Dr. Palmer Receives SoTL Fellowship

February 15, 2018

Congratulations to Dr. Nathan Palmer on receiving a SoTL Fellowship for 2018–2019. For those of you who don’t know, SoTL stands the scholarship of teaching and learning. The SoTL Fellowships are awarded through the Centers for Teaching and Technology.

The fellowship is funded with a stipend from the Centers for Teaching & Technology (CT2). Awardees work with a member of the SoTL Leadership Team, who serves as mentor and provides feedback based on their own significant experience in SoTL research. The award winner will develop and present a workshop on implementing insights from their SoTL research to Georgia Southern faculty and graduate student instructors in the following Fall semester; CT2 staff will provide support in developing the workshop. Awardees submit a report on their research project, including a report or advanced article draft of the SoTL project research findings, plans for publication of research findings, and a brief reflection on the fellowship experience no later than April 15 of the academic year in which they serve as fellows. Finally, awardees present their research to the Georgia Southern Campus community.

Learn More

Posted in Faculty, Sociology