

Georgia Southern University

Digital Commons@Georgia Southern

The Inkwell

Student Media

Spring 4-5-2018

The Inkwell

Armstrong State University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/inkwell>

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Armstrong State University, "The Inkwell" (2018). The Inkwell. 243.
<https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/inkwell/243>

This newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Media at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Inkwell by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.

The Inkwell

Armstrong State University's news source since 1935

WEEK OF APRIL 5, 2018

THEINKWELLONLINE.COM

Armstrong Campus Students Run for SGA

GABRIEL WILLIAMS
STAFF WRITER

The ballot for the 2018-2019 Student Government Association Elections will remain open until 11:59pm on Wednesday April 4th, 2018.

Amongst those running for the Executive Vice President (EVP) seat for the Armstrong and Liberty campuses are Spencer DeMick and Tyler Tyack.

Spencer DeMick

My name is Spencer DeMick and I am running for the Executive Vice President of the Armstrong and Liberty Campuses. I am a Senator and a member of four different committees. I have shown my effectiveness as a representative for the students on campus and as a leader. I oversee the Rules Committee within SGA and my leadership has led to us presenting 11 pieces of meaningful legislation to the Senate Floor, the most of any committee.

Working closely with the consolidation of the University has shown me that there are certain precedents that need to be set going forward. If given the opportunity to serve as the EVP, my exemplary team and I will be able to accomplish those goals and give you the best experience of this campus you could ever have.

Beyond SGA, I also enjoy being active in the college and local community. I have volunteered with Treasure Savannah both times it was offered to me and have even taken up an internship position for the Gubernatorial campaign over Winter Break and serve as an ambassador for this campus. I have clocked in about 80 hours of work over the course of January and February which includes attending marches, events, fundraisers, phone-banking, and have participated in a few interviews for the campaign.

Spencer DeMick (Left) and Tyler Tyack (Right) prepare for the EVP Debate Forum held last week.

I frequent many Gay-

Straight Alliance meetings and have been involved in many different Intra-Mural sports. I ended my first semester at Armstrong with a 3.0 G.P.A. while working around 30 hours per week in retail. I am a brother in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

My experience with the Armstrong Chapter of SAE has given me many opportunities to do charitable work like reading to children at local elementary schools and volunteering at food-banks. I am also a part of the Bylaws, Fundraising, and Recruitment Committee for the Fraternity.

Representing the students of the campus is something I truly enjoy, and I look forward to giving the best representation possible because they deserve it. Thank You!

Tyler Tyack

My name is Tyler Tyack and I am currently running for the office of Executive Vice President for the Student Government Association. As your EVP, I promise to help build our new University to be the best that it can be!

I have been extremely active for a Sophomore Criminal Justice student at Armstrong and that extends beyond Student Government. I have been a member of the Student Integrity Board since the beginning of my Freshman year. I have also served as a Residential Assistant in Windward Commons for my sophomore year.

In Student Government, I have served as Chair of the Elections Committee and the Student Life Committee. Recently, the two committees sent out the much-awaited Galley survey to students. It was with this survey that I was able to successfully pass legislation to remove Sodexo as our food provider and welcome in Eagle Dining Services for the next academic year. This means better food for your dollar!

What the Tyack-Kohler tickets promises is more student involvement. We will move our SGA meeting times to evening hours, which will make them more accessible to all students. Additionally, we will have informative social events on a monthly basis, where we will not only be able to have fun and give away SGA gear, but will allow students to come out and meet their senators and executives.

Finally, to our Registered Student Organizations, I guarantee you that at least one executive will attend every event you request funding for. We will also advertise your events like they were our own, because the SGA is here for you, and wants to make your job as an organization easier.

The link for the ballot is in your Armstrong student email account. However, the link will no longer be valid once opened so be sure to complete the ballot once.

Armstrong Students Travel to see Tallulah Falls

GABRIEL WILLIAMS
STAFF WRITER

This past weekend, Armstrong students traveled to Tallulah Gorge, Georgia for a camping experience as part of a trip offered by Armstrong's Outdoor Adventures Program.

