Eastside Cemetery was established on this site in 1868 in response to citizens' requests for a central location for the burial of the early city's residents. Known as burying grounds, these fields of early Bulloch County family farm. Vegetable gardens, roses, and trees were planted to mark these sacred sites. With the rapid growth of the city of Statesboro in the 1880's, citizens sought to establish a city cemetery.

Although the city had two prominent cemeteries, the John W. Burying Ground on South Main St. and the Rebecca Burying Ground on North Main St., a group of citizens met on May 12, 1890, to take steps in locating a place for the burial of the dead. They selected this site which today is the city-owned Eastside Cemetery.

The first burial of Statesboro to be buried in the new cemetery was Mr. Willie McElhonna who was born on April 12, 1855, and died on March 3, 1880. Other early burials included a number of families moved from the West and Novi burying grounds on July 26, 1894. The city of Statesboro assumed responsibility of beautification of the cemetery.

FOREWORD

Graves in the "Old Section" of Eastside Cemetery, Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia are recorded here. This survey of tombstones is a project of the Archibald Bulloch Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and done in the spring of 1975. Burials after that date are usually not shown.

The cemetery is divided into five SECTIONS, each separated by a road, running north and south, and streets running east and west between each BLOCK of graves. The "old section" consists of the first three sections on the map shown in the front of this book.

There are no street or road signs in the cemetery, but these have been given names in this book for the convenience of anyone searching for a grave. For obvious reasons, names of families have been carefully avoided in naming streets and roads. The following method was used (see map in front).

ROADS: Run north and south and are named alphabetically after trees.

STREETS: Run east and west, and are named alphabetically after flowers.

For purposes of the survey, numbers begin the extreme left corner of the cemetery, nearest to Highway #80.

In many instances, head stones include the name of the spouse who is still living. These have been assigned a number because there is a stone showing the name and birthdate of the spouse.

Vacant lots have not been assigned a number unless a family name is shown in the cemetery. Unmarked graves are usually numbered in the hopes they can be identified. Infants without a given name have not been included in the index, although they are shown in the body of the book.

This ends the three sections considered the "old cemetery".

Newer sections contain graves of persons whose birth dates are over 100 years ago. These sections will be done at a later date.

Alvaretta K. Register
An effort has been made to identify persons buried in the "Old Section" of Eastside Cemetery, usually simply by showing their parents. In a few instances more is shown when already known by the compiler, or could be identified through census records, marriage records, or data in the local library. However, there was not sufficient time to develop the genealogy more thoroughly. An article appeared in the Statesboro Herald on December 10, 1976 titled EASTSIDE CEMETERY GRAVES SURVEYED, and the public was requested to furnish data about persons known to be buried in this section, therefore everyone has had an opportunity to do so.
