Don't Miss Day Six Tonight!

Due to the rain, Day One is now Day Six! Georgia Southern will host the event tonight, Monday, Aug. 24, to welcome the newest members of the Eagle Nation. At Day Six, students will not only learn the traditions that make our University great, but they'll also join in the excitement of this upcoming school year and meet several guests from campus administration and organizations, including Interim President Dr. Jean E. Bartels and Head Football Coach Willie Fritz. Day Six will also feature the Southern Pride Marching Band, Georgia Southern Cheerleaders, GUS, and Freedom, the University's mascot.

CHHS Honors Three Faculty for Scholarship, Teaching and Service

Each year, the College of Health and Human Sciences makes one award to a faculty member for distinctive achievement in each of the following three categories: scholarship, teaching and service. The College announced the recipients at its opening meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 12.

Barry Joyner, Ph.D., dean of the College, presented Brandonn Harris (R), Ph.D., associate professor in the School of Health and Kinesiology, with the CHHS Award for Scholarship; John Dobson (C), Ph.D., assistant professor in the School of Health and Kinesiology, with the CHHS Award for Teaching; and Kathy Thornton (L), Ph.D., associate professor in the School of Nursing, with the CHHS Award for Service.

Performing Arts Center Presents "Driving Miss Daisy" Aug. 29

Hometown stars Carol Thompson, Mical Whitaker and Alan Tyson bring to life this heartwarming Pulitzer Prize-winning play at the Performing Arts Center on Saturday, Aug. 29, at 7:30 p.m. Written by Alfred Uhry, "Driving Miss Daisy" is a tale of friendship between an elderly widow, Daisy (Thompson), and Hoke (Whitaker), her African-American chauffeur.

Told against the backdrop of evolving racial relations in Atlanta during the mid-20th century, Daisy and Hoke's relationship gets off to a rocky start when he is hired by her son, Boolie (Tyson), to be her driver after she crashes her car. Gradually, Hoke earns Miss Daisy's trust as he defies stereotypes, and over their 25 years together, the two grow to become great confidantes, teaching each other about life and friendship along the way.
