The Division of Facilities Services hopes everyone enjoyed the campus shutdown and wishes you a very Happy New Year! There are many DFS initiatives taking place all over campus right now – everything from new construction to reconfiguring the website. All of these efforts will successfully be achieved through the hard work and dedication of our numerous employees at all of our campus locations. A very special thank you to our DFS employees in this time of tremendous change!!

Topping out IAB

On October 6, 2017, the Facilities Planning, Design, and Construction team as well as external contractors CPPI/Lavender & Associates, celebrated the "topping out" of the Interdisciplinary Academic Building (IAB). The Interdisciplinary Academic Building will house Interior Design, Fashion Merchandising and Apparel Design, Nutrition and Food Science, Foreign Language, History, General and Interdisciplinary Studies, an Advisement Center, as well as lecture halls, classrooms, and offices. IAB is set for completion July 12th, 2018. The topping out celebration took place on-site. "Topping out" is a builder's tradition and celebration that takes place when the final beam is placed on the building.

Facilities Services Promotes Sustainability
This past fall, Environmental Health and Safety, promoted sustainability on and off-campus with informative sessions.

Tiffoni Buckle-McCartney (Sustainability Coordinator) and Patrick Allen (Student Assistant) share information about sustainable programs on campus at GreenFest 2017.
In September, GSU hosted the annual Georgia Campus Sustainability Network Annual Conference. Tiffoni Buckle-McCartney (Sustainability Coordinator) & Steve Watkins (Energy Manager) presented GSU's take on Climate Innovation and the Efficient Energy Management Program.
GSU Receives Award for Climate Leadership

Georgia Southern University was awarded an Honorable Mention from the Climate Leadership Awards! The awards are given by Second Nature and the U.S Green Building Council. Previously, it was announced that the university was a finalist. GSU was awarded the second highest honor that a university can receive in the Climate Leadership Awards. Georgia Southern was recognized for its work in education, service, and other initiatives to promote sustainability.

Eagles Help Beautify Their Campus

Grounds Supervisor (North Campus), Alicia Lanier, has been leading a volunteer initiative to encourage students to learn about their environment and contribute to the landscape of their campus. Once a semester, Lanier leads a group of students through an area on campus and teaches them about the plant life in the area and the importance of species to the landscape and sustainability of campus.
Volunteering students come from various majors and educational backgrounds. Many of them volunteer as a part of their service-learning for environmental science courses or the BUILD program. The volunteer work they do varies but typically includes invasive species removal and planting of pollinator plants. Lanier’s goal for the volunteer program is to spread knowledge about various plant species and to encourage students to be more aware of their campus.
EHS Participates in Benefits Fair

The Environmental Health and Safety department participated in the annual Benefits Fair to showcase information on AEDs as well as how to use a fire extinguisher properly. Team members also shared tips on working safely on campus.
