ANNUAL BACHELORS BANQUET AND DANCE WILL BE SATURDAY NIGHT

PROFESSORS TO FURNISH MUSIC

Seventy-Five Stag Invitations
Will Be Sent Out This Week.

One of the major social events of the year will take place Saturday evening, May 29th, when the members of the Bachelors Club will entertain dates and guests at their annual spring banquet and dance uptown.

The banquet will be held at the Jaeckel Hotel in Statesboro at 6:30 p. m. and will continue until 8:00 p. m., when the group will repair to the Statesboro Armory for a dance at which music will be furnished by Carl Collins and His Professors, with Cliff Garfield as featured vocalist.

Seventy-five stag invitations to the dance have been sent out. About forty members of the club are expected to attend the banquet and dance with their dates. Miss Marie Wood and Miss Ruth Bolton, faculty sponsors of the club, will also be present with their escorts.

Roy Rabun, president of the club, will be toastmaster at the banquet, and will introduce those taking part on the program as well as the newly elected officers of the club, who will assume their new duties at the banquet.

The Armory will be decorated for the occasion in green and white, traditional colors of the club, which is the oldest social organization in the college.

T. C. Will Be Host To Scholarship Applicants

One hundred of the more promising candidates for the scholarships offered by the Rosenwald Fund will be guests of the college June 4th for the purpose of taking examinations and being interviewed concerning their qualifications for the scholarships, according to President M. S. Pittman.

Thirty scholarships will be awarded, Dr. Pittman stated, each valued at $250. Applicants must be teachers of junior or senior class rank and must be 23 years of age, among other qualifications. The decisions will be made some time between June 15th and June 30th.

I. R. C. Have Picnic At Tybee Sunday; Thirty Will Attend

The International Relations Club will have a picnic at Tybee Sunday, May 30th.

About thirty members of the group will leave the college Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock in automobiles and drive to Savannah, where they will attend services at the famous Independent Presbyterian church.

Later they will go to Tybee and spend the rest of the day swimming and playing on the beach. The club will carry food for lunch and supper. They will return to the campus Sunday night.

Among those who are expected to attend are the following: Sudie Lee Akins, Carolyn Blitch, Eugene Bell, Roger Carter, Christine Caruthers, Grace Cromley, Elizabeth Deal, Dessie Holton, Harvin Mulkey, Leroy Roughton, Lillian Simmons, Glenn Sowell, Juanita Thomas, Winston Byrd, Sarah Darby, Hilda Bowen, Virginia Hughes, Ceceline Swinson, Jamie Aldred, John Swint.

The following students have recently been invited to join the club and are also invited to attend the outing: Miriam Girardeau, Jewell Vandiver, Angie Mulkey, Olney Brown, Oliver Fussell, Louise Bennett, Willard Clanton, Joe Baird, Eli Hill, Graydon Pierce, Willard Cartee, Dorothy Bennett, John Bowen, Frank Hook, Dorothy Cromley, J. C. Golden, Anne Pennington, Mary N. Roberts, Sallie Smith, Pauline Mallard, C. D. Sheley.

YMCA Elects Hemans Oliver President To Succeed James Dozier

Hemans Oliver, senior of Savannah, was elected president of the Y. M. C. A. for next year at its regular bi-weekly meeting Wednesday night to succeed James Dozier, who resigned last week.

Dozier is to begin work on his law degree next year and will not return to this school.

L. C. Lee was elected to head the Vesper Choir committee to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Frank Mulling, who is not returning to school next year. Robert Miller was elected assistant vesper choirmen.

Construction of the ping pong table for Sanford Hall was given impetus by the recent decision to take the money necessary for the table from the "Y" budget rather than having the committee in charge collect from the students.

Members of the committee which is in charge of the construction expressed the hope that it will be completed in the near future. When it is finished it will be installed in the lobby of Sanford Hall for the use of the boys there. If installed in time, a tournament may be sponsored by the "Y" to determine the best player in Sanford.

