Graduate Students Present Combustion Research

December 6, 2022

Amanda Weaver and Richard Smith III, graduate students in the Master of Science in Mechanical Engineering program, presented their work at ASME's Internal Combustion Engine Division (ECED) conference held in Indianapolis, IN. They are currently conducting combustion-related research under the supervision of Dr. Valentin Sologu. Amanda was recently selected for an internship with Rolls Royce, and Richard recently accepted a job offer from Boeing.