Armstrong Adventures, an outdoor program sponsored by the Student Recreation Center, was initiated to actively engage students in fitness and wellness by participating in various outdoor activities. This program has been active on campus for approximately six years.

Tallulah Gorge State Park, a 2,689-acre Georgia State park, is indigenous to nature's most beautiful wildlife including Bears and the Peregrine Falcon, the largest falcon over most of the continental. Other great features of the park included extensive trails and lakes, a beautiful sand beach, and historical statues and monuments.

The most memorable sight visitors come to witness is the suspension bridge that sits 80 feet above the spectacular and intense Tallulah Gorge waterfall which is approximately two miles long and 1,000 feet deep.

Cat Spears, Armstrong's Outdoor Adventure & Facilities Graduate Assistant, served as the trip leader and coordinated several different camping activities.

For one camper, Olivia Roddenberry, a senior biology major, the trip was a great experience considering this was her first trip with Armstrong Adventures. "I really had a lot of fun hiking down to the Gorge even though I was mad at the steep stairs" Roddenberry stated.

Forrest Collins, another senior biology major, stated "Walking over the Gorge and seeing the moon left me in suspense." Collins has participated in several outdoor trips including an overnight caving experience in Cumberland Caverns located in Tennessee.

In addition to walking over the suspension bridge, campers learned how to properly set up a camping tent which seemed more complex than conceived.

One of the activities Spears coordinated involved learning about the seven principles of "Leave No Trace Behind", a concept designed by the National Outdoor Leadership School (NOLS) to help educate recreationists about sustainable and eco-friendly ADVENTURE | PG 4

Cat Spears (Middle) poses for a picture with students as they hike down the North Rim trail

Presentations for the Consolidation

DAYLON BONNER
STAFF WRITER

A presentation was given by Dr. Frazier, the director of the Lane Library, and Dean Mitchell, the man overseeing the library facilities on all three campuses. The dean spoke of achieving better control of the budget and doing a better job of attaining funds from the private sector. He was also excited for the opportunity to build a connection with the Academic Student Success committee.

He brought his presentation to a close by stating that he hopes to aggressively promote the various resources, and more specifically the people, in the library and Learning Commons. To paraphrase him, the students have not used their resources to their fullest potential.

This presentation was followed by another one from Dr. Curtis. He asked the Senate to encourage students to take the time to register for Fall classes. According to him, as of last Friday, less than 50% of eligible students, on the Armstrong campus, have accessed their Georgia Southern account, let alone began to formulate a schedule for the coming semester.

Dr. Curtis demonstrated an understanding that the process will be difficult for students. However, enduring the process is necessary to register for classes and to find any other problems with the system. IT representatives are presumably posted in every building such that problems could be addressed during an advisement session, such as problems with the RAN numbers. He conceded that communication has been poor at the top levels leading to broken communication lines with students.

The Senate has followed through on their proposed assistance with a Spanish class from last week. They formally presented a write-up in support of the reinstatement of Spanish 4030.

Heroes Night is to be held April 11th at 6:00 pm in the Student Union Ballroom.

Jepson Center Presents New Exhibit “Grounded”

