COLLEGE HONORS DR. S. V. SANFORD

New Dormitory Named for Him
Will Be Dedicated Today.

Sanford Hall, which is to be dedicated today, is named in honor of Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

Steadman Vincent Sanford, one of America's most popular educators, was born in Covington, Ga. He received his A. B. degree from Mercer University, and the degree of Litt. D. from the University of Georgia. Dr. Sanford also studied at the University of Berlin, in Germany, and Oxford University, in England.

The chancellor is the son of a great Georgian and the grandson of Dr. S. P. Sanford, one of the founders of the Georgia Education Association and a great classroom teacher. Dr. S. V. Sanford, too, has spent his whole life teaching the youth of Georgia. He was at one time president of the Marietta Male Academy, from 1903 to 1927 a classroom teacher at the University of Georgia, from 1927 to 1932 he was dean of the University, from 1932 to 1935 president of the University, and since 1935 he has been chancellor of the University System.

Chancellor Sanford has served as president of the Georgia Education Association. He is the founder of the Southern Conference, and was president of that body from 1921 to 1930. He is devoted to the youth of Georgia and is determined that all from the first grade through the University shall have a better education.

The Freshman Dance, annual social affair sponsored by the Freshman class, will be held in the Gymnasium Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The banquet which usually is given the same evening by the freshmen will be indefinitely postponed, since it would interfere with the activities planned for the dedication ceremonies.

PROGRESS

Perhaps the greatest word in the English language is the word GROWTH. It is the measuring rod of the success of any institution. Whether an individual or institution will make its mark on the pages of history is determined by its progress and growth.

We have here on our campus the true meaning of that word. With an ever-growing faculty, the undying spirit of loyalty of our students and alumni, we can not possibly miss our goal. Physical, spiritual and intellectual growth are all an integral part of our growing process.

Sanford Hall and the new Infirmary, latest acquisitions to our material growth, stand as markers of our endless and tireless efforts in the growth of our college.

First we dream, then the dreamer sees a light—a vision and suddenly we find a way and our dreams and hopes of a bigger and better college becomes a reality. Someone once said, "Set your goal beyond your reach, or what's a Heaven for?" These immortal lines make it possible for the dreamer, with consistent effort, to change an ideal or a dream into a reality.

People on our campus are dreaming as those before us have dreamed. Someone dreams of a library building, another dreams of a music hall. The binding point is this—can the dreamer see light? can he catch a vision and see it through? At least we can all dream and in dreaming catch the vision of GROWTH.

THE AMERICAS CO-OPERATE

"No nation can live entirely to itself. Each one of us has learned the glories of independence. Let each of us learn the glaries of interdependence." These words, delivered before the Brazilian congress by President Roosevelt a few days ago, are representative of the feeling of mutual trust and co-operation that the United States and all the other American nations hope will emerge from the inter-American Peace Conference now in session in Buenos Aires.

The "good neighbor" policy which has been championed by President Roosevelt for the past four years has erased the feeling of mistrust and skepticism with which the United States has been viewed in the past. She has descended from her aloof and domineering attitude and the Americas have accepted her in good faith. Never before in the history of the Western Hemisphere has the outlook for inter-American co-operation been more promising. With the rest of the world in a turmoil and every nation attempting to outstrip the other in creating instruments of death, it is expedient that the Democratic strongholds of the world join arms in an effort to preserve peace.

The reciprocal trade agreements of the New Deal administration have given a definite impetus to inter-American trade and strengthened economic ties. The unpopular Platt Amendment has been abrogated. The Monroe Doctrine that has for years been a barrier in inter-American relations has not been mentioned above a whisper in several years. Moreover, South America likes President Roosevelt and they like the friendly attitude of Secretary Hull. No longer is Geneva viewed as a possible source of protection for weak peoples. The American peoples realize that any hope for peace lies in inter-American co-operation and not in any alignment with Europe.

The stage is set for some form of regional pact superior to any now in effect. The antiquated uni-lateral Monroe Doctrine may possibly be replaced by a modern multi-lateral doctrine in which all American nations may participate. There is possibility of a move toward the foundation of an American court of justice and some nations even favor an American league of nations. What will be done is purely a matter of speculation. The interest of the whole world is focused on this inter-American conference. It is a move toward economic interdependence and permanent peace in a chaotic world. Backed by the tremendous prestige of President Roosevelt, there is every reason to believe that the conference will go far toward drawing the Americas into a mutually beneficial agreement.

