Changing Minds at Concord High School

The documentary, “Changing Minds at Concord High School,” is about a unique and groundbreaking pilot program at the intersection of science, education and personal transformation designed for at-risk teens. The film premiered at the Rubin Museum in New York City with Congressman Tim Ryan hosting the talkback. This was a very successful program that convinced traumatized and at-risk students — who were in danger of failing out of high school—that they could actually change their minds...and lives.

The film has been screened in numerous film festivals, schools and in graduate level courses in education, clinical psychology and neuroscience including CUNY, NYU, Portland State University, Harvard Graduate School of Education and Boston Trauma Center.
