a “scholarly/peer-reviewed” article. A student in her class had used the limiter in Discover to help identify scholarly, peer-review publications and couldn’t understand how why this article was tagged as such. Jeff stated that Ebsco indexed it scholarly, and he could ask Ebsco to fix it. We all agreed that users will have to look at the article content to make an accurate evaluation of it, and not rely solely on the limiters offered by Discover. It was helpful for us to see this demo and to be aware of this occurrence.

2. Journals switching from print to online in 2017 (List appears at the end of minutes)
   Jessica M distributed a list of new Flipster titles for 2017, plus a list on print titles converting to online via the vendor in 2017. By the end of next year, approximately one third of our current print periodical subscriptions will be online. American Society of Civil Engineers titles are also converting to online.

3. Announcement of upcoming changes to LibGuides (CMS)
   Jeff and Ruth brought us up to date on the LibGuide Content Management System (CMS) platform. They are both learning to use it at this time. CMS allows for multiple LibGuide platforms, and offers much style and customization. If anyone has a special project that requires its own platform, CMS could be helpful. Currently, Billy Glasco is using LibGuide CMS for Special Collections. Others are using it for the Digital Humanities project.

4. ALMA update
Debra stated that the data validation is completed. No major problems were found. Next, CRS will begin working in the work flow scenarios (November 21-Jan 20) and will be working in both platforms during this time. On November 30, Primo will go live.

5. Open Wiley discussion
The topic has been moved to the Scholarly Communications Work Team for a future date.

6. Announcements

Jeff provided these announcements earlier in the meeting:

- There will be a big roll out of resources on December 14th.
- Sage is getting a new platform. Sage will be temporarily open access to avoid authentication issues.
- Artemis Literary Resources is being changed to Gale Literary Resources: No date of the switch.

Meeting was adjourned at 3:55pm
