Korean Training Center Directed by Dr. Pittman

Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, president emeritus of Georgia Teachers College, took over his duties as director of the Teacher Training Center at Seoul National University in Seoul, Korea, at the official opening of the center August 3.

The Teaching Training Center is to provide Korean teachers who are unable to go abroad an opportunity to work with American educators in learning advanced training techniques.

The center, sponsored jointly by a special U. S. Congressional appropriation and funds from the South Korean Interim Government, is staffed with twenty educators from the United States who will act as consultants to teachers and administrators from all provinces in South Korea.

Greeting the Korean teachers with whom he will be working until December, Dr. Pittman said: "It is our purpose to teach in a democratic way. We do not propose to force any particular method of instruction upon Korean teachers. Rather, it is our purpose to show how certain matters are handled in the United States and hope that you teachers will choose those ideas which will be helpful in your educational system. It is the hope of the American teachers that we may share our ideas and ideals with you."

Considered one of America's foremost educators, Dr. Pittman has been closely associated with teacher-training activities in various parts of the United States for the past 43 years. He received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Millsaps College and the University of Oregon, respectively. He obtained a Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1921.

With the facilities of the teachers Training Center located as a part of the Seoul University buildings, Dr. Pittman comes in close contact with Dr. Chang Lee Bok, president of the university. Dr. Chang, one of Korea's distinguished educators, received an M.A. degree at Columbia University and a Ph.D. at Duquesne University, Duquesne, Iowa.

Miss Newton Recuperating

Miss Hester Newton, associate professor of history and social science, is at her home in Screven county recuperating from a throat operation performed at the Oglethorpe Hospital in Savannah August 19.

The date that she will begin teaching is indefinite. Meanwhile, Mrs. W. W. Mann is conducting her classes.

Renovation Nears Completion On Administration Building

Major work on the administration building will be completed by the first of next week, President Zach Henderson has reported.

Painting of the classrooms, which have been completed, will begin within the next few days. This will be the climax of a program which was started during the summer for remodeling the classrooms and offices of the administration building. The project will not be completely finished until the beginning of the winter quarter, but the classrooms will be finished and ready for use within the next few days.

New type fluorescent lighting fixtures will be installed in all classrooms at an approximate cost of eight thousand dollars. The entire cost of the renovation will run well into $60,000. This money was set aside by the regents some two years ago, but, because of shortage of materials and labor, the work was only recently started.

The gym will not be completed until after the first of the year because of extensive work that is taking place. The locker rooms, laundry rooms and the dressing rooms are to be located downstairs, while the offices and classrooms will be in a new section of the gym which will extend sixteen feet toward West Hall.

The dining room will receive no small share of the repairs taking place on the campus. The purchase order for a new five-section steam table has been received and the table is expected to arrive shortly.

One hundred steel chairs have been ordered for the rooms in Sanford Hall. These will replace the folding chairs now being used. The bathrooms at Sanford Hall are scheduled for renovation at an early date, work probably beginning during the Christmas holidays.

Innerspring mattresses have been ordered for the beds in West Hall. It is planned to have these mattresses in all dormitories as soon as funds are received.

Dean Carroll Reveals New Schedule Plan

Less Saturday classes are in the offing for T.C. students this fall, with the first coming Saturday, Dean Paul Carroll has announced.

He stated that this does not necessarily mean that each of these week ends will be classified as the regular quarterly "long week end" and that no classes will be held on Friday afternoon. It merely means that there will be no Saturday morning classes on these week ends unless further information is given.

As yet, there is definite information about the abolition of the stagger system. Careful consideration is being given this matter and the system of having these free Saturdays is more or less an experiment to determine whether or not the stagger system will be continued, Dean Carroll stated.

A NEW DRESS FOR THE GEORGE-ANNE

The George-Anne appears this week with a different make-up from that previously used. Your comments on this change will be appreciated.

T C Enrollment Soars To New All Time High

Over 700 students are enrolled at Georgia Teachers College for the fall quarter, Miss Viola Perry, registrar, has announced. October 4 is the last day for registration, and the final enrollment will be announced as soon as possible.