The commencement sermon, beginning at 10:30 a. m., Sunday, June 6, will be preached by Bishop Candler, known throughout the country for his leadership as a church worker and newspaper columnist.

Honors Day, an annual event at which recognition is given to those students who have distinguished themselves during the year through scholarship, leadership, and service, will be featured by an address by Mr. Newton. This address will be delivered at 8 p. m., Friday, June 11, in the college auditorium. Events leading up to the address will include a meeting of the alumni association at 4 p. m. and a banquet at 6 p. m. for the alumni and those students who are being honored. Parents of the honored students will be guests of the college at this banquet.

ON CHANGING NAMES

The George-Anne this week is conducting a poll of students, faculty members, and alumni in an effort to find out the sentiment of those connected with this college concerning the naming of the two women's residence halls for people who have played a part in the upbuilding of South Georgia Teachers College.

There has been some discussion recently that it would perhaps be a good idea to name the dormitories after some person, as for instance, Guy Wells, a man who did much to further the high ideals and purposes which the college stands for.

The George-Anne takes the stand that it would be a good opportunity for the school to recognize and show appreciation of the services rendered by some person who has been connected with the school, and urges everyone to vote for some person whom you would like to see honored.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKERS

This college should consider itself fortunate indeed in securing for its commencement speakers three such outstanding men as Bishop Warren A. Candler, Honorable Philip Weltner and Mr. Ralph Newton, superintendent of public schools of Waycross.

The achievements which these men have made are sufficient recommendation of their leadership and character, and it is anticipated that their messages will be as inspiring as their lives have been.

Bishop Candler was for a number of years Senior Bishop of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Also for many years he wrote a newspaper column which was widely read.

Mr. Weltner needs no introduction to students enrolled in colleges in the University System of Georgia. They have only to recall his many constructive deeds and accomplishments which he achieved as chancellor of the system to know that he is well qualified to deliver the graduation address. Those students who were in school here last year will remember that it was Mr. Weltner who delivered the Honors Day address a year ago.

Mr. Ralph Newton, while perhaps not so well known to people in this part of the state, is recognized as one of the leading educators of Southwest Georgia, and is a man who has done much for the cause of education in Georgia.

Thus it is that all students are urged to remain on the campus after examinations are over and hear those speeches that should be among the most brilliant ever given at this college.

FIVE-DAY WEEKERS

By BOBB HARRIS

The sun comes up. The storekeeper opens his store. "Just another day," he yawns to himself.

