Georgia Southern's Center for Sustainability accepting nominations for the 5th Annual Green Eagle Awards

The Center for Sustainability is accepting nominations for the fifth annual Green Eagle Awards from Thursday to April 1. The award honors individuals who have shown great efforts to promote sustainability on GS' campus and in their community. Full Story

Gus

"He's here." Gus, a short film by The George-Anne Studio, is about a young man who has found himself on campus all alone during Georgia Southern's most desperate hour... well it's probably around twelve hours but whatever. Full Video
