Election 2018

Oct 9th
Voter Registration Deadline

Oct 15th
Advance Voting Begins

Oct 27th
Saturday Voting Begins

Nov 6th
General Election

As the November 6 election nears, The Inkwell will look into key issues for college students and report back what we find. Today we will be looking at both respective candidates, Stacy Abrams and Brian Kemp, plans for improving higher education within the State of Georgia.

Both candidates have made higher education a crucial component of their respective campaigns with Abrams highlighting affordability and Kemp highlighting expansion and attainability.

Stacy Abrams has highlighted HOPE 2.0, a plan that entails restoring tuition-free diplomas and certificates to students who present a 2.0 or higher grade-point average.

She has also made it aware that she wants to create a plan for savings accounts for children at birth. This lays down a platform for this money to be used specifically towards higher education funds.

Abrams wants to also place five million dollars aside to help students who do not have access to the SAT or ACT. Her plan would make funds available for all public schools in the state of Georgia.

Her plan is set around making college more reasonable and attainable for all Georgians. This plan has been backed by many of her democratic cohorts, gaining traction with young voters as well.

Brian Kemp has stated that money will not fix Georgia's education issues at all levels. He hopes to allow students, especially in higher education, reach their full potential and create a promising future for those to follow behind them.

Kemp has highlighted expanding school choice, allowing students to be able to attain their college aspirations with more options than may be currently at their disposal.

Kemp has continuously fought for equal education in all areas of Georgia, making it known that your zip code should not determine how attainable your quality education should be.

Kemp has pushed to make a solid-working relationship between higher educational institutions and local governments as well as military base leadership and small businesses.

Dreaming: The Foundation of America

By: Madison Watkins, A&E Editor

Latino Heritage Celebration Month is here again! The Office of Multicultural Affairs has planned a wide variety of exciting events for students and faculty to attend both here and on the Liberty campus.

This year's theme is "Dreaming: The Foundation of America." Stephanie Molina coordinator for Multicultural Affairs, stated that this year's theme was chosen by the Latino Heritage Celebration Month planning committee. "We usually go with the national theme [for celebration month] but that hadn't come out yet so we chose one that is relevant to our current times and students on our campus."

The Gracia Roldán Spanish Film Club is having its own film festival in honor of the celebration. The first film screening will be at 2:30 p.m. on Sept. 19 in the Ogeechee Theater. They will be screening "La reina de España" ("Queen of Spain").

There will also be an array of topics covered in faculty lectures throughout the month. One of the lectures will be presented by visiting professor from UNC-Chapel Hill, Oswaldo Estrada. He will be giving a lecture on Frida Kahlo and her influences on us in the 21st century. His lecture will be at 6 p.m. on Sept. 20 in the Ogeechee Theater.

Towards the end of the September, there will be two big events on and off-campus to celebrate Latino culture. One of them is Fiesta Day from 12-2 p.m. on Sept. 27 in the Student Union Ballroom. Fiesta Day is an annual party that has been celebrated on this campus for a long time. It was celebrated "even before we had a whole month to celebrate," Molina commented. There will be different types of food provided, music, dancing, and the well-known card game "lotería."

"It's a day for us to celebrate the culture of Latino heritage with the food and games that create the family environment of the Latino culture," Molina said of the event. The other big event will be Fiesta

Latina 2018 on Sept. 29 on River Street. The event will be run by the Latin American Services Organization (LASO) of Savannah, the Office of Multicultural Affairs will be there to showcase what they offer to the community. Fiesta Latina is an annual festival downtown with live music, food, games, and arts and crafts. "It's a lot of fun and I recommend going if you've never been. It's free to the public," Molina said.

“Blackkkklansman” The Second Best Mission Impossible Movie This Year

By: Daylon Bonner

Renowned director Spike Lee is back with his new film “Blackkkklansman.” The film was based on a true story and takes place in the 1970s. It stars John David Washington and Adam Driver as Ron Stallworth and Flip Zimmerman respectively, who carry out an investigation and infiltration into a chapter of the Ku Klux Klan which operated out of Colorado Springs. However, due to the color of Ron’s skin and his job as a cop, Flip Zimmerman must impersonate Ron for the investigation to be successful. This is a good film and probably one of the Lee’s since a long time ago.

I did not expect this film to be as funny as it was. The banter between Washington and Driver was simply hilarious. The scenes in which Flip must impersonate Ron stand out the most. The set up that a Jewish man must play a black man impersonating a white man is funny on its own but is helped by an earnest portrayal by the actors.

Speaking of the actors, Washington killed it in this role. For those who may not know, he is the son of Denzel Washington. He more than holds his own in the film and makes the character his. His interactions over the phone with the Klan leader David Duke are worth the price of admission alone. The film’s dialogue is vulgar mind you, but the sarcastic delivery makes said lines endearing.

Driver holds his own as well. His facial expressions are one of the most memorable aspects of the film. When he is among the police force he has a more expressive face and is more jovial, yet among the Klan, his face is almost emotionless. Obviously, he is uncomfortable being among people he does not agree with and does not want to be found out. I think it was a slick choice to go with a near emotionless face among the KKK given his circumstances.