Teacher Lab Sets Record

The number of students in practice teaching this year is larger than ever, Dr. T. C. Little has announced. There is a total of 36 for the fall term.

Six of these are in Social Science, 5 each in Commerce and Industrial Arts, 4 each in English and Physical Education, 3 in Home Economics, 1 each in Science, Math, and Music, and only two are practicing elementary teaching. At Statesboro High School there are two each in Physical Education and Industrial Arts, and one in Science.

During the winter quarter there is a total of 47, of which five are elementary student teachers, and 11 of the 61 during the spring quarter are elementary student teachers.

At this time the largest enrollment in the history of the college has been recorded. Contrary to reports elsewhere, the number of veterans enrolled is also on the increase.

The former residence of Dr. Ralph M. Lyon has been taken over to accommodate the overflow from Sanford Hall. The boys have named their dwelling "Lyon's College", with Charlie Milliken presiding as "King of Lyons." There are at this time ten Lyons, who, Aunt Sophia says, are moving back into Sanford Hall as rapidly as vacancies occur. They have all the conveniences of the dormitories, with five rooms occupied and two baths. Preparations are now being made to convert the living room into a study.

Local Frog Makes Good

T.C. students have the opportunity of hearing one T.C. alumnus who croaked himself to fame, by listening to a record album belonging to Dr. Malvina Trussell of the Division of Science.

The alumnus in question is a Statesboro bullfrog immortalized in a voice recording made by Professor A. A. Allen, of the Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology when he was on the T.C. campus in April, 1947.

Cornell is assembling a library of natural sounds, and the Statesboro bullfrog croaks not only along with the chirpings of birds, but those of mammals, amphibians, and insects.

William K. Wyant Jr., writing in The Atlanta Journal, laments, "Fame has come too late for the Statesboro bullfrog. No doubt he has since been swallowed up by the obscurity of his Georgia pond or by the frying pan. But his voice will live forever."

CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS BEGIN ENTERTAINMENTS

The Wesley Foundation and the Baptist Training Union, campus organizations, got off to a good start entertaining TC students Friday night. The Wesley Foundation entertained with a party, and the B.S.U. with a barbecue.

WELCOME, FRESHMEN!

THE GEORGE-ANNE WANTS TO JOIN the chorus of welcomes and congratulations ringing in the ears of you freshmen to bid you another sincere and unperfunctory welcome.

We welcome you so enthusiastically because you make up in one way a unique freshman class. With the least number of veterans among you of any class since the war, you more nearly approach a "normal" pre-war freshman class.

The George-Anne, of course, holds no brief against the veterans. No one in his right mind does. But the tenor of college life has been changed by them. The change has not been for the worst. Veterans have brought with them a seriousness and purposefulness that have been a credit to both themselves and the college. But these men are older, more mature; many already have families.

So we give the veterans their dues. The school has benefitted from their consistently high standards, and school life has been changed by the veterans. And of all these changes there has been only one (and the veterans are not at fault) that perturbs us. That is the loss of school spirit.

The veterans had outgrown it. Coming to college was not a novel thing for them. They respected the school, but they lacked the temperament to wax enthusiastic at "going to college."

On the other hand, we expect you freshmen to wax enthusiastic at being here. Chances are that coming to T. C. is your most exciting experience to date—you have not already spent four years at the ends of the earth. Enthusiasm is pillowed on naivete. Being naive may not be fashionable at the moment, but there is nothing in the world wrong with it, and there are those who enjoy it immensely.

We hope you will not try to camouflage your naivete and your delight in new experiences with an absurd cloak of affected suavity and sophistication. The individual who has "been around and seen it all" is as discredited and outdated as that line which begins with a nervous smile and the revelation that "of course, we are in modest circumstances, but my grandfather was quite wealthy."

