Merlin, Grundstad-Hall co-chair Women in the Arts symposium on the Armstrong Campus

February 28, 2018

Music professor Emily Grundstad-Hall and Art Lecturer Mia Merlin are co-chairing the Women in the Arts symposium this year which will take place on Thursday, March 22 in the Student Center on the Armstrong Campus. The theme this year is responses to the current sociopolitical moment as it relates specifically to women. It will feature presentations by students of their own work in various mediums, as well as a faculty panel discussion on the same topic. This will be a dynamic, interactive and inspiring event!

Conn to teach workshop at Jepson Center for the Arts

February 28, 2018

Bridget Conn will be teaching a workshop at the Jepson Center for the Arts on Saturday and Sunday, March 10 and 11. Entitled "Exploring Cyanotype," participants will learn how this 19th-century blue-toned photographic process can create photograms and photographs shot with a digital camera. To learn more and register, visit <https://www.telfair.org/learn/classes/adult/>

Conn has been featured among 15 contemporary photographic artists in "Future Past: Experiments in Photography" at Tracey Morgan Gallery in Asheville, NC. The exhibition runs through March 31. More details may be found at <http://www.traceymorgangallery.com/exhibitions/future-past>.

Conn will serve a guest juror for "Alternative to What? Broadening the Definition of Photography," an exhibition of experimental photography at Sulfur Studios in Savannah in March. Submissions will be accepted through Feb. 23, with more information at <http://sulfurstudios.org/alternative-to-what/>.
