How to protect yourself in Cyberspace

November 4, 2022

As the world becomes more digital, there's booming demand for cybersecurity. It's not just about changing your passwords or getting hacked on social media; it's about protecting yourself from hackers who can steal a lot more than just your vacation photos. Frank Katz, an Allen E. Paulson College of Engineering and Computing assistant professor, tells you the simple steps you can do to keep yourself safe.

The Georgia Southern University Department of Information Technology program is training the front line of digital warriors. Cybersecurity is one of the fastest-growing career fields.
