Summer 2017

Financing Public Health in Georgia

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/jgpha>

Part of the Public Health Commons

Recommended Citation

Denson, Dionne (2017) "Financing Public Health in Georgia," Journal of the Georgia Public Health Association: Vol. 7 : No. 1 , Article 51.

DOI: 10.21633/jgpha.7.152

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/jgpha/vol7/iss1/51>

This conference abstract is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of the Georgia Public Health Association by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.

Conference Abstract

Financing public health in Georgia

Dionne Denson, MSA, CGFM

Georgia Department of Public Health

Corresponding author: Dionne Denson • Georgia Department of Public Health • 2 Peachtree Street NW, Atlanta, GA • 404-463-2725 •

Dionne.denson@dph.ga.gov

Background: The public health system in Georgia is carried out through a hybrid governance structure. The Department of Public Health and the county boards of health have responsibility for serving the public health needs for the Georgia citizens. Funding for the Georgia public health system is derived from a number of funding sources which include federal, state, local, and private funds.

Methods: Georgia's public health system relies on multiple funding streams to provide services. These public health services have the potential to provide a return on investment and positive impact on the local economy. In the hybrid governance structure, local board of health members have an important role in financing of the Georgia public health system.

Results: The funding relationship between state and local boards of health is essential to support the public health system in Georgia. To maintain the public health system, funding should be integrated where possible and used to enhance or expand services. The relationship with community leaders, key stakeholders, and other organizations are important to maintaining the public health system.

Conclusions: Board of Health Members understanding the Georgia public health funding structure, and the importance of the role of the local county boards of health is key to sustainability.

Key words: funding, economic development, return on investment, local board of health

<https://doi.org/10.21633/jgpha.7.152>

© Dionne Denson. Originally published in jGPHA (<http://www.gapha.org/jgpha/>) December 20, 2017. This is an open-access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial No-Derivatives License (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>), which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original work ("first published in the Journal of the Georgia Public Health Association...") is properly cited with original URL and bibliographic citation information. The complete bibliographic information, a link to the original publication on <http://www.gapha.jgpha.org/>, as well as this copyright and license information must be included.