DANIELLE KENNEDY
STAFF WRITER

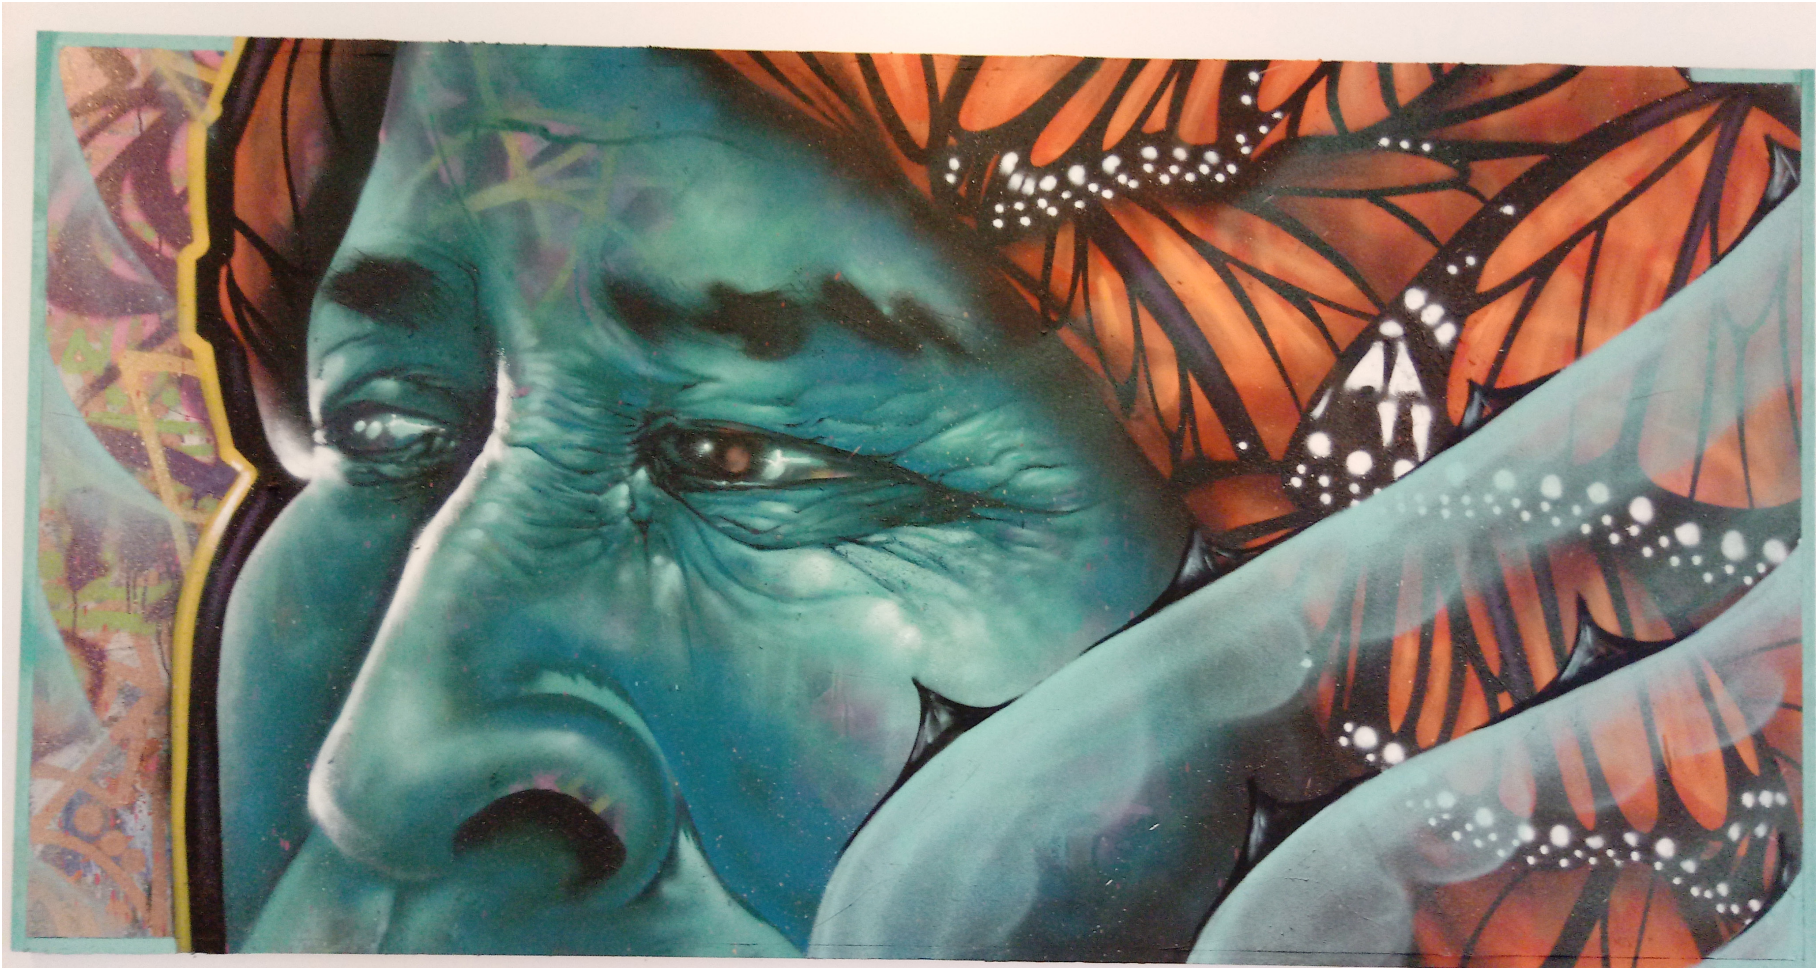

The Telfair Museums’ Jepson Center will be showcasing local artist Aldolfo Hernandez Alvarado’s work with the exhibition “Grounded” now through Aug. 19.

Alvarado’s exhibit is by nature autobiographical and showcase an abstraction of his childhood. He was born in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. His vibrant and colorful environment clashed with the graphic violence that plagued his hometown. He started drawing and painting because he was an active child and his mother would get him to draw to focus.

His family then moved to El Paso, Texas and as he got older he found himself getting into trouble at school for his drawings. For example, he once drew a war scene and his teacher thought that there might have been problems at home, so they called his mom and she grounded him; which is where the exhibit title came from. It became a pattern that continued into high school.

In high school, he started getting into graffiti, a practice which jumpstarted Hernandez’s cycle of delinquency and eventual artistry. A high school art teacher started a mural program at the school the same time he was getting involved with neighborhood gang activity. The program helped him push those activities aside for something he loved doing. This was also the first time that he had picked up a paintbrush.

They started painting murals for other schools and neighborhood businesses, which gave him a sense of community. The program started out with 15 people but by the end there were only three left.

Portrait of Aldolfo Alvarado’s work “Terahumara.” Danielle Kennedy.

The three of them became the Trez Toltekati crew. They stuck together and did commission pieces, which are pieces made at someone’s request, in El Paso. Their last work was for a Texas gallery. The curator encouraged them to gather a portfolio and apply for SCAD.

In 2002, all three of them got accepted into SCAD. Alvarado said when he was there, El Paso had the second most murals with Los Angeles being the first. He had managed to put his creative stamp on El Paso but was shocked when he came to Savannah.

