TimeShop for Kids comes to Savannah in 2007

SEPTEMBER 27, 2006

Children ages 8-12 who live in the Savannah area can travel back in time to World War II in the English town of Letchworth by participating in TimeShop: Wartime England. TimeShop is planned for Saturday, Feb. 3, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, Feb. 4, from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Coastal Georgia Center, 305 Fahm Street, in Savannah.

‘The children who take part are evacuated from World War II London, which is being bombed by German planes, to the town of Letchworth,’ said Annette Laing, assistant professor of history, who heads the program. ‘On this journey of the imagination they meet the people of Letchworth who, because of the circumstances of the war, are not always friendly, and they experience the lives of evacuees in wartime England.’

For children registered prior to December 15, the discounted cost for TimeShop is $25. The cost after Dec. 15 will be $30, if space is available. Space for the program is limited, and pre-registration is essential.

Thanks to the support of TimeShop sponsors, the program is able to offer scholarships to low-income families living in Bulloch, Bryan, Candler, Chatham, Effingham, Emanuel, Evans, Screven, and Tattnall Counties.

Registration forms are available online at <http://www.timeshopkids.com/> or by calling 912-536-2719.

MBA Assistantship at Georgia Southern honors “Duke” Kramer’s legacy in music and business

SEPTEMBER 27, 2006

Charles ‘Duke’ Kramer started working for the Gretsch Co. in 1935 at the tender age of 19. By the time he passed away in August 2005, he had logged 70 years extolling the wonders of the Gretsch musical instruments and was known affectionately as ‘Mr. Guitar Man.’ Kramer’s love of music and his versatile business expertise will live on through an endowment given in Kramer’s memory by The Gretsch Foundation to Georgia Southern University.

'We are grateful for the unique and thoughtful way the Gretsch family has chosen to honor Mr. Kramer," said William I. Griffis, president of the Georgia Southern University Foundation. 'Their gift will endow the Duke Kramer MBA Graduate Assistantship,' and will support students holding an undergraduate degree in music as they pursue a master's degree in business administration. This award recognizes not only Mr. Kramer's love of music, but also his astute knowledge of the music business."

The endowment creating the 'Duke Kramer MBA Graduate Assistantship' will be held in perpetuity by the Georgia Southern University Foundation, with annual interest being used to award a scholarship each year to one or more deserving MBA applicants who meet the award criteria. The Scholarship Committee will select recipients based on academic qualifications, and the scholarship will be renewable for no more than two years.

Early in his career, Kramer traveled the south and Midwest selling Gretsch instruments. As the youngest salesman in the company, he took the time to talk to store owners and musicians to get an understanding of what they needed in their instruments. He took the information he collected back to the company and was instrumental in creating the famous Gretsch sound. Kramer eventually became vice president of the Chicago division, and when the company was purchased by Baldwin, he ran Gretsch's Cincinnati division until his retirement in 1980. In his later years he specialized in providing vintage Gretsch guitar parts, dealing with musicians such as Chet Atkins and Georgia Harrison.
