Shudders At His Past. I recall now with horror, says Mallory, the horror of the last three years of suffering from kidney trouble. I was hardly ever free from dull aches or pains in my back. To stop or to move was a torment. I felt as if I were in a cage, and I was not free to move. I was not free to move. I was not free to move.

Man never comes to hate a woman who is not one that he might have loved. I was not free to move. I was not free to move. I was not free to move.

Fought For His Life. "My father and sister both died of Consumption," writes a T. W. Walter of Wyandotte, Mich., "and I was saved from the same frightful fate only by Dr. King's New Discovery. An attack of kidney trouble, which was followed by a severe lung trouble, was the cause of my illness. I was not free to move. I was not free to move. I was not free to move.

TO BE ANOTHER GREAT LABOR WAR.

Reports from Albany, N. Y., tell of another labor war between the milkmen and conductors on the electric cars and the non-union men. The union men had their work and here is where the clash comes. The union men had their work and here is where the clash comes.

At a Conference of Employers and Street Car Men the Trouble Was Adjusted by Conciliations on Both Sides.

Three men fatally wounded, hundreds of others with broken heads and cut faces, cars running merely as a means of transport, the city in a state of martial law, with its citizens in a frenzy of excitement, and the city in a state of martial law, with its citizens in a frenzy of excitement.

The Journal must have in mind that the Morning News is not speaking of casualties. It is speaking of the fact that the city is in a state of martial law, with its citizens in a frenzy of excitement.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON

The Eminent Divine's Sunday Discourse.

Subject: Influence Over Hostile New Friends in Christ-Weakened Nations. Text: And Against the Lord's Armies Captured and Put to His Service.

WASHINGTON.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage, who was the subject of a recent issue of the "Lives of the Prophets," delivered a sermon on the subject of the influence of the church over the world.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil. He said that the church is the only power that can save the world from the influence of the devil.

You can't tell always what a girl's favorite confection is by the class she keeps in school. It is instinctive in the average man to try to comfort a pretty widow by making her think there are others.

The Apples County News is the name of a new paper at Raxley, Cal. Chas. H. Parker who resides in Statesboro several years is editor. The News is a bright, well edited paper.

General Green is now making it hot for the farmers. No time to go on an excursion or a fishing frolic. A few days lost now may mean the loss of the crop.

Sam Jones and the Chatham county Grand Jury are making it hot for Mayor Myers, of Savannah. Maybe they both will give his official feat such a twist as to cause him to do something towards earning his salary hereafter.

Statesboro needs an ice factory. Our citizens are compelled to pay exorbitant prices for ice to be shipped in here, then its no reason why this water could not be frozen right here at home, and less cost of ice. We have plenty of good water, all we need is machinery to freeze it with.

The Jacksonville people are warning the people to stay away from that city just now. They say later on there will be a demand for workmen from other parts but at this time the preference is given to home men, and they are able to meet all demands at the present time.

Chief engineer Lawrence of the B. & P. has sent one or two contractors back to work on their section. The contract calls for a first class job. The road bed between here and Register will be one of the best in the state.

Our girls are all home from college. Misses Rosa and Daisy Averitt, Laura Brown, Lottie Braden and Lelia Blitch came in on Wednesday, and Misses Kate Parker, Debbie Parrish, Maud Brannen, Margie Johnston, Maud Brannen, and Lelia Blitch came in on Wednesday, and Misses Kate Parker, Debbie Parrish, Maud Brannen, Margie Johnston, Maud Brannen, and Lelia Blitch came in on Wednesday.

There was a romantic marriage in town Thursday afternoon. Mr. J. H. Collins and Mrs. Rose M. Jones of Metter drove in, secured a marriage license and sought Rev. T. J. Cobb, who pronounced the solemn words that made them man and wife and sent them on their way rejoicing.

Mr. S. F. Olliff bought 200 acres land in and near Statesboro 20 years ago, the price paid for it was $100 with 7 years to pay it in. It is now worth $100,000. Lots of pieces of land, and he had the lot run out the other day and found that he still had more land than he bought. How is this for a good deal?

