Cobb Leads Cast of 'Birthday Party'

By Pearce Connerat
Guest Writer

The Armstrong Masquers production of poet-playwright Harold Pinter's "The Birthday Party" is an amusing example of a long-winded modern British melodrama that barely generates enough steam to blow out the candles on a cake. However, playing before a moderately full house for four nights, the Masquers, through a nifty bit of direction by Frank Chew and a couple of creditable performances by Paul Friedmann and Hugh Cobb, have managed to mould a piece of modern gobbledegook into an entertaining show.

The plot thickens when the curtain rises and Petey (Al Jokela) stumbles across the stage to the breakfast table. It disappears entirely when Petey's wife Meg, charmingly played by Angela Gresham, pokes her head from the blacked-out kitchen with news that her husband's "corn flakes are ready." Meg's accent can almost be believed, though, and helps to hold things together until she can drag Stanley (Hugh Cobb) the star boarder into the proceedings. Seconds tick away along with the first act until Meg can recruit two more boarders (Paul Friedmann and John Spence),

ASC Young Democrats Sponsor Arnall Forum

The Young Democrats of Armstrong State College sponsored a write-in for Arnall forum on November 4 in Jenkins Hall. The speakers were Rev. James Hooten, Eugene Gadsden, Aaron L. Buschbaum, Mrs. Mercedes Wright, Aaron Kravitch, and Dr. Mason Robertson.

Rev. Hooten, who led the session attended by approximately 150 ASC and SSC students and interested people, said "Not everyone living in Georgia is a segregationist and bigot or opposed to social progress." Mrs. Mercedes Wright received the first spontaneous applause when she said, "Older people in Georgia fumbled the ball. Now we must take up the ball and run to the goal post."

Kravitch's surprising comparison of Arnall with Christ, Moses, and Columbus brought whispered comments among the audience.

When John Cason, an Arnall supporter, asked what the chances were of a victory, Kravitch immediately reminded him of Dewey. Dick Sanders questioned them as to why they had

Committee Reviews ASC Honor Code

A full year with the Honor System at Armstrong State College has recently ended and a review of the year's activities has been made by the Honor Council with a Faculty Advisory Committee. The review was made in three ways:

1. Through the use of a questionnaire submitted to the student body during the Spring Quarter of 1966.

Miss Geechee Pageant Scheduled December 2

The Miss Geechee Dance and Pageant will be held December 2, 1966. The Pageant, which will be presented in the Jenkins Hall Auditorium, will begin at 6:30 P.M. The dance, immediately following the selection of the queen will be held in the Student Center and will feature the Sons of Bach from Atlanta.

The time is rapidly approaching to replace the 1965-66 Miss Geechee, Amanda McLaughlin with one of the eighteen hopeful contestants. These girls have been chosen representing clubs and social organizations on campus.

The eighteen contestants are Miss Melinda Waters, Miss Dusty Sims, Miss Susan Stevens, Miss Cathy O'Quinn, Miss Ginger Wood, Miss Marilyn Hood, Miss Rosemary Rochefort, Miss Diane Shearouse, Miss Linda Sanchez, Miss Sandy Stone, Miss Toni Hill, Miss Karen Donbeck, Miss Joan Litchfield, Miss Gypsy Phillippe, Miss Ethel Kolgaklis, Miss Carol Jordan, and Miss Ginger Price.

Judges will base their opinions on talent, personality, and appearance.

The new Miss Geechee and her court will be announced at the annual Miss Geechee Pageant.

Miss Marilyn Hood, sponsor for the Inkwell, commented, "I think it is a great honor to be representing the Inkwell in the Miss Geechee Pageant. I think it's just the greatest!" Miss Diane Shearouse who represents Alpha Phi Omega said about her choice as a sponsor, "I know that the pageant will be a rewarding experience for me, and I consider it a privilege to represent APO."

Miss Ginger Price, sponsor for the Wesleyan Foundation, declared, "It was a great surprise to me! I regard it as a very high honor to be running. Thank you!"

Regent's Chancellor Against Hunter Use

Dr. George L. Simpson, Chancellor of the Board of Regents, recently announced that the Hunter Air Force Base facilities could not be used as dormitories. He felt that a split campus would not be good for ASC. The cost to renovate dormitories at Hunter would cost 2.5 million dollars while the future new dorms would cost 5 million. Dr. Simpson also said that ASC has enough land for the needed dormitories. Reasons for ruling out Hunter included the large cost and wasted time.