When he wanted to paint a mural in El Paso, he would usually just talk to the business owner and it was an agreement made between two to four people; however, here in Savannah, he would have to go through a committee and acquire permits. He explained this is one of the reasons that he started doing smaller works on canvas.

He would like to get a mural festival going where they would have local artists and muralists come together to do a mural on a building somewhere in town.

Alvarado gave some insight into one of his pieces, “Terahumara.” The Terahumara are an indigenous group of people that live in the area where he grew up. They are like monarch butterflies because they are transitioning to and from communities and are consequently known as “the running people.” They participate in marathons and are seen throughout the city. The butterfly represents the migration.

Monarch butterflies travel from, for example, Mexico and then make their way up the U.S. and to Canada. One generation starts this journey, the next generation picks it up, and carries it on until they make it back to the original place.

Alvarado stated, “people are the same way, we all migrated from somewhere. We all have an original place where we come from. To even learn about it is pretty awesome and one of the reasons you see wisdom painted in the woman’s eyes of the “Terahumara.””

He uses his unique talents to combine calligraphy, Mesoamerican symbolism, and graffiti with a layering technique that is breathtaking.

To see some more of Alvarado’s works around town you can go to Treylor Park, Jason’s Deli, or The Flying Monk to catch a glimpse of art pieces from a man who takes violence and turns it into stimulating pieces that invoke meaningful conversations.

What to Watch this April

CHARITY WILLIAMS
WEB EDITOR

It’s finally April which means that there is only one more month until summer vacation! With final assignments and projects piling up, it may seem like your personal time is greatly diminishing. However still, it is okay to take breaks every now and then and you can use that time to catch up on what’s new in entertainment, and this edition of What to Watch provides just that: new entertainment in the month of March. Remember to finish strong and enjoy the rest of the semester!

TV

Returning shows: Returning to television at 10 pm on April 3 on FX is season 2 of “Legion.”