AS OTHERS TELL US

THE LEARNED IGNORANT

The learned ignorant. Such are many of our college graduates. Universities have become too much a system of mass distribution of facts, a mass production of standardized products—a person who spends 4 years in intellectual mimicry, tucks a sheepskin under his arm and calls himself educated.

It has been charged that colleges rarely allow students proper time for leisure reading, for personal study and pursuant along chosen lines of native interest. If a student wishes to take a course for the strange reason that it may interest him, he may find that, in order to progress in the university system of rating education, he must take prerequisite or companion courses which merely put drudgery into education.

In the early undergraduate years a student finds college merely an elaboration of elementary school. The professor gives lectures, chooses books, indicates pages. Advanced collegiate standing brings on term-paperitis, a disease in which patients scurry blearly-eyed from library to library, faithfully recording what a lot of authorities have said.

Cramming facts is not education. Our complex world apparently requires specializing. But one set of facts relates to another set, although both may masquerade in different "oligies." Interrelations meaning are important. Those who make progress are the heretics who raise eyebrows at facts, facts, facts. Popular education needs more eyebrow raising.—Minnesota Daily.

ALL RIGHT, I'LL TELL

By BOBB HARRIS

To avoid all embarrassing questions, I'll briefly relate the details of my trip to Athens.

My nose was already red when I left. I stopped in town and drank a coca-cola, but nothing else. When I got to Athens, I got a pass to the game, but tore my pants getting in. For my nerves I drank one bottle of beer, but no more. Then Torgia kicked to Jeck and Yale kicked the man holding the ball for a goal. They played the first quarter last, and the last quarter first, so the boys would be fresh in the last quarter. At the half the bell rang, and they counted me out. So I made them count over until it came out on somebody else. Here I took one little drink of Four Roses, and put the rest of the bouquet in my pocket. One little drink for my eyesight, and no more. Then Gin Glonson ran around my end just as I was in the muddle of a pep speech on the younger generation, which I was making to the crowd back of me, under, and over me. And the crowd was for me, in fact they were after me. Right here two uniformed porters with badges on took me to the city hotel and locked the door. When the mayor learned that I was Joel Chandler Harris, I was kicked out. My being broke and not able to pay a fine may have helped get me out along with my identity. Well, my feelings were hurt, so I drank one little pint for my feelings, but no more.

Some fault of the highway signs caused me to wind up in Atlanta. I went to see the mayor. He proved to me in strong language that he really didn't know me from a sack of salt. I was mortified, and bought a short quart, but no more. This I drank for my pride. Then to further my embarrassment, the police objected to my playing in and out the window among the cars at Five Points, and a street car conductor refused to let me drive. He put me off because I didn't have any change, and wouldn't break a bill because I didn't have one. A cop got me for jay-walking, and I took it as an insult, and told him that there was nothing wrong with the way I walked. "Don't you know anything about signals?" he said, and I thought he wanted to get in the game, so I told him to call the signals, and I'd snap the ball. I hit him right on the fist with my eye. It was cold and wet up there, and I finally fumbled down on Peachtree, and broke the jug. This broke up the game, but I was losing anyway. I had no reserves. I drank 'em.

I rode the last mile back with the milkman, and drank a quart of bottled-in-the-barn, but no more. Well, that's my story, and if it staggers, I'll stagger with it. Now let's get some sleep.

Well, here we are with Old man Football over for the time being, and nothing to worry about especially except who is going to make the basketball squad, will the squad be any better than the football team, etc. First, however, let's donate a little space to thank the students and faculty members who so generously helped to get the football team awards this year. And if you haven't heard, eighteen sweaters have been ordered and will arrive by the Christmas holidays.

We haven't had time enough yet to spot any sure-fire potential stars among the freshmen, but a few of them look pretty good so far. Coach will have four good men from last year's varsity, however, to form the nucleus of a stronger team this year. They are: "Flash" Golden, who can shoot 'em from any position (when he wants to); Jeff Stewart, who passes the ball Celtic fashion; King George Carter, who is really a lot faster than he looks at first sight (on and off the court), and Ned (Precious to you, girls), Warren, who is one of the best floor men you ever saw.

From last year's freshman squad come Keith Smith, Bartow Miller, "Shep" Thigpen, and "Tiger" Sowell, all of whom have real possibilities. Among the new boys, Henry Bagley, from Hinesville, is outshining all the others, and should give someone real competition as long as he can wear a 6 7/8 hat. And here's some real news! Uncle Bobbie has managed to get out in less than two weeks after football season. Some more of the forgotten grid heroes who are trying the cage game are Allen Quincey Poppell, who can't quite get the idea that he's not still playing football. Inman, who is out to remain in the public eyes, and "Shorty" Stephens, who has trouble bumping his head on the backboard. R. M. Horton, who didn't go out last year, is making everybody wonder why he didn't.

