Department of Art

The art department, under the direction of Mr. Henry Iler, tries to create student awareness in the area of visual arts. Each quarter the department presents several art shows featuring work done by students, faculty, and guest artists.

The department is expanding and changing to meet the needs of the students. One change is the establishment of a program between Georgia Southern College and the University of Georgia in which faculty members are interchanged. As of now, faculty members are interchanged only for a few days, but next year it may be for as long as a quarter.

Department of Music

This year the music department has appeared in almost every phase of campus life. The department is headed by Dr. Jack Broucek, who also has the enormous responsibility of coordinating all the activities of the department. There have been numerous operas, orchestrals, recitals, and concerts this year, as well as their involvement in the play "Man of La Mancha." The music groups also perform at grammar and high schools, encouraging the students to become a part of the music program.

The ever-progressing English, Journalism and Philosophy department, under the direction of Dr. Lawrence Huff, is continually refining the curriculum so that it will be more relevant to the changing moods of the progressive educational movement in the world today. This coming fall, more alternatives in the literature curriculum will be offered in order to provide the student with a better insight into the form and structure of the literary minds of the times. In so doing, it will provide the student with a better common-knowledge background on which to base his future endeavors.

Department of Speech and Drama

Hail! worthless knave, for the arts surround you. Your thoughts are speech and your actions are drama. This department, under the direction of Dr. Clarence McCord, tries to instill the concept of realism into its future thespians and orators. Drama and speech exist only with man and will die with man.

Department of Foreign Language

The Foreign Language Department, under the leadership of Dr. Zolton Farkas, would like to interest students in the foreign languages for the enjoyment of the language, rather than for the need for filling the core curriculum. In so doing they will be offering three new courses for next year: Latin, Russian, and Italian.
Along with this is offered an A.B. or B.S.
degree in any of the three main languages. An interesting asset of the department is that they lean heavily on individualized instruction.

Department of Mathematics

The math department, now located in the new physics and math building, has undergone considerable expansion. The department has several new programs, one of which is a math tutoring session. This program is conducted by undergraduates, to help students who are having difficulties in math. Also for next year, Dr. Earl Lavender, head of the department, is initiating changes in the beginning math courses.

Through participation and research seminars the students are encouraged and the department is able to maintain its close teacher student relationships.

Department of Chemistry

The primary function of the Chemistry department is to teach, and Dr. Clair Colvin, head of the department emphasizes this idea. The department is small, yet it handles a large number of undergraduate and graduate students. One of the major attributes of the department is their access to a 360 IBM computer which they share jointly with the University of Georgia. The use of this computer helps the staff to keep their information relevant and up to date.

Department of Finance and Law

The world of business is based on many factors, all of equal stature. One area that stands out for its practicality and importance is the Finance and Law Department. This department, under the vigilant guidance of Dr. Larry Price, is ingraining the elements of basic finance and law into the businessmen of the future. Without finance and law, business would be run like an anarchy of mindless souls searching for evasive absolutes.

GEORGIA SOUTHERN COLLEGE
STATESBORO GEORGIA 30458

My dear fellow students:

Another year has passed. As I sit here reflecting, it seems to me that it has been a good year. To you it has been a very special year. Whether you fully realize it now or not, every college year of your life is a very special year. Life never deals you the same hand twice. I hope that you have taken full advantage of the opportunities which have been yours in 1972-73.

My college yearbooks have come to mean more to me with each passing year as I look back on them and reflect on the people and experiences of those very special years in my life. I hope and believe this will be the same with you.

Please know that your alma mater remains interested in you whatever you may do and wherever in the world you may go!

Sentimentally and sincerely yours,

College Relations

The Office of College Relations "programs" the creative process by which the college is reflected onto the many publics available to her. Publics which include alumni, friends, students, faculty, townsmen, and staff

The office approaches its creative work through three mainstems: words, pictures, and motion created by the Office of Alumni Relations; the Office of Resource Development; and the Department of Public Relations.