Freeform recently began airing season three of “Shadowhunters” at 8 pm on Tues. nights.

If you were a fan of “Jersey Shore,” then you will be glad to hear that it’s coming back. “Jersey Shore Family Vacation” premieres at 8 pm on April 5 on MTV.

In its final season, Fox’s “New Girl” will be back at 9:30 pm on April 10.

For science fiction lovers, “The Expanse” will return at 9 pm on April 11 to Syfy.

If you’re in need of another zombie drama, AMC’s “Fear of the Walking Dead” will be back at 10 pm on April 15.

The CW’s “Supergirl” returns to television at 8 pm on April 16. “Vampire Diaries” spinoff “The Originals” returns at 9 pm on April 20 on the CW.

HBO’s “Westworld” will be back for its second season at 9 pm on April 22.

Emmy winning “The Handmaid’s Tale” will be back on Hulu on April 25.

New shows: New to television is science-fiction thriller “The Crossing”. It premiered at 10 pm on April 2 on ABC. It is about refugees from the future coming back to the present to seek asylum.

Comedy series “The Last O.G.” starring Tracy Morgan and Tiffany Haddish premiered at 10:30 pm on April 3 on TBS. It follows an ex-con who learns how different the world is after 15 years in prison.

For Netflix, science-fiction series “Lost in Space” will premiere on April 13. It is based from the 1965 series of the same name and follows a family of space colonists whose spaceship lands on an alien planet.

Movies

If you have been waiting for a good scare, then wait no more because premiering on April 6 is “A Quiet Place.” This movie stars John Krasinski and Emily Blunt as parents who must protect their family by living in silence in a world inhabited by creatures who use sound to hunt down their prey.

Also premiering on April 6 is the comedy “Blockers” which stars John Cena and Leslie Mann. It is about a group of parents who try to stop their teens from having sex on prom night.

Set to release on April 27, “Avengers: Infinity War” will feature worlds colliding as Marvel superheroes team up to stop Thanos from collecting the Infinity Stones. This superhero mega movie will star favorites such as Robert Downey Jr. as Iron Man, Chris Pratt as Star-Lord, and Chadwick Boseman as Black Panther.

Music

Also, be on the lookout for these new album releases. Hip-hop artist Cardi B’s new album “Invasion of Privacy” is set to be released on April 6.

Country artist Jason Aldean will release his new album “Rearview Town” on April 13.

R&B artist Janelle Monáe’s album “Dirty Computer” releases on April 27.

Why not take a break from all the studying and catch up on some shows, movies, and music! Let us know what you think and feel free to write for us!

Promotional artwork for “Avengers: Infinity War.” Courtesy of Marvel Studios.

Promotional photo for the latest season of “New Girl.” Photo from CinemaBlend.

CAMPUS VOICES:

What is your favorite conspiracy theory?

“The Great Pyramid Conspiracy”

Tiarra Erby
Psychology

“The Mandela Effect is really cool.”

Alex Quach
Biology

“Truthism, look it up.”

Timmy Eller
Art

“The dark box theory.”

Keeley Johnson
Computer Science

“The Mandela Effect like with the Bearstein Bears.”

Ben Asghar
Biology

Save the Oasis, save the world! “Ready Player One” Review

MADISON WATKINS
A&E EDITOR

One of the greatest directors of all time, Steven Spielberg went back to his action-adventure roots with “Ready Player One,” which was released last weekend.

Spielberg usually manages releasing a new movie every year but the past few years they have been, apart from “The BFG,” drama or nonfiction pieces that get Academy Award attention. This film is more like the action-adventure movies he has done earlier in his career that made him famous, such as Indiana Jones, “E.T.,” and “Jurassic Park.”

“Ready Player One” is based on a book written by Ernest Cline about a future where an open-world virtual-reality game called the Oasis is the focus of everyone’s lives. When the creator of the game dies, a message from him is sent out to everyone saying that he hid three keys in the game and whoever finds them will get the final easter-egg and win complete control of the Oasis.

The film centers on teenager Wade Watts, played by up-in-coming actor Tye Sheridan, and his group of friends who try to find the keys before a well-known corporation gets to them first.