You may find a few sophomores who got off on the wrong foot as freshmen and think they are the last word in sophistication, but you are likely to find that our seniors with intelligent perspectives see themselves as country boys and gals who have come to town and are having a wonderful time.

You are younger than the veterans who have dominated the spirit of the last few classes preceding yours, and you are entitled to a greater youthful exuberance. We expect to see it demonstrated. We are grateful to the more mature freshmen of the past few years for giving the death blow to such puerile college practices as hazing. College is no place for puerility, but there is no better place for the young, and we expect you to be young and act young.

You should be serious? Of course, but only when circumstances warrant seriousness. There are a great many things that warrant it and a great many that do not. Our perverse human nature sees to it that we often apply it inversely. There are too many middle-aged, eighteen-year-old men and too many smug matrons of the same age.

Go into your first class determined to take your study seriously, but above all, temper it with a sense of humor. Remember, you have come to a classroom, not a tomb.

We want you to enjoy your college life. Through a fun- and interest-filled freshman week we have attempted to set you off on a light foot and with a light heart. School spirit will follow as a matter of course. And a healthy school spirit is reflected for the better in all phases of the school's and your growth.

We are not endorsing frivolity—not out of its place, anyway. The world we are going into after graduation is not frivolous. But you can enter that world with a firmer step if it is made surer with a well-nurtured, uninhibited youthful spirit.

Keep young and ebullient. You are entitled to a great deal of persiflage, a lot of hyperbole, and even a little good-natured impertinence.

And be serious when you need to be. There are times to be. There must be others, but, offhand, we can think of only three occasions that call for really deep seriousness—honoring your God and making love and coffee. And even then a sense of humor helps.

Collegiate Cavalcade

By Clarece Murray

Oh, yes, I know, all of you would like to know what's doing up at Georgia U., and particularly you people from G. S. C. W. (good ole Gesse) want to know what goes with the gals, or was it guys? Oh well—it's no dope anyway.

Everyday I rush down to the George-Anne's box. I have forgotten the number but the latch is broken anyway, and what do I find? Yes, nothing. So how am I to know what's going on 'til the news comes through?

Anyway lets you and me, specially you freshmen, exchange a few ideas about our own T. C. standing-room-only campus. You know the inmates just naturally divide themselves into three classes. The freshmen, who are very complacently going about their daily drugery; the so important upper classmen, who are rushing wildly around trying to stay out of everything and still be included in everything; and first yet last the student teachers. Ah, the student teachers, you can spot them a mile off in their white shirts and wilted ties, but I'll leave them for a later issue.

And what are they wearing at

T. C.? That is, what aren't they wearing? What with the blues and greens, and the black and browns, the swirling skirts and screaming ties, the landscape takes on more color than an artist's nightmare. You never can tell about these skirts. One day it's a swing and the next it's a hobble, and they have more lengths than an earthworm on on a fishhook. Be that as it may, but the day the girls start trailing trains I'm going to stop being fashionable. What would a train look like on a rainy day?

There certainly are a lot of talented freshmen on the campus this quarter, and a lot of good-looking ones, too—girls and boys, that is. Just seeing them around makes me feel young again.

Did you ever see such lines before in your life? You line up to eat, to buy books or stamps, to mail letters—you even line up at the water fountain. The Vets say it makes them homesick for the bugle calls. Well, it makes me homesick, all right. Believe it or not, the lines will gradually almost disappear. (I didn't believe it as a freshman either, but it is true).

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Since registration day I have been hearing many gripes, from both Freshmen and Upperclassmen, about many things on Georgia Teachers College Campus.

Possibly many of these people have reason to complain, but there are also many things that these same people could compliment. Among these are the improvements in progress in the Administration building and Gymnasium. The Freshmen also received help and advice from the Upperclassmen during the first few days of school. This was volunteer service, and of much help to these people.

It would be well for all of us to remember, when things are bad that if we will look for something good we will find it and be happier for it.

Sincerely,
Marvin S. Norman

Memory's Visitor

By LORENE WOODWARD

The leaves outside the window stirred,
Not by wind or rain or snow;
But in the quietness there I heard
As the breezes gently blow,
The faint clear note of some new bird.