Students as well as staff form the intricate combination of talent and force that meet each day in the two-floor suite of the development offices where the reflection is designed and produced.

This creativity, this energy, provide annually pictures (6,000); words (millions); stories (thousands); phone calls (hundreds); with one single character displayed in each: Georgia Southern College. Added to this is the staff's solicitation of alumni support, the empathy of which provides interest for such projects as student recruitment, fund raising, and chapter development.

Development has one purpose: To speak clearly to those who will listen about the life, the dignity, the style of Georgia Southern College.

As of July 1, 1973 the office of College Relations was renamed to be the Division of Institutional Development.

Registration: the Card Game

Another year, another quarter, another hassle with registration. Students struggled with cards, forms, lines, and checks, midst anguished cries of "Hasn't anybody heard of pre-registration?"

They were then rudely thrust before the lens of a camera for their ID shot. The moment was captured, encased in durable polyethylene plastic . . . a lasting reminder of that memorable day.

Then it was over.

Free at last.

Or were you . . .

The Bookstore

Then the college demanded yet another sacrifice. Fresh from registration, you had the dubious privilege of choosing between the two warring bookstores. There you likely spent not only an afternoon but also a small fortune.

Awaiting you there was a line. Unlike the ordinary, run-of-the-mill, registration line, in which you and your fellow sufferers frantically clutched course cards, in this line you were laden with books, notebooks and Bic pens which invariably fell to the floor, there to be crushed underfoot.

Pound, Pound . . .

. . . pound went the piledriver as construction crews made quite certain that the new library will be one building that does not sink into the lake.

Students trudging through the muck and mud endured the noisy banging and became adept at dodging speeding earthmovers.

A huge crane, "symbol of progress," seemed to become a permanent addition to the GSC skyline.

Ten-Minute Dash

It has been truthfully said "college would be fun if you didn't have to go to classes." Since classes seemed to be an unavoidable fact of life, GSC students, armed with umbrellas and laden with books, attempted the ten-minute dash/slosh (depending upon the weather) between such widely separated points as Hanner and Newton.

Changes in Cafeteria and Cuisine

Changes . . . the cash registers were moved for a new ticket punch location . . . no more moochers . . . chicken? choice of white or dark. The biggest change of all came February 20, 1973. "STEAK!" was the cry heard from the first mob to descend upon the cafeteria. Much to the surprise of the students, not only did the cafeteria out-do themselves on the meal, but the personnel had even put out tablecloths!

Making the Grade

With friends, or alone . . . Studying.

Last minute cramming for the next period's quiz . . . hours in the library . . . at the lake . . . writing that term paper . . . studying for that big test . . . FINALS.

Did you make the grade?

Waiting . . .

Killing time. Slow motion while the world goes by. Waiting for THE events. Wondering when they will occur. Living for them . . . surviving between them.

Kids for the Night

The first event to break the monotony of fall quarter occurred when the Ogeechee Fair rolled into town.

Georgia Southern sat up, blinked its glassy eyes, and discovered an exciting and colorful event taking place just a few minutes away from the campus.

Gone were the masks of sophistication. All were kids for the night. GSC students gleefully took to whirling, spinning, bumping on the rides . . . and gorging themselves on foods — non-cafeteria variety.

'Tis the Season

Christmas at GSC is many things . . . a time to stop and think of those you love, a time to renew old traditions and begin new ones.

This Christmas was marked by the addition of a small Christmas tree in the lake — complete with lights. Though the tree was very beautiful, the outraged ducks would have nothing to do with it, and swam haughtily in a far corner of the lake.

The Yuletide spirit was rampant at GSC as decorations and parties abounded. One would hardly have known that finals were upon us.

Homecoming '73

Homecoming, that annual blowout of which Statesboro residents live in mortal dread, arrived at GSC on January 27 with all the customary fanfare. It was billed as the most ambitious celebration to date, and in most respects succeeded in being so.

The bands Friday night, Badfinger, Bloodrock, and the Amazing Blondells, were superb in their performances in the legendary "Hanner Hothouse" which was packed to its sweltering rafters.