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE

The schedule on the S. A. L. has undergone a slight change that is the passenger train going out in the afternoon is 25 minutes earlier arriving in Savannah, both up and down passengers now meet at Cuyler instead of Ellabell as before. This makes a big improvement on the Savannah and Statesboro afternoon service, the train leaves here the same time as usual but arrives about a half hour earlier at night. It is said the S. A. L. made the change in order to accommodate Statesboro in the time of leaving Montgomery has not been changed the extra half hour being made up between Cordele and Cuyler. This the S. A. L. leaves Savannah half an hour later, than the Central South Fly and puts the passenger train to Statesboro at the same time as the day fly does, the route is 17 miles longer and the half hour wait over at Cuyler being dispensed with makes this a good schedule. It is also rumored that the Macon Dublin and Savannah which is now building to a connection with the S. A. L. at Vidalia will use the Seaboard track for its passenger trains into Savannah this way affords us better service and the people between Vidalia and Savannah will have the benefit of an extra set of trains. When the Central puts the route to the north between Dublin and Savannah this will give us another improvement. After awhile we can catch a train going out of Statesboro every few minutes. This will be a big city yet you can't keep a growing town like Statesboro down.

CULTURAL.

For Sick Animals.

Animal relishes something new sliced carrots, a warm tea and ground oats or a hay that has been cut and slightly seasoned. It usually is relished.

Apple Growing.

The most successful growers whose trees are usually small, attribute some of their success to the manner in which they plant the trees and the care taken in the windfalls. He digs a hole five feet square in which the tree is set, and then fills it with soil and compost. The tree is never plowed, the manure spread upon the surface every year. Experience has taught him that the roots of the apple tree go to the surface of the ground for nourishment they may receive.

Roots That Enrich the Soil.

The roots of clover greatly assist in enriching the soil. It is estimated that an ordinary crop of clover leaves left in the field in each acre of about 100 pounds of nitrogen, with $12; twenty-eight pounds of phosphoric acid worth about $1.25, and twenty-one pounds of potash worth about $1.25, of course, making a total of $3.75. Of course, this estimate depends upon the value of the market price of the various fertilizers, but the value of the roots has been amply demonstrated by the increased yields of corn or potatoes that have been grown upon clover soil.

Judging Value of Dairy Cows.

Hundreds of owners of cows judge of the merits of the animals by the quantity of milk given. While quantity is not to be objected to, yet the value of a dairy cow depends upon quality as well as quantity. The low per cent of solids and butter fat should condemn milk that, although pure, does not come up to the standard required. There are, however, cows that give large quantities of rich milk, but begin to fall off in a few months after coming in. The cows that have long periods of milking, and which prove themselves meritorious, should be kept to produce future milkers, the best sire being used for improvement.

Don't Cross Pure-Bred Fowls.

One of the gravest mistakes made by those who keep pure-bred fowls is the crossing of the breed. It seems to be a general desire on the part of many to cross the breeds because of the supposition that the good qualities of two breeds may be combined in one. The fact is that the qualities of both breeds are thus destroyed. Nothing is gained when Leghorns and Brahmas are crossed, as the hardness of the Brahmas is sacrificed, as well as its size, while the prolificacy and non-setting instinct of the Leghorn are obliterated. All breeds are the results of judicious crossing in the first place, and years are required to improve them. Those who cross their breeds soon find their yards containing only scrubs.

Grading Flocks.

Too much can hardly be said in favor of the farmer grading up his flock by the use of pure bred rams of some well established breed. It does not make a great deal of difference what breed is selected, providing it is generally suitable to the locality and conditions of the farmer. The farmer must be suited with the breed, and in turn the breed must be able to give good returns for the extra expense incurred in grading the flock. There is one important thing that the farmer in grading his flock must keep in mind, and it is something that the best sheepmen are laying a great deal of stress upon. It is this, when once a breed is selected, stand by that breed and use it. It is said that one thing is hurting wool more than the constant change in breeding rams in many farmers insist upon making each year. There is no uniformity in their wool.—The Epitomist.