But to the door I dared not go
For fear he soon would disappear.
His trilling note so sweet and clear,

As I listened from my chair,
Made me open up my ear
To catch his sound wave on the air.

For it seemed I could not bear
To go away and leave him there,
Singing sweetly from the fir.
This memory will go with me
To cheer me through the years,
To comfort me, to help me see
A way to chase the tears,
As time may pass to help me be
A friend to seek, abolish fears
Along the road of life.

WOMAN'S ATHLETIC ASSN. PLANNING INTERESTING PROGRAM FOR THE YEAR

The Women's Athletic Association is planning an interesting program for this year, according to women's athletic director Miss Jackie Upshaw and Miss Betty Jane Trotter.

Basketball, softball, volleyball, tennis, and swimming will be offered. The directors plan to organize teams in order for the girls to engage in competitive games. They urge all girls who are T. C. students, whether they live on the campus or in town, to join the organization, participate in the activities, and earn points toward a W.A.A. letter.

A new constitution is being drawn up, and in the near future the first meeting will be held, which time new officers will be elected.

TALL TIMBER

By BUSTER JOHNSON

Upon my arrival at "T.C.", I was amazed to see people standing gazing upward. After several questions, which I know were rather foolish, I was able to understand this sudden urge to gaze upward. Being a person of rather short stature, I thought I had just gazed upon the mythical giant in "Jack and the Bean Stalk." On second look I realized that it was just another member of our student body. Upon questioning him, I was soon able to find out a little about his past history. His name was James Walker, who hails from Irwinton, Georgia, which is about 100 miles and 173 stops by bus. James is better known to his friends as "Soda Pop." Where this name came from, I, for one, don't know. James went to school last year at G.M.C. in Milledgeville and decided to come to Teachers College. He likes all sports and is just crazy about the girls. If you have been wondering how tall he really is, I'll let you in on the correct height of "T.C.'s" tallest. He towers some 6 feet and 10 inches above the ground, or some inches above the average male animal at "T.C."

James isn't the only tall man we have on our campus. Walter Meeks towers up into the heavens with a height of 6 feet and 4 inches. His home town is Ludowici, Georgia. Walter agrees with James that all sports are wonderful and the girls are an important factor in his life.

Next in line is George Roebuck, who joined our happy family last summer. His previous schooling was taken at Brewton Parker. His home town is Canton, Georgia. George likes all sports, and is married.

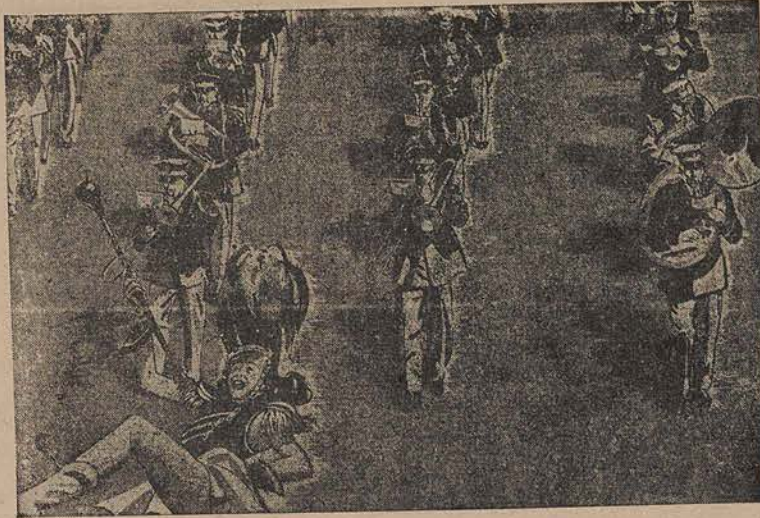

Our last tall personality, and we'll agree that he possesses a wonderful one, is Ben Overstreet, who hails from Wadley, Georgia. Ben is 6 feet and 3 inches tall, with a definite yen for all sports.