State Representative Richardson argued that Hunter should be used as dorms for they could not build enough elsewhere. If Hunter had been used, an access route would have been built between the two campuses.

Even now one private firm has an option on 17 acres on Abercorn extension across from the college.

Any member of the Honor Council who falls below these requirements will be ineligible to continue his term of service. A replacement will not be selected, however, unless the total number of students on the Honor Council falls below seven.

Applications Due Today for Teaching Cert

Donald D. Anderson recently announced that all students seeking admission to Teacher Education must apply. Application forms are now available in his office (room 10, Administration building). The deadline for receiving the applications is November 23, 1966.

All students who have completed 75 quarter hours or are in the third quarter of their sophomore year and who plan to complete a degree program at Armstrong State College leading towards certification in teaching should promptly apply.

The questionnaire and the discussion at the Faculty Meeting revealed evident interest and worthwhile suggestions concerning the Honor System. From the opinions and suggestions, it is clearly indicated that there is a need for some revision in the Honor System. Certain specific changes, which came partially in response to the suggestions and opinions given by the student body and partially from the Faculty Advisory Committee and the Honor Council following a detailed review of the year's activities, are being proposed by the Honor Council.

PROPOSED REVISIONS OF THE HONOR SYSTEM

- IV. The Honor Council shall be composed of nine students.
 1. Selection shall be made by the President, Vice President and Secretary of the Student Body, the President and Secretary of the Honor Council, together with three faculty members appointed by the President of the College. Selection shall be permanent and shall be for the duration of the student's enrollment at Armstrong State College.
 2. Any student not in good standing with the college in academic or disciplinary matters is ineligible to serve on the Honor Council.

STUDENTS QUESTION 5 HOURS

Because Armstrong State College now has a growing junior and senior class, degree requirements have become definitely more important, particularly those of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.

According to the 1966-67 Catalogue of Armstrong State College (pp. 51-52), the degrees of Bachelor of Science with a major in biology, chemistry or mathematics and Bachelor of Arts with a major in English, history or music require a minimum of 185 hours for graduation, exclusive of physical education.

A regular full-time student will normally carry three academic courses and a physical education course for the first two years, followed by two years of three courses per quarter. The total number of hours earned in this case would be 186, but without the physical education the total drops to 180 hours—5 hours short of the degree requirement. For a student to graduate under the present requirements, it is necessary that he either attend one summer quarter during his four years to take the extra elective or take an overload of twenty or twenty-one hours one quarter during the regular school year.

Neither alternative is a good solution to the problem, and in many cases a student's college career would be extended unfairly for only five quarter hours.

We feel that an explanation of this "phenomenon" should be made to the student body of Armstrong State College to clear up the question of the extra five hours that have, in reality, no effect on the degree. Then perhaps a correction can be made to change the required number of hours to the sensible total of 180.

IMPRINTER CONGRATULATED

We would like to congratulate the Newman Student Federation and particularly Thomas Anglin and Lee Pourciau, editors, on their first publication of the Imprinter this year.

For you students who are unfamiliar with this publication, the Imprinter is a student forum containing editorial opinions and letters to the editor by members of the Newman Club, students of Armstrong State College, and their moderator, Rev. Kevin Boland. The Imprinter, however, is not a newspaper and does not strive to that end.

In the past year, the Imprinter was often a very lively and controversial part of the Armstrong campus, read by Catholic and non-Catholic students alike. We remember its firm stand on such issues as the cigarette machine, masses on campus, and even its criticism of the Inkwell. All of these editorial views were well-taken and informative to the members of the Armstrong community.

We were pleased, as were the members of the Newman Federation, that the organization was granted its request to hold a mass on campus in celebration of All Saint's Day. Approximately sixty students attended it, proving both its necessity and the appreciation for its convenience on campus. The Inkwell shares with the Newman Club in thanking the administration for the opportunity to hold this mass on campus and also shares the hope that further masses will be allowed.

Again may we congratulate the editors and the staff members of the Imprinter on their first publication and hope that it will become as integral a part of Armstrong State College as it has been in the past.

HONOR SYSTEM

Selection of Honor Council members shall be based on the following requirements:

- a) High moral principles and unquestioned academic integrity in all their relations to fellow students, faculty, and administrative officials.
 - b) A minimum average of C+ for the preceding quarter and an over-all average of C+.
2. The selection committee shall submit a questionnaire to those students who meet these requirements. On the basis of the questionnaires, the committee has the power to appoint three seniors, three juniors, and three sophomores to serve on the Honor Council. At least three committee members shall be women and at least three shall be men. This distribution may be altered when deemed best by the selection committee. The appointments shall be made by the second Tuesday in March, and the Council shall assume its duties on April 1.
3. The Honor Council shall elect one of its members to serve as President and one as Secretary. The President shall preside at all

Dear Editor...

