GrantForward CaseStudy: For Researchers

How Can I Search for Grants Using Advanced Search Filters?

You can refine your search results beyond topical relevance, by adding advanced search filters (either on top of keywords or not). For example, suppose you are looking for grants from some sponsors, due in a range of dates, of some desired grant types, for your specific role, and with a certain amount. You can follow these steps:

Note: You can learn about all the search filters that GrantForward supports at this CaseStudy: What Advanced Search Filters Can I Use for Searching Grants?

- 1. Choose specific sponsors
 Choose specific sponsors which you want to view grant opportunities. For example, choosing National Institutes of Health and Department of Health will refine your search results to only show grant opportunities from those two sponsors.
- 2. Focus on a range of grant submission deadlines
 Focus your grant search by specifying the date range of grant submission deadlines that would work best with your schedule. For example, if winter break is coming up you can focus on deadlines within the next three months to keep yourself busy with grant submissions over the break.
- 3. Select grant types more relevant to your status/purpose
 Select the types of grants that are applicable to your status and purpose. For graduate students, your grants may likely be doctoral dissertation or fellowship/scholarship. In contrast, if you are a faculty researcher, these types will not be applicable to you.
- 4. Refine results by your role/academic standing
 Some grants may target at specific types of applicants-- undergraduate, graduate, international, or early career investigator. E.g., if you are a graduate student, you would select "Graduate" to only show grant results applicable for graduate students.
- 5. Specify your desired grant amount
 Specify the grant award amount that you are looking for by either sliding the minimum and maximum amount bars or typing in the minimum and maximum amounts. E.g., if you are looking for grants that award a minimum of $5,000, you would enter that amount within the minimum amount field.

 The right side of the page features five screenshots of the GrantForward search interface, each with a yellow border.
 1. Sponsors: A dropdown menu with "Type sponsor name" and a search button. Below are checkboxes for "National Institutes of Health" and "Department of Health", both checked.
 2. Deadline: Two date input fields labeled "startdate" and "enddate" with calendar icons.
 3. Grant Type: A list of checkboxes for "Fellowship / Scholarship / Dissertation" and "Fellowship / Work-study", both checked.
 4. Applicant Type: A list of checkboxes for "Undergraduate", "Graduate", and "International", with "Graduate" checked.
 5. Amount (USD): A range selector with "from" and "to" fields. "from" is set to "$ 5000" and "to" is set to "$ Any". An "Update Search" button is at the bottom.
