LOUNGING ROOM IN DINING HALL

To Be One of New Features in Enlarged Building. Capacity To Be Increased.

A pretentious lounging room at the entrance is to be one of the features of the enlarged dining hall here.

Other improvements will include the extension of the building so as to provide seating capacity for 150 or 200 more students, bringing the total capacity to 475. There will be one entrance to the building, that being on the north side in front of which will be a small paved space to prevent a muddy entrance. A shelter will be placed above the paved entrance.

The "Little Store" will occupy the space on the right of the north entrance, with the lounging room serving as a place to rest and to be served with candies and drinks.

The extension of the building will be through the small paved veranda which has been on the three sides heretofore. The present veranda will be changed into the dining hall proper, arches taking the place of the double windows.

French windows will be placed along the east side where the old entrance is at present.

A porch will be placed above the dining hall extension on three sides. This will be the same width as the

VARNE DOE TALKS ON MEXICAN ART

Savannah Artist Addresses Local A. A. U. W. at Regular Meeting. Shows Mexican Pottery.

The Collegeboro branch of the American Association of University Women held its regular meeting on Tuesday, January 14. Mr. Ashton Varnedoe, a prominent artist from Savannah, was the guest speaker. His subject was "Mexican Art." The discussion was enlivened by his personal experiences in Mexico and by bringing to the meeting some of the work which the Mexicans had done. This work consisted largely of pottery—some of which was made by small Mexican children. The designs, though primitive, bespoke the real interests of the people and not a commercial desire.

Mr. Varnedoe spoke most interestingly and enthusiastically concerning the paintings of these people. "Their art tells their life—their joys, their griefs, their sorrows, their oppressions," he stated. "Their art is not for the tourist. It is for the painter and he puts on canvas a story representative of their life as he sees it."

Large Majority of Students Sign for Diversion Courses

Photography, a study of philosophers, ping pong, current political issues and campcraft made their debut as leisure arts activities in the program which got under way Thursday.

Other courses in spare-time diversion being offered for the next three months include band, crocheting, dramatics, etiquette, lettering and poster making, library reading and tap dancing.

It has been estimated that approximately 95 per cent of the student body has signed up for some leisure arts course. The largest group to report to any one class reported for tap dancing, there being more than one hundred present for the first period.

Following the practice of last quarter, members of the faculty are in charge of these courses.

STUDENT VISITORS HERE WEDNESDAY

Group of Twenty-three from New College Spends Day on Campus.

A delegation of twenty-three New College students from Columbia University were visitors here Wednesday. The group was headed by Miss Nettie Brodgon, resident director of New College.

New College is a division of the Columbia Teachers College, founded by Dr. Thomas Alexander, who spoke here two years ago at the invitation of President Guy Wells.

In Dr. Alexander's address at that time he outlined the courses of study of the New College, explained that each student must spend a definite period in manual labor and live a while in some foreign country during his training period.

Local supervising teachers, Misses Donovan, Roberts, and others, have had training with some of the New College students during residence

REPORTS FOR DUTY

Frank, one of the T. C. cooks, after becoming involved in rather an embarrassing predicament last Sunday, seemed bent on repentance when he returned to work Tuesday morning.

Going first to Mrs. Landrum's apartment for keys to open the store room, Frank went down to the kitchen and got things started. Mrs. Landrum, always an early riser, joined Frank in the kitchen, and together they "put on the grits and coffee."

"What time is it, Frank?" asked Mrs. Landrum.

"De clock struck fo' just as I was leaving de house," Frank replied.

Looking at the clock, Mrs. Landrum saw that it was ten minutes past three!

Forty-four Students Meet Requirements for Dean's List. Statesboro Leads.

Dean Z. S. Henderson announces that there are forty-four students on the honor roll for the fall quarter. Qualifications required of those making the Dean's List are as follows: The individual must make a grade point ratio of 4, and have no C's on his report. Out of the student body of more than four hundred and fifty, only forty-four qualified for this distinction during the fall term.

Students making this roll are as follows: Statesboro ranked first, having a total of eight students satisfying the requirements. They were Lucy Bunce, D. B. Franklin Jr., Margaret Hayslip, Ralph Kemp, Kathleen Kitchens, Mary Lee Lee, Sara Remington and Cecilene Swinson.

Other students who made this list include Ernest Anderson, Mathews; Vernice Bacon, Manassas; Asa Bar-

EXPECT APPROVAL ROSENWALD BODY

Survey Has Been Made in Southern States to Determine Location of Training Institution.

Because of the fine situation of the South Georgia Teachers College and the extended interest of President M. S. Pittman in rural education, it is expected that this institution will be notified of final acceptance of its proposed plans in carrying on teacher training work for the Julius Rosenwald Fund.