There are two problems that may bother people in the film. While I do not know all the facts behind the real story, I can ascertain that some of the movie was embellished to make it better for the screen. This is a problem with most films based on real events, but I can see potential problems with the distortion of history given the subject matter.

The other criticism is that the runtime is felt in this film. The scenes before the plot escalation are not bad but could have been shaved down in favor of adding to the main thrust of the story.

This next one is not necessarily a problem but is something I noticed. I acknowledge this may be grasping at straws, but I wanted to know a bit more about the character Flip. He is a cop who openly identifies himself as Jewish despite not growing up in an overtly Jewish household. This creates within him some internal conflict. I know he is not the main character of the film, I just thought something interesting may result from this conflict. The same is true of the character Ron. He is a cop integrating the force and trying to infiltrate the KKK without being discovered. He is also a black cop who is trying to change the system without becoming the system. This could have been explored a bit more in depth. I guess he got some measures of catharsis towards the end of the film, but the victories did not feel that noteworthy.

Lee has crafted a solid film. There may be some executions problems, but I enjoyed it nonetheless. “Blackkkklansman” gets an eight out of ten with a definite recommendation.

We Were Promised Sushi

By Dan Hayes

Armstrong campus students continue to be fed a lot promises regarding Eagle Dining Services that have so far led to nothing but empty stomachs.

At the end of last semester Armstrong students had six different options for dining on campus; The Galley, The Perk, The Pirate’s Pantry, World of Wings, Quiznos Subs and Navigator Grill. This semester there are only three options for dining: The Galley, The Perk, and Gus Mart (previously Pirate’s Pantry).

The two empty dining spots in the MCC are currently being renovated to become a Starbucks and Chick-fil-a. In the meantime, students are forced to choose between The Galley, The Perk or Gus Mart.

This is a struggle for students not on the meal plan. “I opted out of the meal plan,” says Brandy Main, Secondary Education major. “I didn’t realize there was going to be no other options than The Galley.” Adding to the struggles for on-campus students is the fact that Gus Mart has less fresh food options and closes much earlier than the Pirate’s Pantry did.

The Pirate’s Pantry had a wide selection of sandwiches, salads, yogurt parfaits, etc. available for purchase and was also open until 11 p.m. on weekdays and 1 a.m. on the weekends. Gus Mart has little more than gas station fare, closes at 8 p.m. and is not open on the weekends.

“Students who live off campus don’t have many options” said Caitlin O’Hearn, English Literature major. She is right.

I myself would frequent the Pirate’s Pantry last semester, either grabbing a quick sandwich on the way to class or on the way home. I would often enjoy a lunch at World of Wings. But now I am forced to eat at either the Galley or Gus Mart. The Gus Mart has nothing and I don’t want to buy a meal plan.

But wait...there’s more![ it gets worse]

Eagle Dining Services would like us to wait some more as they renovate the food truck and begin renovations in University Hall for Sushi with Gusto. With such few options, the campus is forced to do nothing but wait.

Where is the Live Music in Savannah?

By: Laura Weyman
The Jinx

From country to hip-hop to alternative to metal, this funky venue puts on shows that fall all over the music genre spectrum. This is perhaps one of the most reputed music venues in Savannah and has been alive since the early 2000s. This stage is where successful and native Savannah bands such as Black Tusk and Kylea come play when in town.

The Wormhole
Located in the center of the Starland District, this dive bar and music venue arrived long before the neighborhood became the Little Five Points of Savannah. You can never be sure what kind of live shows will be hosted on this stage. Many local artists of all genres perform there regularly, but The Wormhole has also hosted names as big as Dick Dale, the king of surf rock.

El Rocko Lounge
This 60s themed bar is decked out in gold from ceiling to floor and offers a variety of specialty cocktails such as their famous Scorpion Tea that is noted to be quite heavy on bourbon despite how smooth it goes down. El Rocko hosts live music shows all week long and is a great place to go dancing late night since their live shows are typically followed by a DJ set.

The Sentient Bean
This little coffee shop hosts a variety of events all throughout the week and is a great option if you are underage. It is always open to all and hosts traveling bands that are bound to satisfy a variety of musical tastes.

Barrelhouse South
Located right next door to The Jinx on Congress street, this bar is made up of two levels. The top floor is where the stage and main bar are located, while the bottom floor has pool tables and a second bar in case the band playing that night isn't what you're into. On the stage, you will most likely find bands that fall somewhere under the southern rock, reggae, funk, electronic, classic rock, or blues genres.

Weekly Forecast with the Nihilistic Astrologer- I Was Going to Print All the Horoscopes But Then I Thought, What's the Point?

Starting today, Saturn switches direction from retrograde into direct status and puts forward motion in Capricorn. What the H*** does that mean, you ask? Well I'll tell ya, you better brace yourself and strap on that seatbelt because it's gonna be a rough ride! Or don't, because you know what's more meaningless than life and death? Astrology.

Anyway, supposedly it means that all your dirty secrets will be uncovered this week. You'll luck out if you have been playing a clean game, but we all know Gemini's are constantly weasel-ing their way through life. By secrets being uncovered, I don't mean that booger graveyard that exits under your driver's seat or you cheating on your last biology test. I mean that lie you've been building your entire existence around in order to trick everyone into thinking you're a decent human being.
