University holds 14th French Week

November 4, 2012

Georgia Southern University invites community members to say “bonjour” to French life during its 14th annual interdisciplinary French Week activities. Beginning on Nov. 7, the campus will host several educational and cultural events celebrating French history and culture, including lectures, a film screening and a dance production.

“French Week allows students, faculty and staff and the community to learn about aspects of France that we don’t get to cover in class,” said Clara Krug, Ph.D., who has coordinated the event from its inception. “It’s wonderful to have the support from departments outside of foreign languages, as it really helps attendees appreciate the different aspects of French culture.”

The French Week celebration kicks off Nov. 7 with “Dada and Surrealism,” a presentation by Dr. Julie McGuire, of the Betty Foy Sanders Department of Art, at 4 p.m. in the Arts Building. Other lectures include “Religion and the 18th Century Enlightenment in France” by Dr. Jeffrey Burson, of the Department of History, on Nov. 12; “The Arab Spring: Algeria, Morocco, and Tunisia” by Dr. Simon Hawkins, of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at the University of Arkansas, Little Rock, on Nov. 13; “Hemingway in Paris” by Dr. Dustin Anderson, of the Department of Literature and Philosophy, on Nov. 14; and “Jean-Paul Sartre on Ethics” by Dr. Beth Butterfield of the Department of Literature and Philosophy, on Nov. 15. All lectures are at 4 p.m. in the Nessmith-Lane Conference Center. Other special events during French Week include a screening of Le Havre – a French political fairytale with English subtitles that tells the story of Idrissa, a young African refugee, who is thrown into the path of Marcel, a well-spoken shoe shiner – on Nov. 12 at 7:15 p.m. in the Fielding S. Russell Union Theater and A Performance of Traditional Songs and Music from France, Louisiana, and Quebec by Dr. Jean-Paul Carton, professor emeritus of the Department of Foreign Languages, and Dominique Carton on Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Nessmith-Lane Conference Center.

All French Week activities are free, though there is a cost to participate in the two on-campus French buffets on Nov. 8 and 13 and the “La Table Française” event on Nov. 13 at The Nest. For more information, contact the Department of Foreign Languages at 912-478-5281.
