Administrative/Biographical History (2.7): Armstrong Magazine was published twice per year from 1994-1998; Lauretta Hannon editor, Robert Strozier contributing editor, and Gail Brannen photographer. A magazine format was a departure for Armstrong—it was more attractive and more costly to produce compared to previous publications. Contents were to “reflect the vibrant activity on campus. From student achievement to administrative creativity”, as Hannon wrote in the first issue. Many of the stories sprang from faculty interests, student activities and timely issues in the community. Alumni news and Armstrong promotional material, including university status in 1996, are found here. The magazine was distributed to faculty/staff, alumni, and Armstrong supporters in the community.

Related Materials (6.3): Lane Library's collections include the complete run of Armstrong Magazine in a bound volume, LH 1 A75 A76. It is available in digital format via the Internet Archive (archive.org).