Ben won the state title in the Class "C" division last year with the shot putt and discus. He will make a great contribution to our basketball team this year. Ben, being a godd looking boy, is interested in the girls.

We have others here at "T.C." who are in the six-foot category, including the Conner brothers, Clyde Poole, and others that you have all seen and know. So, fellow students, when you go home for the week end you can say with a straight fact that things are looking up at "T.C."

Careful where you put your books down. A student was struck on the head when a book fell from the second floor newel post last week.

Here's Your Chance
... TO GET IN THE BAND!

SEVERAL VACANCIES are now open in the Teachers College band for students who wish to enjoy participation in an organization that offers fun and self improvement, and reflects school spirit in a way that nothing else can. Prof. Rassmussen, band director, has announced that several new instruments have been obtained for band use, and asks that all interested students apply to him for placement in the band.

Speaking Of Wishing, Take A Student Center

By JAMES A. JOHNSON

There is no greater need on our campus than that of a student center. With the ever-increasing enrollment of students, it is clearly shown that we, the students, need a larger place to spend our leisure hours. How long have you stood in line to get your early morning "coke"? How long has it been since you've found a vacant table and chair to rest and discuss that date with your best girl? How can we get a student center here at "T.C."? Let's think about these questions for a little while.

Many is the time that I have seen a line with as many as 45 to 50 students waiting for that bottle of milk or that pencil that Margie hands out. I've seen you all at one time or another standing out on the porch or sitting on the ground outside for lack of seating accommodations. Surely, if the class rooms would not hold all the students taking a course, some action would be taken whereby enough space to take in all the students could be obtained. This is not true, however, when it comes to putting out a little money for the student's few spare moments. We can have a student center here at "T.C.", but it will take work and much effort from every student on the campus.

It is possible that our Alumni approached on the matter, might donate enough money to get things rolling. It wouldn't at a tremendous sum to build a suitable building. The "T" Club of the campus has started a drive to raise money for the erection of a student center. It can be if the interest that has already come up does not fade. I and, it can be done with the allied efforts of every student on our campus.

Our colleges, smaller than we have much nicer places for as it canteens than ours. Our office takes up more room than the book store. It is crowded and hot. The most practical argument that could be made of our little store is that it is

Saturday's sophomore-sponsored dance, preceded by the student council dance the week before, started the fall quarter Saturday night dance calendar. Sponsors for succeeding dances are as follows:

October 9—No Saturday classes.
October 16—Physical Education Department.
October 23—Sanford Hall.
October 30—No Saturday classes.
November 6—Junior Class.
November 13—East Hall.
November 20—West and Lewis Halls.
November 27—Thanksgiving.
December 4—Veterans.
December 11—Faculty.

wholly insufficient for the needs of the students.

In closing, I urge each one of you to take an interest in this project, to consider the needs of the school, to talk this idea up among the students and the alumni of the college. And when asked to help in this project, give all your effort to it. This is for you, and you should support this project. We need a student center, we will work for a student center, we will have a student center.

Whether You Twitter or Guffaw Try to Make It on Yourself

By FRED A. McLENDON

It has been said many times that the most valuable jewel is the diamond. This might be true, but is a diamond the most valuable possession? No, there are many possessions that are more valuable than diamond. The most priceless possession a man can have is a well developed personality which includes a sense of humor. This alone builds up all the great characteristics in man.

A good sense of humor is treasured by all men who have a well developed personality. To be able to see fun and laughter in life is certainly a great asset. In the course of years it will prove to be more valuable in our search for happiness than the diamond.

However, we must not make the mistake of thinking that everyone who can laugh has a good sense of humor. People may have one of the two types of a sense of humor: The kind that issues forth laughter only when the joke is on someone else, or the kind that lets him laugh at himself as well as at the other fellow. The latter is, by far, the more desirable.