'Tis market day in a Georgia country town. As always, this Saddy is presenting an unusually colorful array of personalities. Hogs, cows and chickens are being disposed of up at the public square. Ossie Slade is at his regular place in front of the pool room playing his regular tune on a guitar that sounds to be suffering great punishment. The dismal sound of the blind man's accordion and the occasional plunk of silver and copper in a tin cup joins in to intensify the scene. Groups of chalky-faced negro gals parade up and down the thoroughfare garbed in vari-colored evening dresses. . . . A mule brays at the rail and some raw-boned Romeo makes the remark that "It sounds like Glenn Collins calling one er his younguns." . . . The tobacco-juicy crowd around him joins him in a slouchy haw-haw and the members settle themselves back on the barrels and boxes and resume their whittling and spitting. . . . Over on the vacant lot Reverend Martinus Michaelangelo McGinnis, the traveling evangelist, tells an open-mouthed crowd how to get to Heaven. . . . Now the congregation joins in a half-singing, half-crying of the good ole song, "There's a sad day a-Comin'." . . . A freckled-faced lass draws to a snaggle-toothed companion, "If you see Paw tell 'im I'm gone to the wagon, these here shoes is just killin' my feet." . . . The peanut boys can be heard doing their monotonous vocal advertising. . . . Here comes a wagon with the whole family perched up on a full chicken coop. "Ma, make Ambrose wipe that 'tater off'n his moufe 'fore we hitch." A resounding whack is heard, then a bellow, and the wagon moves on. . . . A group over by the drug store discusses the weather: "It shore is hot for the time er year, ain't it," says one. "It shore is," says another. . . . There's commotion out front of the barber shop—"Pa, Ma says to come to the wagon quick, the mule's kicked all Josephine's teeth out." . . . A crowd coming from the Gen. Mdse. store breaks up—"Well you all come," says one. "Yes, we will, and you all come," says another. . . . A big fellow growls at his long-legged boy, "Where n'ell did you get that hair cut, looks like they put a bowl over your head and cut around it." . . . "Pa, make Louis come outa that telaphone booth, it says ladies resting room up over it." . . . In the doctor's office: "Yesser docter, he's got the belle-ache. Musta been sumthin' wrong with that ice cream; he only et five cones." . . . "Do you all think these pink shoes becomes me," says one big black negress to another. . . . The whole police force comes by rolling Lem Hawkins in the Black Maria, made from an old mail cart. "I think 'sa fine state of affairs when a genulmin cain't drink a beer without being made a fuss over." The paddy raps him on the shins with his club and the procession moves on. . . . It grows late. Now comes the usual Saturday night cutting scrape down at the nigger cafe. A big, fat greasy black woman swings a razor at a long yellow man. "God knows I loves you," she exclaims with every stroke of the trimmer. Twenty minutes later he's all sewed up and ready for another dance. . . . Over at the hitching rail an old man growls, "Now where in the devil's Maynard, we're ready to go out." "He's at the show, Pa—here he now." "Git in this wagon, boy, musta been a dern good show." "Wuz 'bout middlin'," says Maynard, "I just seen it through four times." "Where's Angus at?" "He's over at the pool room under a table, says he's tired." . . . The whole town is waked up by an old open car tearing down main drag. "It's the Simmons boys," says a bystander. "The police is skeert of 'em." "One of em cut his brother's throat from year to year." "The policeman said what couldn't he do to a non-relative." It grows later. . . . Closing time comes.

The storekeeper turns off the lights, locks the door, rattles it, puts on his hat, and shuffles off down the street. "Same old six and seven every day," he mutters to himself, "This life of man is a dull and boresome affair." The drab, quiet darkness swallows him as he turns the corner homeward.

Digging

Wonder if Doris Stephenson has sweet dreams when she sleeps with these letters tucked into her pillow?

Who says T. C. love affairs come to no good end? Look at Walton and Grace. Here's luck and happiness to them.

Jean, Bill must not Ware very well, or just what is it? Maybe she has decided to stick to Bill Kennedy altogether now.

It seems that Breezy Wrinkle isn't quite as breezy as usual and appears a little more wrinkled. Could it be—oh no! Of course not, but one never can tell what's going to happen next.

Anne and B. H. try to keep us guessing. It is being rumored that they had "washed up," but everything comes out in the wash, so we've been told. Let's hope so.

Since Cartee has become "King," Anne has been practicing up for her role of "Queen Anne" next year. She'd better watch out though, 'cause Cartee has an eye on another cute brunette on the campus. "King of Hearts?"

One of the Diggers' spies had to travel out to Dover last week to cover the departure of Inman when he left to go home. And, boy, was it touching. A regular movie finish, with a last-minute dash for the train n'everything. But Florence says she's going to be the truest widow in school.

We hear that some students played in the "Importance of Being Earnest" on the stage in the auditorium Wednesday night for the amusement of others while others amused themselves playing on the campus. Some hide and seek (the seeking by uninvited guests). Do be careful, girls. Two birds in a bush write no recommendations.

We suppose that Mr. Deal should be an authority upon ladies' dress material after that exhibition by Miss Mae the other day.

And so we conclude this week's broadcast. "I'm so tired I can hardly keep my eyes open," said the Digger at the keyhole.

