Editorial Notes.

Of more than 20,000,000 checks used annually in the United States about 18,000 are "tellers'."

No wonder the New York man who was "Never Trust a Woman" committed suicide. A good many men who do trust women are alive and happy.

The Bookman reports that only 40 British novelists are able to live on the profits of their books. Perhaps the others reverse Emerson's maxim and run to high living and low thinking.

Andrew Carnegie says that his book now is living. There are men who will be just as well pleased if he does not interfere with their plans by taking a vacation and making more money.

Japan is badly in need of capital, but its policy of forcing foreigners out of business is hurting it. It has exhausted its own capital, but foreign investors are in the mercy of the native courts. Trade is at a standstill and mills are idle.

What, send a man to state prison for "harboring" an umbrella? That is the most cherished tradition of the United States, notwithstanding the earnest efforts the British government is making to drive it toward the colonies. Last year 158,825 emigrants left the United Kingdom and 41 percent came to America.

Most of the emigration from the British Isles still sets toward the United States, notwithstanding the earnest efforts the British government is making to drive it toward the colonies. Last year 158,825 emigrants left the United Kingdom and 41 percent came to America.

The Rev. Dr. Edwin Everett Hale said recently: "When I was a young man, studying for the ministry, I came to the conclusion that it was a good thing for a man to retire from the pastorate of a church when he got to be 40. When I got to be 40 I changed my mind, and thought to be the proper age for retiring; then I later came to see things differently, and decided that when I was 60 I should drop the work. But I don't give the matter any thought now."

Like many other novelties, the shirt-waist is having a hard fight for its life. Nearly 25 pupils of the Eastern high school in Washington were sent home one day recently for appearing in shirtwaists, and there was trouble in the school management in consequence. But in a high school in Chicago "two of the most popular women teachers" told the presiding boys of a hot morning that they might take off their coats, with the result that next morning the entire class seemed to have gone into shirtwaists.

Some idea of the growth of wealth among Americans may be formed from a recent announcement by the president of the University of Chicago, who said that his institution would establish affiliated preparatory schools in Europe to give an opportunity to college youths who are traveling abroad to continue their studies. The first branch will be in Paris, and the next in Berlin. The number of students from the Chicago university who spend their holidays in Europe must be large to warrant this enterprise.

Under the caption, "Our (Gold No. 100). Mainly About People, commenting on an advertisement in the London Times of a "millionaire of good family" who is positively seeking the post of "private secretary to an American or English millionaire," says: "Here is the triumph of plutocracy over aristocracy with a vengeance, and such a sign of the times may well startle even those admirers of the old order who have watched with dismay such previous pretenses as the gradual conversion of Park lane into a millionaire's avenue, and acquisition of the best houses by members of the new tribe of gold kings in various parts of the country." At this rate, it may not be long before the South African magnate will be able to make the proud boast that every member of his domestic establishment from the major-domo to the "butlers" is a millionaire.

Germany and Holland are planning to try a new riddle to connect with the Dutch East India.

CONQUERING THE AIR.

Machine Designed and Used by Santos-Dumont.

The outlines of the "aeroplan" designed by Santos-Dumont, in which the Brazilian has climbed the Eiffel Tower, are shown in the accompanying cut from the New York Tribune. To the Tribune's Paris correspondent he said:

"Please disavow any readers from being erected at Syracuse for the Santos-Dumont Airship."