President Pittman recently attended a meeting of the Rosenwald Council in New Orleans, where a survey was made of schools in southern states for the purpose of determining the institution to be approved.

During the past 25 years the Rosenwald educators have been primarily interested in negro education. In an effort to promote this idea they have constructed 5,800 school buildings in more than 800 counties scattered throughout fifteen southern states.

The Rosenwald people have now ceased fostering the construction of negro school buildings, and have turned their attention to the preparation of white teachers. In the future aid will be given toward the instruction

STATE GROUP TO MEET IN MACON

Local Representatives to Attend Educational Program of Georgia Association of Colleges.

Local representatives to the meeting of the Georgia Association of Colleges, which convenes in Macon January 31st and February 1st, have not yet been chosen, according to information given out last week.

The meeting of the association will be opened Friday night, January 31st, at 7 o'clock, with an informal dinner for the delegates. The main feature of this dinner will be an address by one of the outstanding educators of the United States. On Saturday morning there will be a breakfast at 8 o'clock, followed by the regular business of the association.

The association is composed of the leading colleges of the state and the meeting will be well attended by the leading educators of Georgia.

Dr. J. B. Clark, president of the body, has prepared an excellent program for this meeting of the association, it has been indicated. There will be a discussion of the topics which are of general interest to all colleges at this time.

DID YOU GUESS CORRECTLY?

Nobody seemed to trust his predictions on the basketball games announced in this space before the holidays. Many made guesses but did not get the clipping in to Sports Editor Donaldson. It will be easier this time—just indicate the winners. The best and the earliest guesses handed Donaldson will be rewarded with theatre tickets. Tickets for the last edition go to Frances Cone, not for picking the winners, but for being red-headed, freckled-faced and cute. (Then, too, she was once on the George-Anne staff!)

ECONOMY OF WORDS

The longest way round may be the sweetest way home, but there is room for doubt. Particularly in speech. Then why do some speakers have to talk an hour before coming to the point—if any. And why do we not go ahead and say what we mean in this editorial and end it?

First, allow us to make this observation: The audience of a speaker at this institution is highly critical. That is as it should be, but has not kept that audience from being very nearly talked to—well, talked to death.

This has been a sore spot with our students for years, but no real complaints have been made—at least not in the proper direction. Hence we are taking the liberty of giving voice to the sentiment.

If used sparingly, words are much more valuable. If we can say "yes," "no," or "what," and be direct, then why not? Yet on the other hand, words are cheap, so why not use plenty of them?

Some do. Some do not. We suggest to some who do to don't.

TRAINING LEADERS

Indications are that the South Georgia Teachers College will, in the near future, be the institution chosen by the Julius Rosenwald educational fund for the training of teachers for work in rural areas of the South. This recognition may come to mean more to the college in future years than present students can realize.

The Rosenwald educators have been rendering a fine service to education during the past twenty-five years through the construction of school buildings for the black race. Now the attention of the body is turned to a need existing in the South in its rural areas. In the future much money will be spent from the Rosenwald fund toward proper training of Southern rural leaders.

The Teachers College, if and when it is selected as the institution for such demonstration, will have come to an important phase in its history.

LOYALTY OATHS

The much discussed Constitution loyalty oaths which school teachers in many states must take before being allowed to teach have recently found opposition in collegiate circles. Students in the state of New York, after sending a committee of eighty-five to Albany to lobby for repeal of such a law in that state, now promise to fight even more vigorously in the event the matter comes up for reconsideration at any time in the future.

There has been no little discussion in this state regarding the oath since the General Assembly, at its last meeting, made it mandatory for Georgia teachers to sign such a pledge of allegiance to the Constitution. Why this was necessary we never have known.

Our state legislators doubtless were sincere in their approval of the bill. But there appears to have been an attitude of unconscious antagonism on the part of the lawmakers, inasmuch as the legislation was directed at a group of people who were and still are sincere and patriotic in their endeavor. The General Assembly hit the nail squarely on the thumb.

No self-respecting teacher should be ashamed to lend his support to the Constitution; he should, in fact, be proud of that powerful document and more than willing to defend it against usurpers—so long as that Constitution is the embodiment of what he believes are just principles. That is as much as can be expected of any loyal citizen.

But to be gagged without reason by a group of men and women who have the power to do so is an insult, probably unintentional, to the teaching profession of the state. The loyalty oath should be classed among the good intentions of the General Assembly of Georgia. Its merits hardly extend further.

Teachers should not be the victims of class legislation. America was, in its very beginning, founded on the theory of democracy. The nation has survived thus far on the strength of that theory, and democracy should not be destroyed for the purpose of substituting some other form of government. Teachers should not be compelled, for the purpose of fulfilling aspirations held by professional politicians, to sacrifice the right to speak their knowledge whatever they choose to do so.