Last, but not least, let's mention a real old-timer, "Copper" Thompson, who played long, long ago when "Coonie" Riggs was a chubby-faced freshman, and Glen Heath was still in high school. If "Copper" can give coach as much trouble as he once could, we should have a lot of fun out of him later on.

DELTA SIGMAS LEAD LEAGUE

The unbeaten and untied Delta Sigmas are still leading in the intra-mural touch football tournament being played on the golf course field.

Only one team remains undefeated, but so close are the next two or three teams that an upset may easily put one of them out of the running. Keen rivalry is shown among the first four teams and the games are well worth seeing.

A good spirit prevails among most of the participants and clean sportsman ship is being shown. Those teams which have lost most of their games are proving to be good losers and are giving support to the other teams.

Coach Wrinkle has not yet said whether there will be a chicken supper or not, but he states that he is doing everything in his power to arrange it.

Since unfavorable weather has caused so many games to be postponed, an accurate standing of the teams cannot be made.

W. A. A. NOTES

The Freshman physical education class has started folk dances. Some of the best out of this class will probably be seen on May Day.

Efforts are being made to organize a social dancing class after Christmas. This class will meet in the Gymnasium on Tuesday and Thursday at the chapel hour.

Two new members have been added to the W. A. A. Council—Mary Anne French is directing volley ball and Margaret Alexander has taken over the supervision of dancing.

The annual volleyball tournament, under the direction of Mary Anne French, closed last week with the following results: Miss McGilvery's physical education class came out on top in the intra-mural class games. The Junior and Senior classes went down with a double forfeit of their games.

The W. A. A. Council sponsors the awarding of emblems to the girls that have participated in six tournaments on the campus. These awards

Athletic Committee Passes Resolution Of Appreciation

At a recent meeting of the faculty committee on athletics a resolution was passed extending to Coach B. L. Smith, the 1936 football team, the faculty, student body and friends of the college, appreciation for the services, and loyal support during the 1936 football season.

The resolution follows:

(1) Be it resolved, That the athletic committee extend to Coach B. L. Smith its recognition and appreciation of his fine services as coach of the football team, and,

(2) Be it further resolved, That the athletic committee commend the excellent play and fine sportsman-ship of the football team, and will be given at the end of the year on Honors Day. All of the girls are invited to participate in the tournaments which are sponsored so that every girl might receive an award.

(3) Be it also resolved, That the athletic committee recognize the loyal support of the student body, the alumni, the faculty, and the many other friends of the college.

Plans are being made for a big basketball season which will begin at an early date. There will be practice on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, at 4 o'clock. The W. A. A. is interested in developing efficient players and coaches so that girls going out into other schools might direct and organize basketball teams.

L. T. C.

The L. T. C. pledges were entertained with an outdoor breakfast on the back of the college campus Sunday morning, November 22.

The first formal meeting for the new pledges was held Tuesday night in the home economics department.

Stroup Lectures On Medieval Culture

"The Medieval Cathedral and Medieval Culture," sixth of the series of humanities studies presented by the college, was the subject of the lecture given by Dr. Thomas B. Stroup Thursday night.

The relation of the medieval social order to the medieval church was part of a story related by Dr. Stroup which included an account of how learning was prized in the middle ages and stated that there was little superstition at the time when Divinity was the aim of culture.

Dr. Stroup revealed that the medieval cathedrals had hot and cold water systems.

Picture slides have added to the enjoyment of the last three humanities lectures.

Former Student Writes For Education Journal

James Carruth, former student of T. C. and son of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Carruth, is the author of an article published in the October issue of the North Carolina Education Journal. The title of the article is "The Professional Growth and Development of the Science Teacher."

The article may be summed up in the last sentence of Mr. Carruth's discussion which follows: "May we state that the science teacher must stop in his effort to give to science a new tool in the form of a pupil and start trying to give the pupil a new tool for use through life in the form of science?"

The author is teaching science in the high school at Henderson, N. C.

STUDENTS ARE GIVEN SURVEY EXAMINATIONS

Continuing the policy of the Teachers College of having all students tested in the main fields of knowledge, Miss Viola Perry, registrar, gave examinations in the four subjects, history, English, science and mathematics to 20 students who had not taken the examinations held last spring.

It is a rule of the University System that a person cannot graduate without taking the survey examinations mentioned above.