I’m going to go ahead and say I have not read the book, so I will not be making the debate of whether the book is better. I have read that Spielberg and other sources have said they wanted to go in their own direction with the material, so it is safe to assume there will be some differing concepts between the book and film.

I really enjoyed this movie. While the storyline was not groundbreaking or something I have not seen before in a film that centers on a hero’s journey, it was still commendable. I went into it simply expecting a fun film about a video game that includes a lot of pop-culture references and I was not disappointed.

The Oasis as a set-piece was great creative idea. It was so interesting to take in the environment as Wade’s avatar Parzival drove the DeLorean from “Back to the Future” in races and hung out in clubs with Deathstroke and Harley Quinn. After a few minutes of watching a scene that took place in the real world, I was wondering when they were going to go back in the game, so I could see what other references popped up next. I already want to see the film again just to take in everything I may have missed the first time.

I will also say that all

Poromotional poster for “Ready Player One.” Courtesy of Warner Bros.

fans of the 1980 film “The Shining” need to go see this movie just for one sequence. The main group of characters look for one of the missing keys inside the film and the effects were incredible. All the scenes taking place in the Oasis were done with motion-capture and visual effects and it really looked like the characters were on the original film sets.

However, where the film excels in visual effects and dialogue, it lacks in character development. While main character Wade did have a backstory, he did not really have much to overcome. Since the quality of life in the real world kept going downhill, people were using the Oasis as a more extreme form of escapism and the message of the film was face reality and don’t have your life revolve too much around entertainment. I don’t think Wade really changed that much or learned how to face reality.

The antagonists of the story, a CEO played Ben Mendelsohn and his head of security played by Hannah John-Kamen, also seemed very one-dimensional. They were very dedicated to their jobs and wanted to find all the keys by any means necessary, so they could control the Oasis and have all the power. The Oasis is the focal point of everyone’s lives so from a business standpoint it makes sense because that’s where all the money is. Their characters just didn’t have much else to go off apart from that and it’s something you have seen in countless movies before.

Overall the movie is still worthy of praise. If you don’t go into it expecting a masterpiece and just want to have a good time, you will enjoy it. So, for those of you who are interested in video games, the 80s, or pop-culture in general, go check out this movie! Because who doesn’t want to see the Iron Giant, Lara Croft, and King Kong all in the same place?

“Ready Player One” is now in theaters nationwide.

Scan here to listen via Spotify.

TITLE	ARTIST	ALBUM
+ The Distance	Cake	Fashion Nugget	19 minutes ago	3:00
+ I Will Possess Your Heart	Death Cab for Cutie	Narrow Stairs	18 minutes ago	8:26
+ Bukowski	EXPLICIT Modest Mouse	Good News For Pe...	14 minutes ago	4:15
+ Good To Sea	Pinback	Autumn of the Ser...	13 minutes ago	3:12
+ Your Ex-Lover Is Dead	Stars	Set Yourself On Fire	10 minutes ago	4:16
+ The Moneymaker	Rilo Kiley	Under The Blacklig...	10 minutes ago	2:51
+ Human Sadness	EXPLICIT The Voidz	Tyranny	7 minutes ago	10:57
+ Tears In The Typing Pool	Broadcast	Tender Buttons	7 minutes ago	2:12
+ Desire Lines	Deerhunter	Halcyon Digest	5 minutes ago	6:44
+ Suckers Shangri-La	Lower Dens	Escape From Evil	4 minutes ago	4:57