If there is a need for changes in the Constitution, education should not be made a victim of propaganda in order to keep the needs under cover. We do not say there is such a need, but we do say that when a thing is wrong only through a proper knowledge of any truth concerning it and the application of remedial measures can hope be held for its improvement.

We are told that "It is depressing to realize that the oath has always cropped up as a political device when the political order was crumbling. In the period of religious dissensions the oath of allegiance made its appearance in England as an instrument of intolerance and, a little later, of royal oppression . . . And where have oaths appeared in our own day? In Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany."*

Should the loyalty oath in Georgia be repealed?

EQUITY

"There has recently been set up by the administration of our college a requirement binding certain students who seek college aid to maintain a certain scholastic standing. Primarily, this move has many advantages. Enforced properly it would assure that aid be given only to those who would take the fullest advantage of it and at the same time attach a certain amount of dignity and honor to holding a school job. On the whole, students who were being helped would feel honored in that they would be regarded as intellectually a little above the average. This plan has many good points to its advantage.

"However, let us look at the situation as it stands in our college today. Certain deserving students who seek aid have been refused jobs or threatened with the loss of the positions they now hold because they have not or may not make an average of 'C' or above in their work. Those students, namely basketball players and musicians, have not been dealt with fairly and on the same basis as others who are receiving help.

"As far as we know there was no such requirement for the football team and is no such requirement for certain jobs held by students now. Equity should prevail even at the cost of doing away with scholastic requirements altogether. Not that it is done intentionally, but favoritism has no place in discriminating the types of work which a student does to earn his way through college. Let the standards be the same, preferably without so many unnecessary requirements and red tape.

"A STUDENT."

T'CHIN'S

(By GEE DEE)

And again the Teachers almost beat the Celtics. Before a crowd that almost equalled the one that watched the court magicians perform last season, the Irish put on an exhibition of how the game should be played. The only criticism heard of the game was that of several of our lady teachers who complained that they had to sit in each others' laps—with so many men there.

Large men seem to be the fad in basketball this season. Only Middle Georgia and South Georgia State have presented men as small as the Teachers.

Stewart lifted his season's average to twelve markers per game in the Celtic contest, scoring fourteen points. If this sterling guard can hold his pace for the rest of the season he will break his own all-time record of eleven points per game made last season.

T. C. is going soft. Even scholarships can't coax men to try out for the boxing team. The squad was small at the beginning of the season and is steadily growing smaller.

"For financial reasons" the University of Georgia cancelled the game with the Teachers which was scheduled to be played in Athens on January 25th. An attempt is being made to bring the Bulldogs here, but it is our prediction that an excuse will be made in this case also since our mother institution's cage outfit isn't as strong as it once was.

Basketball fans have a treat in store when "Phoney" Smith brings his Norman Park basketballers here to return the game played in Norman on the holiday jaunt. "Ike" Howell, playing center for Coach's brother, is up in the air to the extent of six feet ten and one-half inches. Howell was largely responsible for the defeat handed the Blue Tide earlier in the season.

Our personal nomination for the most improved man on the cage squad is Ned Warren. "Precious" played jam-up basketball against Douglas and the Celtics, and is looking better every day.

To the folks in Stewart's home town who entertained the basketball team so royally when the Teachers played there, we wish to take this opportunity to express the sincere thanks of every member of the team. The squad is unanimous in stating that the stay in Dixie was the most enjoyable ever experienced. Thanks a million.

Repeated criticism of the officiating at basketball games is brought to our attention. We wonder if something can't be done.

GEE DEE REVIEWS BLUE TIDE RECORD

Basketball Squad Wins First Game
And Drops the Second to Norman.

(By GEE DEE)

Norman 41—Teachers 32

After opening the season with a victory over the All-Stars the Teachers went into a slump and dropped the second game to Norman Junior College 41-32. Big "Ike" Howell, Norman center, put the contest on ice by scoring fourteen points. Stewart was high for the Teachers with eleven markers.

Swift's 21—Teachers 40

Playing ten minutes of real basketball before a packed house in Dixie, the Teachers ran up a nineteen-point lead in the last half. The Swift & Co. team, which is composed of former college and professional stars, was no match for the inspired Blue Tide. Again Stewart was leading scorer with seventeen points.

Albany 34—Teachers 31

A last-minute rally came a little too late to enable the Teachers to win over the blues, one of the best organized teams that the Profs have met all season. This crack "Y" team presented eight men in a well balanced outfit and used the best blocking offense the Teachers had faced up to this point in the season.

