With today’s digital technology, you get immediate access to a picture as soon as you shoot it. There’s no need to worry about wasting your film on a bad shot; if you don’t like it, you can simply delete it. In this introductory hands-on class, you will learn about your camera’s basic settings and how using the manual settings can expand your creative horizons. Emphasis will be on taking lots of photos, getting out of “program” mode and looking at ways to manage the photos you want to print or share online. Students will be walking around and taking pictures at the Coastal Georgia Center, as well as the Visitors Center. An optional field trip may be planned. Wear comfortable walking shoes. Please plan to bring your DSLR camera to the class.