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter with the hope that Mr. Aaron Kravitch will read or at least hear of my opinion of his conduct at the recent "forum" held on October 31.

This Forum (i.e. any public assembly) was held under the auspices of the Write-in Arnall campaign.

Many of the students from Armstrong State College had not decided for whom they were going to cast their vote. I was one of these students. I went to the Forum in order to learn more about Ellis Arnall in comparison to Lester Maddox and Howard Callaway and to learn about the write-in campaign.

Five of the six speakers gave an informative and convincing discussion, but Mr. Kravitch, in his rude manner, managed to become "the one bad apple in the barrel." (barrel referring to the speakers)

By engaging in a shouting contest between himself and two Young Republicans, Mr. Kravitch showed a lack of patience. These two students stated that they had come to learn more about Ellis Arnall. This may or may not be true. He later accused another ASC student of being for Callaway, even though there was no visible support for this accusation. This student had asked an intelligent question and deserved an intelligent answer.

It is my hope that if any future forum of any party is held on the ASC campus, that the speakers are selected not only on the basis of their loyalties, speaking abilities, and professions, but also because of other virtues such as patience.

Respectfully,
Ed Truitt

Dear Editor,

There is a group on campus that should be lauded for their perseverance and talent. This group is the Masquers. They are a hard-working group of young people who are interested in drama-and by the way, they do a very fine job.

I was privileged to witness what I consider one of the finest performances that I have ever seen. Frank Chew's production of Harold Pinter's "The Birthday Party" was, in a word, GREAT.

From comments that I heard during and after the show, I think that it was well received. Pat Ray summed it up for everyone when he said, "I think it was a very good show, but it left me sort of unfulfilled."

Almost everything was left up to the imagination of the audience. This, however, added to the excitement that was emitted from the players.

As for the players, they were perfectly cast. I must congratulate them all on a job very well done. It is hard to point out any one individual performance, but the roles of Goldberg and McCann played by Paul Friedemann and John Spence were excellently played, especially in the interrogation scene. It goes without saying that Hugh Cobb (Stanley) and Angela

Dear Editor,

We feel that there has been serious discrimination on this campus. It has come to our attention that parking tickets have been issued to Hondas because they do not have stickers on their rear windows. We would like to inform the administration that Hondas do not have rear windows. We would gladly put stickers on the rear fender, but due to the fact that there is glue only on the front side of the sticker it would probably be difficult to read any way. Therefore we see only three solutions to the problem:

- (1) Issue stickers with glue on either side or special Honda stickers.
- (2) Exempt Hondas from the requirement of displaying stickers.
- (3) Provide rear windows for Hondas.

Thank you,

Perhaps Armstrong State College has finally reached the big time. It seems that we have such a large student body that we can afford to have a play and a basketball game on the same night and expect a large turnout at both activities.

If that doesn't cure your cold try this. Mary Louise Muller has informed me that The Future Secretaries Club held a tea at the Electric and Power Company Building on October 31. That's odd; no one invited me. But she did invite 17 new members. I understand that the FSC is looking for even more new members. Sounds like fun.

Spencer Dillard tells me that the Newman Club started the year with a weiner roast at Thunderbolt. Didn't get invited to that one either. But he has invited all Catholic students to come to their meetings every Sunday night at the Cathedral community center at 7:30. He has even invited me.

I was lucky enough to corner Charlotte Sanders this morning, and she gave me the scoop on the Wesley Foundation. It seems that the good Gresham (Meg) were great. Al Jokela (Petey) and Sylvia Crisfield (Lulu) played real fine supporting roles.

The Masquers including the stage crew have put on a wonderfully entertaining play. They deserve the wholehearted support of the entire college community.

WINN RECOUNTS EUROPEAN TOUR

By Sally Lovell

Those who wish a break from the monotony of school work, step this way, for we are about to relive the unforgettable trip which Mr. Winn recounts with understandable enthusiasm.

On the T. S. Hanseatic he arrived in Hamburg, Germany. Luckily he arrived just in time to witness International Yachting races, and later he visited the Hagenbick's Zoo which is world famous.