Douglas 42—Teachers 51

The Teachers celebrated the New Year with a rough and tumble victory over Mike Herndon's Tigers in a game in which four of the Blue Tide and two of the Tigers were sent to the showers by the referee. Ned Warren came out on top in scoring, sacking up five goals from the floor and two foul markers.

W. K. T. 44—Teachers 26

Meeting the best college team ever seen on the Teachers College floor in Western Kentucky Teachers, the Blue Wave went down in the worst defeat of the season. Presenting a team of six-footers and an almost invincible blocking system, the Blue Grass lads swamped the Profs in the first half and stalled throughout the final stanza to hold the lead. Golden and Stewart tied for honors with eight points each.

Cochran 36—Teachers 54

Fifteen Teachers were used to turn back Middle Georgia College in another semi-football contest in which two members of each team were returned to the bench on fouls. Stewart again stepped out in front with thirteen points, followed closely by Golden with ten. Kirksey led the Middle Georgians with twenty-four points.

Celtics 49—Teachers 42

Banks and Hickey scored sixteen points each to lead the Kate Smith Celtics to a victory over the Teachers before a packed house. The green-clad team teased the Profs along through the first half and used the last to put on a passing exhibition seldom equalled. Stewart led the Teachers with fourteen markers.

TEACHERS DEFEAT ALBANY "Y" BLUES

Golden Leads Blue Tide in Taking the Visitors by a Score of 39-29.

"Flash" Golden led the Teachers to sweet revenge in a ten-point victory over the Albany "Y" Blues Friday night 39-29. The flashing Blue Tide forward scored twenty points, setting the season's record for individual scoring.

The Teachers offensive opened up early in the game and never once was their lead threatened. The score at half-time was 21-14. Rough and tumble playing featured the last half, the Teachers getting vengeance for the rough treatment given them on the Albany court during the holidays.

Sellers was high for the Blues with twelve markers. Jim Warren and Bill Stewart tied for second honors for the Teachers, scoring six points each.

WANTED: SOME PANTS!

My deah, did you see those darling satin panties the cute Kentucky boys wore? No wonder our team lost. I think it was just too awful for our boys to be so humiliated. Can't you imagine how the poor dears felt when there they were wearing those baggy cotton shorts, and the other team appeared in lovely, streamlined satin unmentionables? Really, my deah, it was simply too devastating and you know how you feel when everyone else is dressed better than you; why it was positively criminal to subject our precious lads to such humiliation. I was talking to Bill Stewart after the game, and he told me that the moment he saw those panties that he developed such an awful inferiority complex that he couldn't play. Every time he tried to shoot a goal he became momentarily blinded by the glare from those crimson you-know-whats. At least, that's his alibi for losing the game.

George Donaldson, who gets the tip by holding the other guy down, declares that not once could he get a good grip on the Kentucky wonders' pants.

Purv swears that the reason he couldn't block was 'cause the slippery satin just slid by him.

Flash Golden is plenty sore 'cause those red pants outshone him so much that half of the girls didn't even know he got in the game.

Jack Ryals says that he got the shiny pants mixed up with a stoplight, so he stopped and they went.

Jim Warren confides that the reason Coach didn't let him play was 'cause he didn't have any smoked glasses.

Ned Warren wants to know why some of the grils couldn't donate some — well-er-um-that-is-ah — anyway, he wants some satin pants, too.

Jeff Stewart, our new man, spent so much time admiring the panties he couldn't keep up with the ball.

From all these alibis it seems obvious to me that our boys are very sensitive about the whole affair. Of course, they aren't mad, just hurt since the only thing that keeps us from winning is the lack of proper costume. Won't some one suggest to Coach that he spend part of the million he made on the Celtic game and buy our boys some baby blue satin scanties?

The annual debate between the Oglethorpe and Stephens Literary Societies will be held Wednesday evening, January 22, in the auditorium.

The subject for debate is whether "The Government Should Own and Control All Power and Light Utilities." The Stephens Society, upholding the affirmative, will be represented by John Blount, the president of the society, and Florence Daley. Elizabeth Watkins and John Wiggins will debate the negative side of the question.

This debate will be heard with interest by the student body and faculty as it has long been a point of rivalry between the societies. The Stephens Society has won the debate for the past two years.

Plan Is Presented For Local Laundry

W. L. McElveen and L. W. Whiting, of Brooklet, came before the Student Council at its regular meeting last Tuesday night and present a plan for establishing a laundry to do the students' work. They plan to construct a $10,000 laundry plant near the college, and the purpose of their visit was to ascertain the student attitude toward such a concern.

The members of the council assured the visitors that a large number of the students likely would give the laundry a trial, but the success of the venture would depend upon the prices charged by the laundry in comparison with those charged by the negro washerwomen.