ADVENTURE | PG 1
ways to minimize human impact to the environment. According to NOLS, this includes “leaving what you find” to restore the environment back to its original setting for other visitors. Even though it is tempting to pick up a rock and keep it for personal matters, it is recommended to just take a photo with that item. Spears also showed campers how to prepare instant and healthy camping meals including “Gadoo-Gadoo Spaghetti”, a classic Ramen Noodle recipe topped with Peanut Butter sauce and other spices. Campers were very impressed with the texture and feel of the recipe. Furthermore, students got a chance to hike down the North and South Rim trails to get a better view of the awe-inspiring and breath-taking Tallulah Gorge. Now that Armstrong has consolidated with Georgia Southern University, students may now participate in the adventures programs offered by both the Statesboro and Savannah campuses. Southern Adventures, Georgia Southern’s Outdoor Adventures Program, has offered many exciting trips to its own students such as Rock-Climbing, Sea-Kayaking, and Canoeing. Collins stated, “I’m excited to see special perks like these along with free printing and access to other special programs and events being offered to students across all three campuses.” While this year’s expedition served as Spears last trip as a graduate assistant, she is confident that the next graduate assistant will provide students with more great experiences of the outdoor world. “I have enjoyed seeing students multiple times on my trips” Spears stated. “I would like to see Southern Adventures partner up with the new graduate assistant and offer a shuttle bus for students to commute to trips on both campuses” Spears added. As employers implement tougher guidelines into the job recruitment process, it is important that one participates in as much programs and activities as possible to not only benefit themselves internally but to also build a well-rounded profile to present to employers. Collins stated, “Accolades are nice, but experiences shape you.” The best advice Roddenberry could give to incoming students is “to be involved and do as much as you can to put on your resume.” It is imperative students take advantage of opportunities like these to build experiences and possibly connect with others that can help them in their educational career. More information about upcoming trips for the remainder of the semester may be found on the Armstrong website.

2018 Masters Tournament Preview

ETHAN SMITH
SPORTS EDITOR

As most Georgians know, the first week of April is always special for Augusta, GA. The annual Masters Tournament at the Augusta National Golf Club is here once again, and thousands of fans from around the world will crowd into Augusta for the week-long event that never fails to excite and amaze many. Here is a preview of the 2018 Masters Tournament.

Tiger Woods. To be very simple, he seems to be getting back to his old form. Woods has four top 25 finishes in his last 5 events over the last three months, with his best finish being second place in the Valspar Championship. When Tiger is on his game, the sport of golf immediately gets better. His game is so smooth when he is on it, and due to his recent success, he is the betting favorite to win the tournament in Las Vegas, so Tiger Woods has the chip on his shoulder once again.

Augusta National Golf Club Clubhouse. GolfChannel

Reigning champion Sergio Garcia finally got his hands on a green jacket last year as he looks to possibly do so again this year, even though it is highly unlikely. Only three players have ever won back-to-back years, Jack Nicklaus, Nick Faldo and Tiger Woods, who happen to be some of the best golfers ever. Many players have won the tournament multiple times, but it is rare that a player wins back-to-back.

Of course, the mix of young phenoms is still present. Bubba Watson is young but is a seasoned veteran who has a win under his belt. Jordan Spieth won in 2015 and has come close to winning multiple times, so he will be looking to obtain another green jacket. Rory McIlroy has yet to wear a green jacket in his amazing young career. Numerous young golfers have won the tournament, and for many, The Masters has been a springboard to an amazing career.

Speaking of springboards, I believe this could be yet again a year where a young, basically unknown golfer to casual fans pops out of nowhere and wins the tournament. A name to watch out for is Daniel Berger, who is making his third appearance at Augusta National Golf Club this year. He finished top 30 in his first two appearances and has a knack for showing up at big tournaments. He is currently ranked 59th in the FedEx Cup Rankings, but with experience on the course, I believe the 2015 Rookie of the Year can make noise in this year’s tournament.

As for the weather, which always seems to be a factor during the tournament, Thursday and Friday are slated to be beautiful days while Saturday has rain in the forecast. Sunday returns to beautiful form in the forecast to end the tournament. The greens and fairways will also be points of interest, so we will see how those fair for the players as well.

My prediction for the 2018 Masters Tournament will likely surprise most. I believe Justin Rose, the English golfer who lost to Sergio Garcia in a playoff last year will come back fighting for the green jacket but will once again fall short. Jordan Spieth is coming off of his best finish of the season at the Houston Open, and I believe he will ride the momentum to yet another Masters victory.

My predicted top ten is as follows: Jordan Spieth(W), Justin Rose, VJ Singh, Tiger Woods, Daniel Berger, Hideki Matsuyama, Henrik Stenson, Dustin Johnson, Adam Scott and Justin Thomas.

