News flash: Learning Commons named for Grubes

December 2, 2009

The first presentation at yesterday's reception for the Grubes was a plaque naming the library's learning commons the Bruce and Kathryn Grube Learning Commons in recognition of their achievements during the last ten and a half years as president and first lady. The plaque will be placed on the column across from the section of the learning commons desk currently staffed by IT Services personnel.

Library to remain open tonight

December 2, 2009

Even though evening classes have been canceled, the campus will not be closed this evening and the Library will remain open. If weather conditions worsen after 5:00 pm and the decision is then made to close campus, University Police will alert us.