By rail he continued to Amsterdam and wondered at the little village of Broek where the sidewalks are scrubbed daily. He spent a great deal of time gazing at the Rijksmuseum's most famous work of art, Rembrandt's "The Night Watch."

In Cologne, Germany, he marvelled at the Cologne Cathedral with its 515 foot spires which took over six centuries to construct. He noted also that almost every city in Germany has a philharmonic orchestra. A visit to the fair at Nuremburg is a delight for all ages.

"The village of a thousand inhabitants," as Munich is sometimes called, is the setting of enchanting parks, magnificent gardens, and the historic Nymphenburg Palace.

In Vienna, Austria, he witnessed the young storks being literally pushed out of the nests and off the roof tops. These birds will fly to Africa only to return the following year to have their young. On our trip to Vienna woods the bus stopped so that he could get out and lie beneath the Linden Tree where Schubert composed "Under the Linden Tree." Here in Vienna is located the largest ferris wheel in the entire world. It takes who it seems are really diabolical henchmen-emisaries from darkest London have to kidnap Hugh—but not before celebrating his birthday in uproarious style. To add luster and lust to the anniversary enter Sylvia Crisfield, making her Masquers debut as the Geechee Christing Keller.

With this kind of a plot to work with, Director Chew has obviously emphasized the need for characterization in this outing, and in most cases has succeeded surprisingly well. The characters are to be believed, whatever they represent. Most of the plaudits have to go to Hugh Cobb's rendition of the despondent Stanley, taking refuge in Meg's Boarding House, with a forlorn dream of touring the world as a Cockey Van Cliburn, and Paul Friedemann, in an airily played role of Goldberg, one of the intruders. Hugh, with a pair of specs to go with his already trade-marked Beatle mop hair shows that he can holler at Meg with a suitable British adulterated South Georgia accent and sounds as if it might even be the something that Harold Pinter intended Stanley to be. Paul breezes around the stage, firing orders to his eye-blinking, finger-twitching, four-letter-word-exclaiming stooge McCann (John Spence) on everything from turning out lights to how-to-brainwash-in-ten-easy-lessons, to his own oddly contrived medicine man remedies for curing a "cold in the nose." Through it all, in a good old American Brooks Brothers Suit and fly-away collar, Paul plays the supercilious meanie and never loses his meanness or assurance. He even manages to get the girl not once but four times. The girl is ambitious ingenue Sylvia Crisfield as Lulu, and in spite of thin lines composed of interrogatives, "What do ya mean?" "What's going to happen?" and clichés "Kiss me," still manages to convince at least Goldberg that she has more brothelly things on her mind in the way of games than Blind Man's Bluff.

John Spence who with his bangs, square jaw and set face, needs only a pair of stilts and a voltage regulator to do Boris Karloff out of a job, performs well as the fidgety Irishman.

"The Birthday Party," with its aura of fine madness, may send a few spectators hoping for a Walt Disney spectacular to the nearest cocktail party, but will appeal to a little in all of us and should prove entertaining to the mature college audience. So who needs a Black Rolls Royce?"

N. F. Simpson, one of England's top playwright. The satiric-farce promised to be a delightful addition to the Masquers' season.

By the way, if I've neglected to mention your club or group, you may prevent a repitition of this injustice by seeing that your club news reaches my mail box in the Inkwell office before your activity takes place.

Methodist students meet every Thursday at 12:30 in Room 9 of the gym. I hope I get invited to that one.

The ASC Masquers are planning to do "The Rules of the Game" by Luigi Pirandello next quarter. If you'd like a part, it might help to read the play now. Try-outs will be at the first of next quarter. Masquers meetings are every other Tuesday at 7:30 in the Fine Arts Building. See you at the next one.

The Science Society needs members. The thing that is so nice is that they are particularly interested in attracting liberal arts majors. I'm told that Dr. Stratton played the violin at the last meeting, and then gave a talk on the Physics of Stringed Instruments. How's that for art? It is worth thinking about the science of art or perhaps the art of science or something. Check with Deborah Kellerman. She can tell you much more than I can.

They let me do a bit part in the last play and I'd like to both congratulate and thank the fine tech crew. Spencer Dillard is probably the best "flyman" in the business and along with Dennis Donnelly, Florence Williams, Mary McCoy, and Judith Traft we have the finest tech crew in the whole wide world, by gum! Ellen Moore, Celia Engel, and Alan Smith did the greatest make-up work in history.