The fireworks at the lake which followed the concert were suitably spectacular, frightening the ducks for yet another year.

. . . A Long Way, Baby

Homecoming festivities resumed on Saturday with a picnic at the lake and a clown contest in Sweetheart Circle. Soon the streets of Statesboro were lined with "happy" people as the parade made its way through town. "You've Come A Long Way, Baby" was the homecoming theme, which was well carried-out by the many floats and bathtubs.

Playing inspired basketball, the Eagles blasted the Samford Bulldogs Saturday night, 102-93. Halftime activities included the crowning of Miss Kay Childs as homecoming queen. After the game, students danced to the music of Ripple.

The Campus Life Enrichment Committee presented Shelley Berman in the Broadway musical, "Two by Two" on the final day of the homecoming weekend. The riotous musical rendition of Noah's voyage on the ark was greeted with storms of laughter and provided a happy end to an enjoyable weekend.

Homecoming: Menagerie of Color and Fun

Sleds . . . Skis . . . Cafeteria Trays

Every form of transportation was employed when snow honored Georgia Southern College on February 10, 1973; skis for two, car-pulled sleds, and cafeteria trays gave frost-bitten students a momentary thrill which usually ended in a crash.

Snowballs in the back replaced friendly hellos as students labored on snowmen and women.

It was a very different view of the campus.

Miss GSC

The twenty-sixth annual Miss Georgia Southern College Pageant was held February 17, 1973, in the Hanner gym. Students gathered to watch twenty of GSC's best vie for the crown. When the points were totaled at the end of an evening of entertainment, Miss Rosemary Wells was crowned Miss Georgia Southern by Gail Peters, Miss GSC of 1972.

First and second runners-up in the contest were Misses Carol Chappel and Beth Boring, respectively. Miss Libby Hodges was voted by the contestants as Miss Congeniality. Special guests were Nancy Carr Burtin, Miss Georgia, 1970 and Lisa Lawalin, Miss Georgia, 1972.

Fall Concert

The 1972-1973 year showed that in the realm of concerts, GSC students had become harder to please than ever before. The small crowds, small facilities and small funds — along with constantly cancelling groups — made the College Union Board's job a difficult one.

CUB's efforts fall quarter resulted in the presentation of: Hour Sin, The Hollies, Danny O'Keefe, and the Stomping Suede Greasers.

Winter Concerts

Homecoming activities set the date for the major winter quarter concert. Bloodrock, Badfinger, and The Amazing Blondells entertained a large audience to kick off the homecoming festivities. Stonehenge and Radar appeared for a mid-quarter concert. Later in the quarter, CUB successfully featured The Cornelius Brothers and Sister Rose along with Betty Wright.

Spring Concerts

The Inter-Fraternity Council joined with CUB to present Trapeze and White Witch in concert as a part of Greek Week. Only a few weeks later, Southern was host to a complete contrast in music as the Earl Scruggs Review was featured in concert. To complete the quarter's diversity in musical entertainment, Hydra and Caliban were presented in the final concert of spring quarter.

Lecturers

Through the efforts of various campus organizations, the college community had the opportunity to hear many distinguished and prominent speakers. They helped provide a contemporary perspective in their respective fields.

These speakers included: Margaret Mead, Erskine Caldwell, Ellis McDougald, Lerone Bennett, Mrs. Fred Harris, Mr. Delancy, Mr. George Thompson, Dr. I. William Zartman, Dr. Otis Stevens, Dr. Roland Barton, and Dr. Dewey Grantham.

Good "Free" Movies Cost Fifty Cents

CUB presented a wide variety of films with everything from "adult flicks" to "2001: A Space Odyssey" for the students' weekend entertainment. Most movies were free to all students, but with a fifty-cent admission charge, CUB was able to present recent award-winning motion pictures such as "MASH," which drew large crowds when it was shown spring quarter.

