Appendix C: Draft Senate Budget Resolution (composed August 4, 2011)

Whereas fulfilling the goals articulated in the AASU strategic plan is best facilitated by collaboration between administrative staff and faculty; and

Whereas maintaining a climate of trust and collaboration between the administration, faculty, and staff is essential to effective shared governance; and

Whereas frank and open communication between administrative staff and the faculty regarding annual budget priorities is vital;

Be it resolved that the President will meet with the Senate leadership by mid-March each year to discuss anticipated funding priorities (ie. faculty salaries, special instructional initiatives, technological enhancement, and operational expenses) for the upcoming fiscal year in relation to long range goals articulated in the overall Strategic Plan and specific priorities addressed in the Tactical Plan for the year in question;

Be it further resolved that the President will meet with the Senate leadership by mid-September each year and present a detailed overview of actual budget expenditures for the previous fiscal year in relation to the long range goals articulated in the overall Strategic Plan and specific priorities addressed in the Tactical Plan for the year in question.

Appendix D: Draft Graduation Bill, Presented by Senator Mateer

Preamble

Graduation is a time for reflection, a time to recognize the accomplishments of our students, and a time steeped in tradition. One of the most valued traditions of Armstrong's graduation ceremony was the granting of degrees by discipline. Both faculty and students cherished this tradition. During the course of their academic careers, our students build strong relationships with their fellow classmates within their discipline. They have a sense of pride in their collective accomplishment, and sitting together during graduation gives them one last chance to share in their achievements as they graduate. Additionally, having students grouped by discipline allows faculty within the various departments a last chance to snap a group photo of their students in their cap and gown and beaming with pride. This past spring that tradition was replaced with the awarding of degrees alphabetically by college, which meant that all of the pride and photos went away. The purpose of this Bill is to restore this highly valued tradition to Armstrong Atlantic State University's graduation ceremony.

Whereas graduation by discipline is a highly valued tradition by faculty and students, be it resolved that this tradition be reinstated for the fall and all subsequent graduation ceremonies at Armstrong Atlantic State University.