The Armstrong Masquers will produce a one act play for the Poetry Society of Georgia on December 8 and for the general public on December 9. The play is "The Form" by

Intra-Squad Basketball Opens Geechee Season

By Alvin Brown

The Armstrong State College basketball team put on a dazzling display of offense before the home crowd in their intra-squad game November 11. Coach Larry Tapp divided his squad in half for the contest and when it was over, the Red team emerged with a 86 to 74 triumph over a game but out-manned white team.

Freshman guard Jeff Aycock brought smiles to the faces of everyone present by pumping through 22 points

Intra-squad game with Danny Hattrick (22), William Larrimore (61), and Bobby Cannon (31).

D. Hattrick Stars As Geechee Hero

By Malcolm Rich

For the past two years the Armstrong State College basketball team has been blessed with an unsung hero in Danny Hattrick. This year, however, Danny hopes to have what he considers a "banner year". Taking into consideration his past performance, last year 14 points per game plus, this banner year would have to be an all-out effort on his part. Danny is ready, however, because as he explained, "It seems as if for the first time the tension is lax and I feel more at home on the court than ever before".

Danny, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hattrick of 512 East 61st Street, is a junior majoring in accounting. His plans are to graduate from Armstrong.

Danny, although standing only 6'2" tall and weighing only 170 lbs, is able to hold his own against the taller boys, as his 10 rebounds per game last year indicate. Looking at the team as a unit, Danny says, "The and playing heads-up defense for the Reds. Another newcomer to ASC, John Tatum, poured through 16 points to help the Red cause. Leading the Red team in rebounds were William "Willie" Larrimore and Bobby Cannon. Cannon played his usual outstanding game while Larrimore looked very good in his first game in an ASC uniform. Cannon scored 14 points and Larrimore 5. Two-year letterman Danny Sims was the other starter for the Reds and came through with 14 points although hampered by an ankle injury. Substitutes for the Reds were Cliff McCurry and Ray Kellett. They scored 9 and 6 points respectively.

The Whites were led by junior forward Danny Hattrick who scored 17 points and was outstanding on the backboards. Mike Kellett and Tommy Cannon dumped in 15 points apiece, Richie Kelleher scored 10, Bill McAfee 9, and Phil Duke 8, to round out the scoring for the White Squad.

Overall the team looked extremely good; and for the first time in recent years Coach Tapp will have a strong bench to back up his starters. However, the team does lack height and this will put them at a great disadvantage; but two things they don't lack are hustle and heart, and you can rest assured they have plenty of both.

Intra-squad game with Mike Kellett (24), Danny Sims (15), Bobby Cannon (31), Richie Kelleher (44), and John Tatum (35).

team has great spirit, good hustle, and a desire to win ball games. My personal desire is to help in any capacity that I can to insure our team of a successful season. Our competition will be a little stronger this year, but I believe that with the attitude we have we will be able to stand the test".

A banner year which overshadows his previous success and a winning season for the team, are tough assignments, but not too tough for Danny.

Lute Concert Brings Music, Humor to Jenkins Auditorium

As an addition to the Lyceum Series, Christian Van Acker, mezzo, and Michel Podolski, lutanist, presented a concert in the Fine Arts Building on November 14, 1966.

Although there was an unfortunate misunderstanding concerning the contents of the program, the two musicians presented a two-hour program of lute music with solos by Christian Van Acker. After the concert, Mr. Podolski commented that his lute was "dying" because of the effects of humidity in various places that they have toured. Hand-made, it is only ten years old.

Commenting on many of the songs and ballads in particular, they added much humor to the program of generally serious music. Among the numbers which received the most audience response were "J'ai bien mal choisi," a French lute song, and a very humorous ballad of the 16 and 17 centuries about a tour of Westminster Abbey.

As their encore, they presented a ballad from Shakespeare's play "Titus Andronicus."

York harbor, understanding better the saying, "Breathes there a man with a soul so dead who never to him self has said, 'this is my land, my native land.'"

Mr. Winn related that his whole trip could be measured in terms of the people he met and the invitations he received to visit New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, and Denmark. He said, "The people you meet become your lifelong friends instead of mere acquaintances."

In Budapest, Hungary, the tour was saddened somewhat by the tragic conditions under which these people are forced to live. The widespread practice of a daily drinking is shocking; the people of Budapest spend their evenings drowning their fear of Communism in drink, while Communist guards keep constant watch on the tourists. Here, under thatched roof and open sides of a diner he ate near the King of Poland.

Next, we travel to Prague. There are over a dozen puppet theaters in Czechoslovakia. Their comedies are very funny, but Shakespearean and Aristotlian tragedies are hilarious.