Signs, Signs Everywhere Signs

Since time immemorial, college students have been great proliferators of signs and graffiti. In 1973, students at Georgia Southern continued the fine old art of "lettering" the landscape with signs of all sorts. Although some of the most famous examples were regrettably unprintable, the ones seen here are a typical cross-section of student humor, salesmanship, and social commentary.

Ditto . . .*

. . . chess until early morning . . . bull sessions . . . learning to repair clothes for yourself . . . watching TV until it went off the air. In a men's dorm there seemed to be time for everything — except studying.

Bedpans, Shots, and Cold Stethoscopes

The renowned "Health Shack" entered its final years of service to Southern's students as the building of a new infirmary was approved by the Board of Regents. The services provided by the Health Cottage were dramatically expanded this year by the addition of a full-time physician. It was comforting to every student to know that the hours in which he could fall sick and receive a doctor's care had been greatly increased.

Campus Creatures

On any college campus there are a number of odd creatures wandering about. Georgia Southern's campus is no exception. Pictured here are some of the creatures our photographer literally risked his neck to photograph (see far lower left). These creatures range from Ticketus giveus (Campus Security) to Quackus loudus (the resident ducks). The creatures are, for the most part, harmless: the vampire is a peaceful soul which only frequents Southern at Halloween; the ducks are no problem if one watches his step. However, most students agree that by far the most feared of all these creatures (critters, varmints — depending on where you were raised) is Ticketus giveus.

Together . . .

"Come Together," a three-day conference sponsored by the Religious Activities Committee hit the GSC campus in mid-May. Featured speaker was Scott Ross, nationally known Christian radio announcer and appearing with him was recording artist Danny Taylor. Christians of all denominations met for services and rap sessions and participated in a well-attended Jesus Folk Concert held on the baseball field.

Hangouts and Hangovers

If you never heard of the Flame or the lighted dance floor at the Ball . . . if you never ate pizza at Little John's or got looped at the K.O.G. . . . if you never fed a greedy pinball machine ten dollars in one night or cut classes to play cards in Williams Center, then you never went to school at Georgia Southern.

Under the Sun

What did the students at GSC do when the weather got warm? Everything under the sun: attended games of Southern's most exciting baseball season . . . spring cleaning . . . sunbathing . . . maybe even a little studying.

Return of the Skin

Spring saw more skin than ever on the GSC campus. The return of bare feet, sandals, cutoffs . . . and especially midriff tops, bathing suits, and skimpier halters on the girls made concentration as finals approached even worse for the guys.

Spring, Sprang, Sprung

Mostly sunny, scattered afternoon thundershowers . . . dogwood and azaleas in bloom . . . walking to class became enjoyable again . . . the campus at its best — SPRING at GSC.

ORGANIZATIONS

Masquer's Production

The Masquers presented four plays during 1972-73. The plays were enthusiastically received by the college students and community, for the Masquers performed plays of diversity which had an appeal to all viewers. In Fall Quarter they staged "Lion in Winter," a historical fiction play, and in Winter Quarter the Masquers performed a musical, "Man of LaMancha." Two plays were presented in Spring Quarter, "Toad of Toad Hall," a child's fantasy, and "You Can't Take It With You," a comedy. The Masquers provided Georgia Southern with these four excellent plays through the cooperation and hard work of many students and faculty.

Greek Week

For many days, the fraternities and sororities planned and discussed their most important week of Spring Quarter, Greek Week. As it approached everyone became excited with the thoughts of entering various contests, and perhaps winning that big trophy for their organization. It was to be a busy week with many class absentees and happy hours. This was to be their week, GREEK WEEK 1973!

After the traditional Greek games ΣΧ and ΖΤΑ were victorious in their quests for the coveted trophies. The week had taken its toll: sore muscles, blistered hands, hangovers, and forgotten class assignments. But to the Greek, it was worth that much and more.

Fall Rush . . .

They arrived anxious to be exposed to those fabled Greek societies which long they had dreamed of being a part. All the girls participated in a week of hectic, but memorable experiences. There were meetings, rap sessions, pool splashes and patio parties. As the week neared the end, the girls were confronted with difficult decisions and anxious hours; however, for the lucky ones, wishes were fulfilled as they shared happiness in their first taste of sisterhood.