PROF & SPORTOLOGY

Ever since we announced in the last issue that we would sponsor an all-dub team in the soft ball league, players and even whole teams have been bidding for berths on said team. Some suggest that Dozier's first team would be a good pick as it stands, and some say that Abie and Lee should be allowed a few players to make honorable mention at least. For personal reasons I would like to see about ten men on the Iota Pi Nu team make the 'dub-diamonders, but Marion Carpenter has a different idea and says we should not overlook the possibilities of a few Delta Sigma players, but of course he was only kidding. Well, we shall see what we shall see.

Speaking of possibilities for this team, if Ty Cobb Varnedoe keeps up the pace he set in the last game, candidates for the short field position had just as well give up. One more game like the last one and Ty will have a position sewed up. The way that boy can grab 'em in the outfield would make a big league scout's eyes pop out as big as saucers; and the way he peeled the apple at the plate, why he's one of the best willow-whiffers we've ever seen. And he could have done better than he did at the plate but his bat wasn't any good, he said. We'll be watching you next time, Ty.

A good time was had by all at the game Friday afternoon, when Lee's Lounge Lizzards licked an irked Iota aggregation to the count of 15-13. The game was one of the most argumentative contests held this season, with not a single decision going unprotested. Hill and Strickland umpired the game and refereed the griping. Head beafer for the Hookmen was "Unkle Robbie" Robertson, who is getting pretty old and can't see so well, and hence thinks a lot of men are safe when they are really out, and vice versa. Gabby Goat Oliver led the griping from the Lee bench, but Goat is having the same trouble with his eyes as Robbie is. And speaking of optic defects, after the game with "Horsehoe" Stewart's club, the Delta Sigmas are going to take up a collection to buy base-umpire Abelson a pair of specs.

And while we're on the subject of arguments, the current one is whether or not a football player can boot a ball so that it will stop between the five-yard line and the goal line. Coach B. L. is a leader in the school that claims that it can be done by carefully

SOFTBALL STARTS SECOND STANZA

Stewart's Still Soar Supremely
As Smith Secures Swell Start;
Dozier Dealt Defeat.

With Jeff Stewart's team victors in the first half of the season and way out in front at present, the second half of the soft ball intra-mural season is well under way, with all games picking up in interest and enthusiasm. The Jeffmen conquered the other runners in the first half easily, never being seriously threatened, and finished in first place with an average of 1,000. At present he is neck and neck with Coach Smith's hard-hitting youngsters from the training school. Dozier's team kept the cellar filled for the first half, and is making a good start to repeat, however, his boys keep fighting and are due to upset anybody any day.

The standing of the teams for the second half, up to and including Friday's game is as follows.

GEORGE-ANNE CONDUCTS POLL ON CHANGING NAMES OF DORMITORIES

Dramatic Club Play Revived By K. England

In all probability you've heard of the lady who died without medical assistance. Well, the play the other night was such a scream that we've already heard of seven deaths which also reached their culmination without veterinary service. Everyone who went was well satisfied. Oscar Wilde's play, "The Importance of Being Earnest," was delivered here in the auditorium last Wednesday evening.

Up to now you can't tell whether I'm complaining or slamming the play so I'll add to your indecision by saying that it was a "Bunburying" success. In order to straighten matters out the word "howling" might be substituted.

James Dickson proved to everybody's surprise that he was just what from all evidence Julia thinks he is. This, I know, is quite clear. His portrayal of the loveable but premature Algernon was one which might have excited envy in the near impervious heart of Robert Taylor.

Miss Mary Small also "crowded her young life with incident" in her superb portrayal of garrulous lady Bracknell.

The others in the cast also made the performance a success. They were Jewell Vandiver, Tom Vandiver, Julia Reese, James Lynn, Doris Wallace, Leroy Roughton and Willard Clanton.

Is this wrong: I have et?

Yes.

What's wrong with it?