Preservation of Fence Posts Doubtful.

The preservation of wood by salting and by other kinds of applications has been tried in various experiments. Perhaps if the intercellular spaces could be filled with some antiseptic substance, the wood might be preserved, but this is difficult and expensive. Many times the papers have said that coal tar would preserve fence posts in the ground. But many have proved the statements to be untrue. I have known long lines of fence posts treated with coal tar, and they seemed to rot quicker than those not treated with it. I am very doubtful if the application of coal tar and rosin will be successful.

Remedy should be found.

Many years before it could be found. Much waste of time and money should make us slow to trust to any remedy. The better way is to rely on the kinds of wood as we know them. Osage orange and locust may be relied on, especially the former.—J. H. Creighton, in England Homestead.

Brought Up On a Bucket.

An awful disappointment it was for a calf to wake up some farmer comes in a little later with a pair of skinned milk, straddles the calf's neck, inserts his finger in its mouth and tries to convince it that drinking is the proper method of feeding from that time on. Happy would be that calf if the farmer would provide it with the feeding arrangement here shown, and happy would the farmer be if he did not have to waste his time in teaching the calf to drink. The calf seems to get along fairly well until the farmer undertakes to withdraw his finger and make the calf go it alone, but then rebellion rises and an upset pail is the result in some cases. Once introduced the calf to this device and he may turn to his heart's content without upsetting the milk. The arrangement consists of a reservoir, suspended from the wall, with a tube leading to a block underneath, on which is mounted a rubber nipple. As the nipple is screwed on the block it may be removed as soon as the feeding is finished, or the entire feeder can be taken down if desired. Henry B. Smith is the inventor.—Philadelphia Record.

To Have Plenty of Sweet Peas.

Select a spot where the rows can run north and south, and where there is a free circulation of air and plenty of sunshine. Early in April, or as soon as the spade will enter the ground, dig a trench about one and a half feet deep, one foot wide and as long as desired. Two rows thirteen feet long will furnish an abundance of flowers for an average family. Throw out the soil and fill in the bottom of the trench with three or four inches of rotten manure and cover with three or four inches of good garden soil. If leaf mold is obtainable use that.

Sweet peas will not thrive if the roots come in close contact with fresh manure, which will produce coarse vines and small flowers. Mark two parallel rows about nine inches apart, sow the seed and cover with fine soil to the depth of one inch. Use plenty of seed; one ounce to ten feet of double row is about right. After the seeds have been covered about nine inches of the trench is left unfilled. It is best to cover the trench with brush. In about ten days the plants will appear, then remove the brush.

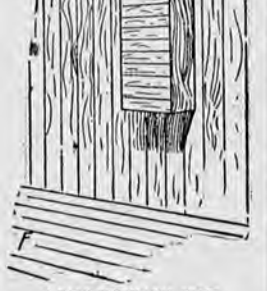

As the plants grow fill the trench to within one inch of the top and leave this hollow to hold water. As soon as the plants are above ground commence to water them. Give a generous supply every other evening, water which has stood in the sun. Stir the soil gently and often. Provide a support for the vines as soon as needed. Wire netting, fastened to posts firmly set at each end of the rows, will make a neat, durable support. When blooming begins pick the flowers daily and do not allow any seed pods to form.—Mary B. Keech, in American Agriculturist.

A Ventilator Shaft.

The experience of some dairymen reminds me of a story a blacksmith used to tell of an acquaintance of his, who said that he stabled his horses in a barn so open that you could throw a cat through it anywhere, they never had anything the matter with them, but after awhile he felt able to build more to his notion, and in the new building the frost covered the inside, and his horses always were in difficulties.

Well, it is the old story—so long as the cows are stabled in the open shed and are reasonably cared for, no trouble is experienced, but when they are put in quarters such as winter dairying demands, then trouble begins.

