Georgia Southern hosts ribbon-cutting ceremony for new Military Science building

Georgia Southern University's award-winning Army ROTC Eagle Battalion now has a new world-class building in which to learn, network and grow their skills. Georgia Southern University President Jaimie Hebert, Ph.D., hosted the ribbon-cutting ceremony for a new Military Science building last week. The 32,000-square-foot space features four classrooms, a state-of-the-art computer lab, conference room with VTC capabilities, 25 Cadre and staff offices, and a 5,000 square-foot multipurpose room.
