Zach's News

December 11, 2008

Georgia Southern University, Zach S. Henderson Library

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/lib-news-online

Part of the Library and Information Science Commons

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/lib-news-online/255

This newsletter is brought to you for free and open access by the Newsletters at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in University Libraries News Blog by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.
GSU Alumna Donates Brother's Books to Library

December 11, 2008

Georgia Southern University alumna Linda Rhodes Groover has donated three books authored by her brother, Don Rhodes, to Georgia Southern's Zach S. Henderson Library: Entertainment in Augusta and the CSRA (Arcadia Publishing, 2004), Ty Cobb: Safe at Home (Globe Pequot Press, 2008), and Say It Loud! My Memories of James Brown, Soul Brother No. 1 (Globe Pequot Press, 2008).

Mr. Rhodes has written the entertainment column Ramblin Rhodes for the past 38 years, making it the longest running weekly syndicated country music column in the United States.

Dr. Bede Mitchell, Dean of the Library, said we are very pleased to receive these gifts, and the books will certainly find a wide readership among GSU students, faculty and staff.

Mrs. Groover (B.A. 1997, M.Ed. 2005) is presently employed with the University of Georgia Cooperative Extension in the Southeast District Office located on the Georgia Southern campus. Having previously worked in Georgia Southern's School of Technology (1997-2002) and the Georgia Tech Regional Engineering Program in both the Statesboro and Savannah offices, Mrs. Groover believes she is the only person on the Statesboro campus who has worked for all three institutions. She also has the distinction of persuading the Rand McNally map company to correctly site Georgia Southern University's location on their maps after two years of correspondence. Beginning with the 1998 editions, GSU no longer appeared as being between U.S. 80 and GA 24, but was instead indicated between U.S. 301 and GA 67.

Posted in Archive, Resources and Services

Tags: donations, donors, gifts
GSU Alumna Donates Brother's Books to Library

December 11, 2008

Georgia Southern University alumna Linda Rhodes Groover has donated three books authored by her brother, Don Rhodes, to Georgia Southern's Zach S. Henderson Library: Entertainment in Augusta and the CSRA (Arcadia Publishing, 2004), Ty Cobb: Safe at Home (Globe Pequot Press, 2008), and Say It Loud! My Memories of James Brown, Soul Brother No. 1 (Globe Pequot Press, 2008).

Mr. Rhodes has written the entertainment column Ramblin Rhodes for the past 38 years, making it the longest running weekly syndicated country music column in the United States.

Dr. Bede Mitchell, Dean of the Library, said we are very pleased to receive these gifts, and the books will certainly find a wide readership among GSU students, faculty and staff.

Mrs. Groover (B.A. 1997, M.Ed. 2005) is presently employed with the University of Georgia Cooperative Extension in the Southeast District Office located on the Georgia Southern campus. Having previously worked in Georgia Southern's School of Technology (1997-2002) and the Georgia Tech Regional Engineering Program in both the Statesboro and Savannah offices, Mrs. Groover believes she is the only person on the Statesboro campus who has worked for all three institutions. She also has the distinction of persuading the Rand McNally map company to correctly site Georgia Southern University's location on their maps after two years of correspondence. Beginning with the 1998 editions, GSU no longer appeared as being between U.S. 80 and GA 24, but was instead indicated between U.S. 301 and GA 67.

Posted in Archive, Resources and Services

Tags: donations, donors, gifts