Professor earns top award at 2017 National Communication Association Convention

In November, Associate Professor of Communications and Africana Studies Elizabeth F. Desnoyers-Colas, received the National Communication Association's 2017 Black Caucus Rex Crawley Outstanding Service Award.

The award recognizes the contributions made by an active member of the National Communication Association who does extraordinary works of service through social advocacy, community service or mentoring.

Cited within the African-American Communication and Culture Division, Desnoyers-

Colas was recognized for an array of work on the Armstrong Campus, including her role as the faculty coordinator for the Men of Vision and Excellence (MOVE) African-American male retention initiative.

Bakari Sellers named 2018 annual MLK Celebration speaker

Civil rights activist, attorney and political commentator Bakari Sellers has been named the Georgia Southern University annual MLK Celebration speaker and will present on Wednesday, Jan. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at 847 Plant Drive in Statesboro. The live presentation will be simulcast at the Georgia Southern Armstrong Campus in Savannah.

April 2018 will mark 50 years since King's assassination, and as such, will be an important theme in Sellers's presentation. Sellers will present on activism in reflection of King's legacy.