First, let us see what is the value of the sense of humor that allows you to laugh only when the joke is on the other fellow. I had a roommate once who took great delight in playing practical jokes on his friends. One bright, spring day I jumped out of bed feeling like a young hen immediately after she has laid her first egg. With songs bursting from my lips, I began to dress. Everything was in perfect harmony until I began to brush my teeth. If any of you boys have ever had your mouths washed out with Octagon soap (and I'm sure most of you have) and thought it was bad, I can tell you something that has a much more rancid taste. I was startled to find that someone had squirted shaving cream into my toothpaste tube. I got a rich, foamy lather, and my roommate emitted a roar of hilarious laughter. The joke was on me. A few nights later, my roommate was greeted by a "short sheet" and a bed full of salt when he stretched out for his nightly beauty rest. Of course, I was completely ignorant when asked if I knew who had performed this provoking deed. If my roommate could have gotten his hands on the lowdown son-a-so-and-so who put salt in his bed he would have murdered de bum! "There's no sense in anyone acting like a darn fool," was his idea of the incident. The joke was on him. This is the undesirable type of a sense of humor that loses friends and causes many hot arguments. This is the kind that tends to tear down character rather than build it up.

Next is the type of sense of humor that enables one to laugh at himself as well as at the other fellow. This is exhibited and possessed by the greatest personalities. Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain, two of the world's greatest humorists, could laugh at themselves as well and as heartily as they could laugh at the other fellow.

To a man who had proudly said, "My ancestors came over in the Mayflower," Will Rogers retorted, "My ancestors were waiting on the beach."

Mark Twain, when confronted by people who were haughty about their ancestry, was fond of saying, "My grandfather was cut down in the prime of his life. My grandmother always used to say that if he had been cut down fifteen minutes earlier, he could have been resuscitated."

"What made the greatest impression upon you," inquired a friend one day, of Abraham Lincoln, "when you stood in the presence of Niagara, the greatest of natural wonders?"

"The thing that struck me most forcibly when I was at the Falls," Lincoln responded with characteristic deliberation, "was where in the world did all that water come from?"

A person who can boast a sense of humor such as these great men had certainly has something to boast about. Whereas, the person who can only display a sense of humor when the laugh is on the other fellow has nothing to boast of. A good sense of humor is a priceless possession as long as it remains a possession. One who has no control over it will soon find that it is no longer a possession but an obsession. When it reaches this state one would be better off without it, but if it is kept under control it is a valuable possession. Think it over next time you laugh.

T. C. PHILHARMONIC CHOIR BEGINS REHEARSALS

The G.T.C. Philharmonic Choir, under the direction of Dr. Ronald J. Neil, started rehearsals Thursday night.

The program for the choir this year includes the annual Christmas concert which will be held at the end of the fall quarter. The oratorio that was selected for this year's performance is "The Seven Last Words of Christ," which succeeds Mendelssohn's "Elijah," given last year.

Miss Nita Rowell, former student and later instructor in the Lab High School here, visited on the campus last week end. Nita is teaching physics in the Cochran High School now.

Another T.C. alumnus teaching at Cochran is Joe Anderson, who is also coach. His wife, the former Eleanor Smith, is teaching in the elementary school.

Ruby Parrish, who was elected president of East Hall for this year, decided just before school started that she liked the title of Mrs., much better than that of Madame President. She is Mrs. A. H. Croon Jr. now. Norma Cowart is president of East.

Don Coleman and "Stinky" Hall chose to stick near T.C. They are teaching in Statesboro High this year. Don is in the industrial arts department, and "Stinky" is coach.

Several T.C. couples took that fateful step this summer. Betty Rowse and Ed Sheppard said their "I do's" in the month of August. Marwood and Doug are Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Daniels now.

Rhed Prosser is coaching in Waynesboro. His football team won its first game. He seemed very proud when we saw him on the campus last week end. His sister, Myrt, is teaching in the business department in Newnan. She visited on the campus last week end, too.