I do not know that the moisture, which manifests itself by condensing on the roof and walls, is any serious matter of itself, and this could be overcome by filling in the space as suggested. It shows, however, that

A BARN VENTILATOR SHAFT.

The ventilation is imperfect, and to remedy this and retain the warmth generated by the confined animals is not so easy a matter. If the ventilator shaft is brought down near the floor it will probably be carried to a point where the air does not differ in temperature from that in the shaft, and so of course will not work.

The Kansas experiment station offered a suggestion, of which the illustration is a modification. At the point where the shaft passes through the ceiling a hole is cut and provided with a shutter opening inward. By opening this more or less a draught can always be created. A very slight opening would make sufficient draught to cause the shaft to take air from the bottom, especially if it was a long one.

In the case under consideration I would pass the shaft through the main barn and up between the rafters to the ridge, terminating in either a cupola or ridge ventilator. In the illustration, C represents the ceiling, S the side of the building and P the floor. In this instance a left is supposed to exist, and it is intended that the shaft shall be carried up to the eaves, and thence between the rafters to the ridge, terminating as above. The inside shutter would necessarily be controlled by two ropes or cords.—Richard H. Mitchell, in the Country Gentleman.

There is a saying that a Chinese scholar is "eleven-tenths" thief.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

A salmon hatchery for the River Tweed has been established, according to the London Leader. Its output can be raised 1,000,000 a year, and the young salmon are to be kept until they are six months old.

The difference between the specific heats of cobalt and nickel increases as the temperature rises. According to the results obtained by Pionchon the specific heat of nickel is at first a little greater than that of cobalt, and becomes very much less at higher temperatures. The electrical conductivity is very different for the two metals. Taking silver as 100, cobalt equals 17.22 and nickel 13.11.

M. Benoist announces the following laws based on experiment:

- (1) The specific capacity of a body appears to be independent of its physical state—it is the same, for example, for water and for ice. It is thus independent of the temperature.
- (2) The specific capacity appears to be independent of the grouping of the atoms; it is the same for crystalline forms, allotropic forms, etc.
- (3) The specific capacity appears to be independent of the state of concentration or of combination of the atoms; it is the same for a mixture as for a chemical compound (after allowance has been made for the selective absorption of the elements).
- (4) The specific capacity of simple bodies is a function of their atomic weights, increasing as the weights increase.

Toronto, Ont., has for many years longed to feel the influence of the arrival of electric energy from Niagara in that city, and it would appear that the eventful day is not far distant, for the power development on the Canadian side is very apt to soon be carried forward. However, the first Niagara power to reach Toronto will be a beam of light from a powerful searchlight tower at Niagara Falls during the summer. This searchlight will be a thirty-inch projector, and from the height where it will be installed, 300 feet, it is expected that its beam will be seen from fifty to seventy-five miles away. As Toronto lies due north of Niagara Falls, straight across Lake Ontario, at a distance of about sixty miles, it is generally expected that the beam of the searchlight will be plainly visible there, and when this occurs Toronto will receive its first Niagara electric energy in the form of light.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society of London, on January 21, Dr. Knott read a paper on solar radiation and earth temperatures, in which a comparison was made between two sets of data, one being Professor Langley's well known and generally accepted determination of the solar constant, the other being the experimental results of temperature observations made at various depths to the Mediterranean Sea by the Austrian ship Pola. These observations indicate marked diurnal variations of temperature in a stratum of surface water fifty metres in thickness. It is difficult to credit direct solar radiation with the power to penetrate so deeply. The difficulty is greatly increased when a simple calculation shows that the afternoon increase of temperature implies an accumulation of 1490 units of heat over each square centimetre of surface during eight hours of sunshine. For, with Langley's value of the solar constant, it follows that the whole solar energy would not account for more than 750 units. This serious discrepancy deserves notice, as it must be cleared up. The Pola observations appear to be trustworthy.