The Savannah Braves opened the 1973 season in a most unusual way; with the GSC Eagles. This is the first time a team from Southern has participated in an exhibition game with a team from a higher level league. The Eagles really gave Savannah a scare, but the Southern League Team wound up on top, 13 to 9.

A thirty-nine and nine record really speaks for itself when thinking of baseball. And such a record leads on to bigger and better accomplishments, such as sixth place in national rankings and a birth in the NCAA tournaments. All this and much more can be said about the 1973 Georgia Southern Eagles baseball team and their coach, Ron Polk. But what happens after an outstanding season on the regular schedule? They're off to Starkville, Mississippi and . . .

Clutch pitching resulted in victory for the Eagles in the NCAA District Tourney in Starkville, Mississippi, earning a berth in the College World Series. Georgia Southern is now the first team to represent Georgia in any NCAA world series. District 3 Coach of the Year," Ron Polk, as well as the players themselves, put G.S.C. in headlines as being the only team east of the Mississippi remaining in competition. Southern is no longer a small college team, but a "Big Leaguer" in NCAA baseball.

Southern Takes Sixth Place in College World Series

The Georgia Southern Eagles baseball team recently returned from their first trip to the NCAA College World Series at Omaha, Nebraska, and they brought back many memories from their finish as the sixth best team in America. ABOVE: Joe Cronin, President of the American League. ABOVE RIGHT: First baseman lines hit to right in loss to Texas. RIGHT: Third baseman Jim Morrison tags out Harvard baserunner trying for extra base. OPPOSITE PAGE, UPPER LEFT: Morrison digs for the plate. UPPER RIGHT: Ron Polk gives interview from dugout. Eagle team relaxes prior to Minnesota game.

The Eagles 72-73 campaign was quite profitable although it resulted in a disappointing record. Coach Rowe's team dropped some heart-breakers, but the inspiring play of returning members, as well as four starting freshmen, insured a winning squad for the future. With competition like Jacksonville, Mercer, and others, one should expect excitement, and the action this season was exciting to the highest degree. Coach Rowe's assistant coaches, Jerry Fields and Don Smith were assets to the team in individual training and other aspects. The Eagle squad included Tommy Palmer, Mike Pitt, Mike Barger, Perry Warbington, Ronnie Arnold, Richard Wallace, Dick Beuke, Johnny Mills, John Gillingham, Bob Crouch, and Richard Johnson.

*Mills and Wallace
Join 1000 Point Club*

There are not enough words to describe the outstanding play of two potential All-American candidates, Johnny Mills and Richard Wallace. This year these two Eagles scored more points than their freshman and sophomore years combined. Mills and Wallace now join the elite "1,000 Point Club," with a possible chance of moving to the top and shattering all school records.

*Conviction, Enthusiasm, and Laughter —
Elements of a Spirit-Maker*

Jubilance in Victory; Disappointment in Defeat — Emotions Shared by Everyone

The cheers, jeers and laughter from the crowded gymnasium were always welcome. The crowd's enthusiasm not only inspired the team but also lifted dampened spirits. A team's game plans and its success are always dependent upon the crowd's support. The Eagles were rarely disappointed. The antics of our supporters were often as entertaining as the game itself.

Spartanlike Training With Enthusiastic Participation

Georgia Southern entered competition this season as defending champions of the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League. Coach Ron Oertley worked with a very young team, but the team showed no lack of experience. Returning Captain Dave Zirnsak was the only senior on the squad, making the future very promising for GSC gymnastics. Assisting Oertley was an inspiring young athlete, Yoshi Takei. Eagle performers included: Dave Collins, Doug McAvinn, Marty Strawn, Dave Zirnsak, Bee Thoma, Steve Norman, Mel Collins, and John Gracik.