Tookie Brown - NBA Star in the Making

Junior Guard Tookie Brown. GSU Athletics

ETHAN SMITH
SPORTS EDITOR

As many Georgia Southern students who were invested into GSU’s basketball team this year, Junior G Tookie Brown was not only the best player on the Eagles, but one of the best players in the Sun Belt Conference and the NCAA.

On March 28, Brown took to Instagram to announce that he was declaring for the NBA Draft, “I would like to start off by thanking god for allowing me to be in the position I am in. After many prayers and talking with my coaches and family. I’ve decided to declare for the 2018 NBA Draft. I will not hire an agent so I can keep my eligibility at GSU #HailSouthern #GodsPlan”

By not signing an agent, which is a smart move, if Brown is not drafted, he can return to GSU for his senior season. So, I thought I would take the time to review his GSU career as well as his chances to succeed in the NBA.

Tookie Brown, if he indeed does leave for the NBA, will be regarded as one of the best players to ever play basketball for the school.

In three seasons, Brown was selected to the All-Sun Belt first team every year. Over those three seasons, Brown averaged 17.93 points per game, 3.6 assists per game and a 45% field goal percentage.

This past season, he was top 10 in the Sun Belt in scoring while also being awarded a finalist for the Lou Henson Award, which goes to the best mid-major player throughout the Division I basketball season, both which are amazing feats.

As for his measurables, Tookie Brown is 5’ 11” and weighs about 181 pounds, making him an undersized guard. The average NBA point guard is usually 6’ 2”, so he is under the average by about three inches. To note, many undersized guards have succeeded in the NBA. For example, former Celtics and now current Lakers G Isaiah Thomas stands shorter than Tookie at 5’ 9”, with about the same skillset in terms of scoring.

I would compare Tookie Brown to more of a Speedy Claxton-esque player. Claxton was the same height as Tookie Brown and both are fast guards who love to penetrate the paint and stretch the floor with their mid-range shot. Claxton didn’t have the three-point shot that Brown does, but each player still has a similar playstyle.

In terms of Brown’s success in the NBA, it is hard to tell because his scoring ability is superb, but his size may hinder him enough for scouts to lean away from him. Brown did amaze throughout the year and in the Sun Belt Tournament, but his logical draft stock is either mid-to-late second rounder or undrafted. The draft is also far away, so he has not been able to showcase his speed in the combine.

If Brown is drafted, he would be the sixth GSU player of all-time to be drafted and the first since 1989 when F Jeff Sanders was drafted by the Chicago Bulls. It’s a win-win situation for Tookie Brown, he either gets drafted or come back and stars for GSU in his senior season, so we will see how it pans out for the young star.

Upcoming Events <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Heroes Night will be held April 11th from 6 - 8pm in the Savannah Ballroom- Members First Credit Union will be holding Adulting Session 101 “Budgeting Best Practices” April 3rd from 11-12pm in Skidaway Conference Room- SGA Elections will be taking place April 2nd - 4th an email will be sent out to your student account.
RSO Allocations <ul style="list-style-type: none">- After this week’s allocations SGA will no longer be having RSO hearings. Thank you to all the RSOs that requested this school year. We were able to fund 68 events!
Amendments and Resolutions <ul style="list-style-type: none">- A25: “New Cord/Stole Policy” was passed by Senate this week.- R15: “Replacement of Chairs” was presented this week by Business and Finance committee
*For more information on these please visit the Armstrong campus SGA webpage for the complete document.
New Representation <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Chaienne Tucker - Senator Town Hall <ul style="list-style-type: none">- This week, SGA hosted a Town Hall meeting on April 2 that answered questions about the new consolidation including academics, the new IT systems for Armstrong Campus students, and the MWF class structure.
*For more information about the Town Hall Meetings make sure to email our SGA President at sga.president@armstrong.edu or our Secretary at sga.secretary@armstrong.edu

GOT AN OPINION? WE WANT TO HEAR IT!

CONTACT:
CHIEF.INKWELL@GMAIL.COM
ABOUT WRITING AN OPINION PIECE

ALL VIEWS WELCOME!