A new method of distinguishing human blood from that of animals has been discovered independently by Dr. Chien-Luth, of Grieswald, and Drs. Wassermann and Schutze, of Berlin. It appears that it is now possible to obtain a definite reaction from blood stains, however old, which indicates with approximate certainty the source of the blood under examination. This result is based on the fact that the blood serum of animals which have been injected with the blood of an animal of a different species, when added to a dilution of blood from the latter, produces therein a well-marked precipitate. Thus, if a rabbit be injected with human blood, the serum of the rabbit blood, when added to a dilution of human blood, causes immediate turbidity, a phenomenon which is conspicuously absent when it is added to any other kind of blood. The only element of uncertainty is that the blood of monkeys reacts, to some extent, like human blood. This is, of course, comparatively unimportant from a medico-legal point of view, and the two varieties are distinguishable anyhow, for there is a notable difference between the time required for a dilution of monkey's blood to become cloudy and the time required for a dilution of man's. The method, therefore, should be of important practical application in medico-legal practice.

Big Game Plentiful in China. The abundance of game in China is not peculiar to any part of the empire. In the mountains, both north and south, are found great numbers of bears, both black and brown, and, strange as it may seem, they are most numerous in the province of Shan Tung, which is one of the most thickly populated and the oldest province of the Chinese empire. Tigers and leopards are also found in all the mountainous parts of China, the royal tiger of India is found in the range of mountains which parallel the coast from Canton north to the Yang-tze, while in the mountains of the north is found the great Siberian or Mongolian tiger, which is the most magnificent specimen of the tiger family. In addition to these, wild boars, wild sheep and goats, antelope, and what is considered by the Chinese one of their greatest delicacies, the wild ox, are common.—Washington Star Correspondence.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS:

A Peep Into a Linen-Room of a Well-Known House.

A peep at the well-filled shelves of a linen closet just stocked up with the newest of pretty table linen has disclosed some fascinating wonders for dainty housekeeping. Of the six table cloths there to be seen five were of sturdy, lustrous Irish linen and one of French damask with an especially artistic design. All the cloths had a set of napkins to match and were designed respectively with the fleur-de-lis pattern, the walls of Troy and pansy together, the daisy and polka dot pattern, a close design of fan design, the shamrock and walls of Troy, and a rose pattern, which adorned the French set.

In addition to these were two round cloths with scalloped edges. These were shown with great pride by the young housekeeper as the most correct thing for the round table tea party.

A many colored array of centrepieces, dollies and scarfs next came to view. Besides those embroidered with silks there were several centrepieces and small covers of the exquisitely delicate Mexican drawn and wheel work. One piece of the fairylake wheel work, about half a yard in diameter, was priced at $50 by its owner. It looked almost fine enough to melt away.

There were several pieces of substantial Saxony drawn work upon the latticed linen of which heavy embroidered flys and a becoming background. Several scarfs and side table covers of this promised a most attractive showing on polished surfaces.

The lunch cloths and napkins were all giddy, giddy gay. They were the new "art" effects. Several colors were employed in the decoration of one cloth, and the flower designs were quite large. One was the hollyhock pattern, another the morning glory and a third the wide-spreading lotus. These cloths, set off with cut glass and silver, are very attractive when they do not disagree with the color scheme of the rest of the room.

The three sets in this particular collection all managed to keep within the bounds required for them.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Good Color Schemes.

A careful study of color tones and combinations would bring much more effective results in many homes. For instance, blue and white is a favorite color scheme for bedroom furnishing, and is often chosen and as often spoiled by incongruous surroundings. Japanese rugs are the best solution of the difficulty of floor covering with blue and white furnishing schemes, or if Persian rugs are chosen, to give a touch of warmth, they should have predominating blue tones and all subdued colorings. Then confusion should be avoided and a majority of plain stuffs prevail. Plain portieres of solid color are restful to the eye.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Florida Dish—Peel and cut cold baked sweet potatoes into slices, dip in melted butter, salt delicately and put in an earthen dish. Add a sprinkle of sugar to each layer and bake until slightly browned. This is a very delicious method of cooking.

