Seven Programs Earn Record Multi-Year Numbers

The NCAA released the data from its Academic Progress Rate (APR) program, and four Georgia Southern programs posted or tied their highest multi-year scores since the NCAA started using this metric to assess academic performances for each school in each sport. All 17 Georgia Southern athletic programs made passing grades, as well.

"APR is one of our key performance indicators of academic success and retainment of student-athletes," Kleinlein said. "Both are key to achieving the ultimate goal for our student-athletes which is graduation. I am very pleased with the work our student-athletes, coaches and academic staff put in each year to achieve those results."

Earning their highest multi-year score in the department were: baseball (972), men's basketball (981), women's cross country (1,000) and men's golf (1,000).

Georgia Southern's men's golf, women's basketball and women's cross country programs recorded multi-year APRs that ranked first or tied for first in the Sun Belt in their respective sports. Men's golf and women's cross country were recipients of the NCAA's Public Recognition Award, which goes to programs with a multi-year APR in the top 10 percent nationally of all squads in each sport.

Nine programs increased or matched their multi-year scores from a year ago and seven of 17 Georgia Southern sports finished with scores of 1,000 for the 2017-18 academic year only, which bodes well for future APR scoring.
