Dr. Bryan Miller Published in Pediatrics

June 17, 2015

Dr. Bryan Miller in collaboration with Dr. John Stogner (UNC Charlotte) recently had their article "Assessing the Dangers of 'Dabbing': Mere Marijuana or Harmful New Trend?" published in the journal Pediatrics. This article describes the growing trend of using butane hash oil (BHO) and advocates for health care professionals to urge caution and to be aware of the potential dangers inherent in the production and consumption of this form of marijuana. This work has been featured by NBC News along with numerous other news outlets including Fox News, US News and World Report, Health Day, Medical Daily, Yahoo Health, WebMD, International Business Times, Live Science, Medical Express, WFLA Tampa FL, WSFA Montgomery AL, WTVY Dothan AL, KVOA Tucson AZ, among others.

Graduate Students Publish Research

June 17, 2015

Master of Arts and Social Sciences students in the Criminal Justice and Criminology concentration, Shanna Felix and Justin Hoyle, published a research study in the Journal of Family Strengths along with Drs. Chad Posick and Bryan Miller, and John Stogner from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Their study found that members of the LGBT community are at greater risk of sexual assault than their counterparts and that victims of sexual assault have more alcohol-related complications than those who are not victims of sexual assault. Their results can inform tailored programmatic strategies for addressing the needs of victims from the LGBT community.