Sponge Cake—Take six ounces of rice flour, half a pound of pulverized sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and five eggs. Beat the yolks and sugar together, then the well-beaten whites, then add lightly the rice flour. Flavor with lemon. Bake in jelly tins.

Rhubarb Tapioca—One pint of chopped rhubarb, add two dozen cooked prunes, one-fourth cup of the liquid in which the prunes were cooked and one-half cupful of sugar. Boil for five or ten minutes, then add one-half cup of tapioca which has been soaked for half an hour in three-fourths of a cupful of cold water. Cook until the tapioca is transparent and serve either hot or cold with cream and sugar or whipped cream.

Spinach Souffle—Take a cupful of spinach which has been prepared and mix with it the beaten yolk of an egg and stir it over the fire until the egg is set. Let it cool. When ready to serve stir into it lightly the well-beaten whites of three eggs. Fill individual buttered paper boxes half full and place them in a hot oven for ten or fifteen minutes. Serve at once; like any souffle, it will fall if not sufficiently baked or if not served very promptly.

Celery Soup—One large 1-ad celery cut fine. Cook half an hour in a pint and one-half of water, with a small onion and sprig of parsley. Mash in same water and add a pint of boiling milk that has been thickened with a tablespoonful each of butter and salt. Season with teaspoonful of onion salt, and pour until it thickens to the consistency of cream. Serve with a tablespoonful of whipped cream on each dish.

Cream of Veal with Mushrooms—Cut one and one-half pounds of veal into about half-inch squares, fry in two tablespoonfuls butter in frying pan. When hot add the veal and sprinkle over a tablespoonful salt, a tablespoonful pepper and two tablespoonfuls flour. Cook until nice brown, then take up in a hot platter, add a small tablespoonful flour to what is left in the pan, three-fourths cup hot water and half a dozen mushrooms cut fine. Stir until it boils, add one teaspoonful lemon juice. Mash veal in centre of platter and pour mushrooms around it.

A New Electrical Wind Register.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in indicating at a distance the revolutions of anemometers, as the small revolving cup arrangement for determining wind velocity are called. In a recent design this has been ingeniously overcome by making the cup-shaft so as to be what practically amounts to the armature of a small dynamo operated by the wind power. The voltage of the apparatus increases with the speed, and may be registered by using a suitable galvanometer arrangement.

A Very Remarkable Remedy
"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store sick and overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by McLean & Co., Druggist.

Every woman has a story, which always makes the men tired, about a man who was kept from some terrible crime by kissing a little baby.

A Sprained Ankle Quickly Cured.
"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says Gen. E. C. Gray, editor of the Guide, Washington, Va. "After using several well recommended remedies without success, I tried Chamberlain's pain balm, and it relieved my pain and a complete cure speedily followed. This remedy has also been used in my family for frost bitten feet with the best results. I cheerfully recommend its use to all who may need a distressing liniment." Sold by McLean and Co., Druggist.

From the Youth's Companion.
"With the idea of naming my boys," said a white haired man, "so that there could be no nicknames—which I have always detested—in the family, we called the first one Edmund, the second Edward, the third Edgar, the fourth Edwin, the fifth Edison and the sixth Egbert."
"That surely served your purpose, didn't it?" asked one of the listeners.
"Not at all," rejoined the patriarch, rather shamefacedly. Beginning with the eldest, they were known as Eddie, Chuck, Bim, Snorky, Muggins and Pete, and every mother's son of them answered proudly to his nickname."

We heartily endorse what our brother says in the above article.

Mr. G. W. Matthey, of Statesboro, paper hanger and upholsterer, is here papering the residence of Mrs. Lida Durham. He has been kept busy since his arrival in Statesboro, and he has enough work ahead for several months. He is so favorably impressed with our lovely little city and the hospitality of its citizens that he has decided to locate here indefinitely.

