Notes:

1. For the question “Which of the following most closely reflects your judgment about the quality of instruction you have received in this course?”

   ___ excellent, ___ very good, ___ good, ___ fair, ___ poor

The percent of students responding “excellent” was multiplied by 4, the percent of students responding “very good” was multiplied by 3, the percent of students responding “good” was multiplied by 2, the percent responding “fair” was multiplied by 1, and the percent responding “poor” was multiplied by 0 to arrive at the individual faculty member’s “quality of instruction rating.” The individual quality of instruction ratings were then averaged.

2. The Quality of Instruction rating did not differ significantly between paper and pencil and e-FACE, \( t_{(9)} = -1.57, p > .05 \).

3. The response rate differed significantly between paper and pencil (Mean = 63.0%) and e-FACE (Mean = 33.6%), \( t_{(9)} = 6.47, p < .0001 \).
