

Georgia Southern University

Digital Commons@Georgia Southern

Writing & Linguistics News

Writing and Linguistics, Department of,
Publications

3-28-2020

Writing & Linguistics News

Georgia Southern University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/writ-ling-news-online>

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, and the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Georgia Southern University, "Writing & Linguistics News" (2020). Writing & Linguistics News. 122.
<https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/writ-ling-news-online/122>

This article is brought to you for free and open access by the Writing and Linguistics, Department of, Publications at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in Writing & Linguistics News by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.

Writing and Linguistics welcomes you back (virtually) when classes resume on Monday, March 30

March 28, 2020

Dear students,

The Department of Writing and Linguistics is here to support you on your academic journey. The transition to online learning and teaching is challenging for everyone; you might have questions and concerns. Please know that Georgia Southern University and the Department of Writing and Linguistics are committed to quality teaching. We are here to help you stay on track and complete your courses this semester.

I hope you have seen a message from your instructors in Folio or email by now. Many of them have asked students to send a message or post something in a discussion forum to check in. Each professor will handle the transition to online teaching a little differently, but all of our faculty share the same goal of serving you well. If there is anything your instructor can do to help you finish the class during this period without face-to-face classes, please say so. Contact them or me, and we'll do what we can.

My faculty are eager to work with you again as classes resume on Monday. Despite the changes and challenges we're facing, I hope this semester will reach a successful conclusion for you.

Sincerely,

Dr. Russell Willerton

Department Chair

rwillerton@georgiasouthern.edu

Posted in Alumni and Majors, News