You ain't et yet—Tiger Rag.

Boy: I wish I had a nickel for every girl I've kissed.

Other Boy: What would you do? Buy yourself a package of gum?—Texas Ranger.

Discussion on the campus of the changing of the names of the two women's dormitories now designated as East and West Halls has led the George-Anne to offer its services in finding out the sentiment of the students, faculty members, and alumni concerning this movement.

This issue of the paper carries a ballot which all readers are urged to fill out and return to the George-Anne as soon as possible in order that the next issue may carry the results of the voting. There is nothing official about this ballot, it being simply an effort to find out how those interested in the college feel about the movement.

When the Alumni Association meets here June 11, the matter will be called to their attention and perhaps some official action will be taken at that time.

Several names have been suggested, among them Guy Wells, former president of the college, who was here when it was changed from a normal school to a senior college. Another is Joseph Terrell, who was governor when the school was established.

COLLEGE HUMOR

Little Henry, aged seven, had been taken to the zoo to see the animals.

He stood before the spotted leopard's cage for a few minutes, staring intently. Then turning to his mother, he asked:

"Say, Ma, is that the Dotted Lion that everybody wants Daddy to sign on?"—Navy Log.

He: I caught the cook straining my coffee through one of my socks this morning.

She: Did you fire her?

He: No—it's all right—it wasn't a clean one.

Someone turned in the following with the request that it be dedicated to Dr. Carleton:

Early to bed and early to rise;
Up every time the baby cries.

Dr. Destler: Who was Talleland?

Grace Bowen: A fan dancer. And cut out the baby talk, Doc.

Miss Veazy (overheard Sunday night): It's time for dates to be over Johnnie. Do you think you can stay out here all night?

Johnnie Deal: I don't know, Miss Veazy. I'll have to telephone Mama.

Note from teacher on Mary's report card: "Good worker, but talks too much."

Note from father over signature on back of card: "Come up some time and meet her mother."

Dr. Stroup: "Now Stone, what do you derive from my last statement?"

Stone: "I can't tell you, sir."

Dr. Stroup: "And why not?"

Stone: "I haven't got a driver's license."

And does anybody remember way back when the word "neck" was a noun?—Rammer-Jammer.

To, Roach:

The girl I left behind me
I think of night and day,
For if she ever found me
There'd sure be hell to pay.

He: Oh, pardon me, isn't this the men's dormitory?

She: No, it isn't, and don't you dare come near room 28, third floor on the left in the north corridor.—Lyre.

Passenger: What are you slowing up for?

Driver: I thought I heard the lady say "Stop," sir.

Passenger: She wasn't speaking to you, drive on.—Purple Parrot.

Speaking of savage birds, my Uncle Charlie was killed some months ago by a revolving crane.—Battalion.

By C. D. SHELEY

The Shocked Troopers of Dr. Hoyt "That Boy From Texas" London and "Izzy" Hostettler descended upon Savannah last week and took the city by storm in the rain.

Leaving the T. C. campus at 8:45 Madame Steinway (excuse it, I meant Ol' Blue Boy) rolled into the guano smell at 10:30, just in time to visit the Union Bag and Paper Company. The most impressive thing here was the cutie at machine No. 812. After Dr. London tried for an hour to trade Blue Boy for the factory we went to the Leslie House for lunch. I can't understand why the place went bankrupt the next day.

Next we visited the Steel Products Company, home of the Great Dane Trailers; they gave us Coca-Colas here.

Then came the Savannah Machine and Foundry Company, most of the time here was spent at the Southern Dairies ice cream plant just around the corner.

I think it's a good place here to stop and start at the beginning again. (Jim and Mary Warren are knitting on the campus every afternoon. So soon?) Hussey wanted gin but they gave him a cigarette instead. Before he passed out he expressed a desire to be buried at Bloomingdale.

We played games all the way back. They were called, "Turn your head and get slapped on the neck."