GREEN'S GALE

By MALLARD GREEN

I would like to welcome the new face that appears on our physical education faculty—that of Assistant Coach, J. I. Clements. Mr. Clements is a native of Ray City, Ga., where he graduated from high school in 1939 with an exceptional athletic record. In the same year, he began his college career at Norman Junior College, where he lettered two years in basketball and baseball. While at Norman Junior College his coach was a little fellow with a big voice, J. B. Scearce.

Following his graduation, Mr. Clements took over as coach at Naylor, Ga., where he remained until January, 1942, when he resigned in order to take a position as principal at Adel, Ga.

In September, 1942, Coach Clements accepted the position as head coach at Wadley High School, where he remained until September, 1943, when he went to North Georgia College as assistant coach to a little fellow with a big voice, J. B. Scearce.

After serving one year at North Georgia College, Mr. Clements answered the call of his country and joined the paratroopers. He served with the 82nd Division in Germany until 1946. Upon his discharge, Mr. Clements enrolled in Eastern Kentucky Teachers College, where he received his B.S. in physical education in December, 1947. Without interruption, he continued his education until August, 1947, when he received his M.A. degree from Eastern. During these two years, Mr. Clements lettered twice in baseball.

Coach Clements is married and has two children—Caroll, a future halfback, and Jana, who some day will stand on the sidelines and cheer the boys on to victory.

Mr. Clements' position here will be as assistant coach of basketball and baseball, head of the Department of Student Teachers, and education instructor of activities.

On Monday, the "T" Club held its first meeting of the year. This meeting consisted of election of club officers and the introduction of three amendments to the constitution.

Alvin Williams was re-elected as president of the club; Bill Fodrham, re-elected vice-president; Mitchell Conner was elected Secretary, and Tom Dykes, treasurer.

As the new amendments have not been presented to our faculty advisor, they are not available at this time. Keep your eye on the bulletin board, as one of them may affect you.

For those of you who might be interested in becoming a member of the "T" Club, there is only one way, and that is to letter in a varsity sport. So, come on out and take a crack at basketball.

I was unable to corner Mr. Scearce long enough to find out anything about intra-mural camp for the quarter, but I feel sure that it will be a program which will succeed if everyone will take an active part.

As I said, I was unable to corner Mr. Scearce, I would like to explain.

This bit of explanation could be worded simply by writing two words: THE GYM. But, to go a little further, I would like to congratulate Mr. Scearce and all other persons responsible for the coming improvements in that "barn." It has been a sore spot of the campus for many years, but I feel sure that now it will add rather than detract.

Now that the weather has taken on a little chill and we have started digging for our "long-handles", the topic of conversation is football. As I see it, this year's crop of gridmen will be better than last season by a yard or two, and all over the nation the "ole men" are battling to keep young hopefuls from toppling them from their first string berths.

Every issue I go out on a limb and give you my impression of what will happen on the grid-irons of the nation. This is not professional and I do not wish to make any bets, but this is the way I see them this Saturday:

N. C.-U. of Georgia—two.
Vanderbilt-Alabama—edge.
Duke-Tennessee—One
Tech-Tulane—one.
Tulsa-Florida—three.
William and Mary-Wake Forest—one.
Rice-L. S. U.—two.
Ohio State-U. S. C.—toss-up.
N. C. State-Clemson—two.
Muskingum-Weidellbey—one.

Of course you've heard the one about the student, who, taking an exceptionally long test of Mr. Averitt's, predicted he would hand in an Unfinished Symphony; whereupon Edsel Joiner announced his would be the Nutcracker Suite.

FBLC Allies With FBLA

The Future Business Leaders Club will be known in the future as Future Business Leaders of America, Chapter 178, having affiliated with the national organization in June, 1948.

The officers for the forthcoming year are as follows:

Alton Davis, president; Leon Riner, vice president; Joe Williamson, treasurer; Pat Preetorius, secretary; James Rouse Jr., publicity director.

The first meeting of the business club will be held Monday, October 11, 1948. The place will be announced later.

The Business Club will play host to the Georgia Federation of College Business Students Association on November 6.