Gymnastics: a Combination of Aerialistic Strength and Style

The Georgia Southern Gymnasts had a unique experience this year when they traveled to the Astrodome in Houston, Texas to meet the Russian Ladies' Gymnastics Team. The Eagles displayed their style and form with the Russians during a week-long exhibition before thousands of sports enthusiasts. Georgia Southern was chosen from all major colleges nationwide.

The team which was strong last year, was reinforced this season by four new men. Mark Reed, Don Welchko, Bill Dabney, and Bill Gresham, along with returning lettermen, Rip Campbell, Pete Darby, Danny Henson, and Don Webster, made the team stronger, perhaps, than it has ever been. The 73 team had great dedication and an intense desire to win. This combination paid off for the hard-working swim team.

Individual play seems to overshadow team play on certain occasions in college golf. Such an occasion was evident at the Chris Schenkel golf tournament, where Eagle golfer, Jimmy Ellis, walked away with top honors. Later in the season Ellis and his teammate, Pat Lane, captured the Peach Classic in Macon, Ga.

It is not always a pleasant experience to watch a golfer, especially when the sun beats down as it does in Statesboro. But, throughout the scorching days, Southern golfers manage to attract a fine crowd with their superb athletic ability.

Variety of Intramural Sports Involves Greeks and Independents

Intramurals at Georgia Southern include a variety of sports; in fact, there is everything from football to crab-soccer. The teams compete fiercely for the privilege of holding the overall trophies in the various categories.

Eagle Women Have 11 and 0 Season

For such a young team, Women's Tennis at GSC has certainly proved its worth. It boasted of a tremendous season by winning all of its eleven matches. Besides entering the Georgia Intercollegiate Tournament in Macon, it hosted the annual GAIW here at Southern. The team members were Beth Sutton, Russell Campbell, Cindy Peterson, Gale Peterson, Anne Rumble, Dale Nesbit and Miss Laura Watson, coach.

Honors Day

The arrival of Honors Day was, for a senior, the first indication that graduation was close at hand. The election of Dr. David Ruffin as Professor of the Year was announced at the ceremonies. Also recognized were students exhibiting excellent scholarship and those nominated for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

SHOW ID WHEN SELLING BOOKS

With the realization that spring quarter was quickly drawing to an end, frantic seniors began hurrying to complete those last minute necessities. A trip to the Registrars Office cleared one for graduation. Another visit to the Placement Center began the search for permanent employment. Then, loaded with long hoarded but useless textbooks, students hurried to the bookstore — only to find that the books were no longer used and, therefore, could not be resold. "Oh well, one day they'll look great on a bookshelf."

The quarter ended with last minute projects, last minute crams, and then came the final . . .

NO CHECKS CASHED
AFTER MAY 18.

Exams

The final crackdown . . . Seniors struggled to make or maintain that 2.0 G.P.A. The library was full until it closed at twelve, and afterwards, lights burned all night. Then came the pencil biting, head scratching moments of truth — and the ultimate jubilation. Nine hundred seventeen out of nine hundred twenty-five prospectives would be a part of spring graduation, 1973!

Moving Out

After the ordeals of exams came another drudgery — moving out. Four years of accumulated junk for some reason refused to fit into compact cars. So, it was auctioned to willing underclassmen or thrown, without sentimentality, into the nearest trash chute.

However, more than one soon-to-be graduate walked the empty halls and the lush green, construction marred campus with a lumpy throat and foggy eyes. Their years at G.S.C. had been good years, secure years — and what was to come?

On the day of graduation 917 former students spent two and a half hours practicing for the night to come. They were bored, restless and irritable — but they were also cool: The class of 1973 had the unique distinction of being the first class to graduate in an air conditioned gymnasium. Yet, the graduates hardly appreciated the luxury until they stood for an hour in the old Hanner Gym!

Thank Heavens for Air Conditioning!

June 2, 1973*

Then They Left

For summers in Europe . . . new jobs . . . new homes . . . new lives. What had Georgia Southern given to them? What had they given to Georgia Southern? Some gave much, and in turn gained much; others gave nothing, and, thus, gained very little. But all were in some ways altered. All had learned — about learning, about living, and about people.