Talmage to Young Men.
"Let me say in regard to your adverse worldly circumstances that you are on a level now with those who are to finally succeed. Mark my words, and think of it thirty years from now. You will find that those who, thirty years from now, are the millionaires of the country, who are the orators of the country, who are the poets of the country, who are the strong merchants of the country, who are the great philanthropists of the country—mightiest in church or state—are now on a level with you, not an inch above you, and in straightened circumstances now."
"No outfit, no capital to start with?"
"Young man, go down into the library and get some books, and read of what wonderful mechanism God gave you in your hand, in your foot, in your eye, in your ear, and then ask some doctor to take you into the dissecting room and illustrate to you what you have been reading about, and never again commit the blasphemy of saying you have no capital to start with. Equipped? Why the poorest young man is equipped as only the God of the whole universe could afford to equip him."—Ex.

"That Reminds Me."
An Express Messenger's Lot Seems Not To Be A Very Desirable One At Times.

"That story about the express messengers and the loose snakes in the car reminds me of an experience that a messenger had going into Birmingham some time ago." The speaker was an express messenger and he was talking of the rough experiences that messengers often have even in this day and time when wild animals have been driven away by civilization and express robberies seldom occur.

"A messenger was going into Birmingham, and was within a mile and a half of the depot. He was sitting in a chair near the door and was busy writing on his book. Suddenly a big wild cat sprang on his back and buried its claws deep into the fellow's shoulders before there had been time to say 'scat!' The messenger would have been paralyzed with fear if he had had time to be, but he had to do something. He sprang up but found the cat's weight difficult to carry, and the gouging of the claws lacked a great deal of being pleasant. He quickly realized that it was a wildcat, and to keep those long hind claws from tearing him to pieces would require hard fighting. He endured the pain and made as little resistance as possible for a few seconds. He realized that if he fought at all it must be with something besides his empty hands. His pistol was out of reach and he had no knife. His eyes scanned the walls, while the cat sought new places to gouge and struggled to bury his long, sharp teeth in the man's neck. The messenger saw a piece of iron a few feet away. He had used it for a poker, and remembered that it was strong and heavy.

He jumped for this, and in the jump the cat fell to the floor, but quicker than thought was again on him, this time planting both front teeth right in his face, and tearing the flesh to the bone all the way across both cheeks. The rear foot claved at his stomach, and tore his clothing with every move. The quarters were too close to use the iron, and the messenger found it almost impossible to push the cat loose. Before he succeeded, his face had been cut open in at least ten or more places, and his clothes were shredded. Just as the train rolled into the Birmingham depot the messenger got in one good blow with the iron, and it did the work. It cracked the cat's skull, and the big animal fell in a heap on the floor. A few more blows finished the battle. The cat was dead but he had done fearful damage to the messenger's features. It was learned that the cat was being shipped to somebody, and had escaped from its box. The express messenger knew nothing of its presence in the car until the attack was made on him."

Petition for Incorporation.
Georgia, Bulloch County.
To The Superior Court of said County.
The petition of D. P. Ayeritt, John G. Mitchell, J. W. Olliff and J. A. Brannen, shows that they have entered into an association under the name and style of the Statesboro Manufacturing Company; that the object of said association is to erect and operate a Planing Mill and Saw Mill at Statesboro in said County, with power to purchase and hold property real and personal, to sue and be sued, and to exercise all the powers usually conferred upon corporations of similar character, as may be consistent with the laws of Georgia, and the said Statesboro Manufacturing Company is to have its place of business in said county, and is to be operated and run by said association for the purpose of Manufacturing lumber, building material of all kinds and Electricity and Electric Lights in the town of Statesboro and selling the same for profit.
Petitioners further show that the capital stock of said association is Ten thousand dollars, and that six thousand dollars of said capital stock has been paid in.
Petitioners pray the court that they be allowed to increase said capital stock to Twenty Thousand dollars, at their pleasure.

Your petitioners pray the passing of an order by said Honorable Court, granting this their application, and that they and their successors be incorporated for and during a term of Twenty years, with the privilege of renewal at the expiration of said twenty years, for the purposes hereinbefore set forth, and your petitioners will ever pray.
