Slight Drop In Enrollment For Winter Quarter

Enrollment figures for winter quarter show a total drop of 24 students from last winter's 545 regular students. Viola Perry, registrar, revealed this week that there are 521 regular enrolled students attending T. C. winter quarter.

It was disclosed that there are 238 men, 232 women, 63 vets, and 13 out-of-state students. The freshman class dominates the number of side attendance. There are 186 frosh, 114 sophomores, 104 juniors, and 117 seniors. 38 students are new on the campus. Only three students transferred from T. C. to other colleges. The drop in number of students was caused through normal withdrawals and the inability to return this quarter.

These figures do not include night of evening classes.

Auditorium May Be Ready for Use

Whether or not the auditorium will be ready for use by Wednesday night concert time is still a big question mark, but college officials are hopeful.

Dr. Henderson said the final shipment of the remaining parts of the seats are due Monday. "If the shipment gets here on time, we should have them installed in time for the program Wednesday night," Dr. Henderson said.

The initial shipment of seats arrived Monday and installation was started then.

If the installation is complete Wednesday, the Joseph Battista piano concert will be held in the college auditorium instead of the Lab School, where it is now scheduled.

Winter Quarter Schedule Set Up; Recreation Featured In Cone Hall

Something new will be added in the way of week-night entertainment here at T.C., it was revealed this week when the winter quarter social schedule was released by the social committee. The recreation room in Cone Hall will be open every Monday and Wednesday evenings to both boys and girls. Girls are invited from 6:15 to 7:45. A combo will be furnished by the music department to provide music for dancing. The recreation room is also equipped with card tables and ping pong facilities.

Miss Ida Long Rogers, dean of women said that study hall for the girls will begin at 7:30 instead of the usual 7:00 on

Unusual Animals Now Appear In Ad. Building

Unusual specimens of animal life have made their appearance in the basement of the ad building. Although a great many of the creatures present a ferocious countenance, they don't bite, and they don't bark, and are absolutely harmless, believe it or not.

The collection is almost as complete as Noah's Ark, but they don't come in pairs. All varieties of dogs may be seen, ranging from dachshunds, setters, polka-dotted hounds, to very rare and obscure breeds. There also may be seen ducks, turkeys, squirrels, crocodiles, turtles, red and white polka-dotted pig, wild eyed billy goat, and a purple—no, it's not a cow, it's a real gone giraffe. One creature that especially fascinated me, is a case of "you name it and I'll build a cake for it." It is gray with black spots, short tail and legs and ears that stick up. It has lovely blue eyes and a white beard. You really have to see it to appreciate it.

All these animals are in real life the products of the imagination and creative genius of the people taking art 304. It is hard to realize that they started with waste materials, old newspapers, paste, and paint, and they managed to turn out such unique examples of art work. Knowledge of this sort of handicraft will come in handy as these elementary education majors will tell you. They will be able to teach their future pupils how to fashion similar objects in one class period, using easily available materials.

DR. ZACH S. HENDERSON, president of Georgia Teachers College, will introduce one of the main speakers at the joint inauguration ceremonies of Mercer University and Wesleyan College in Macon, Saturday, at 10:30 a. m. Dr. Henderson will present Dr. Everett Snively, executive director of the Association of American Colleges who is one of two outstanding and internationally acclaimed leaders in education appearing on the program. The other speaker is Dr. William Fletcher Russell, president of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Date Changed For Review

"Winter Wonderland," the eighth annual Beauty Review, is now scheduled for the night of February 12 in the college auditorium.

Work will proceed as originally scheduled and rehearsals will be held as announced.

Music Dept. Rated As One Of The Best

Georgia Teachers College music department received a letter this week from the Music Educators National Conference stating Georgia Teachers College has been selected by the "Music for the General College Students" committee as one which is "outstanding" in making music a definite part of life.

T.C. was reported as being the general college student's rated in the highest ten per cent of the institutions involved.

Florida College Presents Concert

The choir and glee club of Florida Southern College, Lakeland, will be presented in concert at the First Methodist Church, Saturday night, February 6. The choir is directed by Dr. Charles Woodbury, and will be returning to Florida after a tour that will have taken them as far north as Washington, D. C.

The performance will be at 8 p. m. No tickets will be sold, but an offering will be received for the choir. All students are asked to support this, as it is sponsored by the T. C. Wesley Foundation.

Announcement

If there are sufficient students interested, a bus will be chartered to go to the basketball game at Mercer University, Thursday, January 28. Girls will be permitted to go to the game only if they go and return on the chartered bus.

We have to guarantee bus company the expense of the trip, therefore, it will be necessary to have 40 paid passengers by Monday, January 25. The cost per passenger will be $4.00. Bring your $4.00 to the office of the dean of women by 3:30 on Monday. The bus can be chartered only if we have the money by Monday.

IDA LONG ROGERS,
Dean of Women.

Lenfesty Speaks

Fred Lenfesty, associate professor of education, will speak to the Statesboro Lions Club next Tuesday at a "Guest Day" luncheon.

The powerful Georgia Teachers Professors quintet was hitting on all cylinders Thursday night as they ground out an 81 to 67 triumph over the slightly favored Mercer Bears of Macon. The Professors grabbed the lead from the Mercer five in the first few minutes and kept up a torrid pace throughout the first half, being led by the one-hand push shot and great rebounding of Boney Phillips and the shooting of Jim Harley, Chester Webb and Horace Belflower, each of which hit in the double-digit column for the first period.

The Bears of Mercer drew first blood as they gained a 3 to 0 lead in the first minute of play, but two successive goals by Webb and Phillips erased that lead. The Teachers College scoring machine then began to produce and by the end of the first quarter they held a 24 to 13 lead. Throughout the second quarter the professors kept gaining ground as they apparently solved the hard pressing Mercer defense and they held a 49 to 28 lead at halftime. Throughout the game the Mercer pivotmen were kept in check by the three-two zone thrown against them by the Professors as many would-be Mercer shots were stopped by Phillips and Webb.

The pace of the game slowed a great deal in the last half as Mercer gained a few points on the Professors. The Mercer offense was led by Mixon throughout the game as he annexed 22 points to lead the Mercer scoring. Game scoring honors went to T.C.'s center, Chester Webb, who had 25 points and played a good rebounding game as well. Next in line in the T.C. scoring was Phillips with 16, Belflower with 15, and Harley with 13.

Reid led the Mercer defense with his five ball-hawking throughout the game.

Tally Conducts Tailoring Course

Miss Sarah Talley, state clothing specialist from the University Agricultural Extension Service at Athens, conducted a special short course in "simple tailoring" at the G.T.C. economics division Tuesday.

The program, planned especially as a training session for home demonstration agents, included instruction and illustration in all phases of simple clothes making.

Attending were Home Agents Mrs. Dorothy Whitehead, Bulloch county; Miss Joyce Blocker, Screven county home agent; and Miss Mattie Hilton, Appling county home agent.

A similar leader training short course is scheduled here March 2, and plans were laid yesterday for clothing programs in each of the three counties represented.

Welcome Newcomers

We welcome new individuals who have chosen Georgia Teachers College as your choice to seek a better education and raise your standards of living and morals.

Whether you are a transfer from another institution or whether you have just decided to attend college we offer you one of the most friendly college societies in existence.

Here at T.C. we like to carry the pride that no one is an outcast. If you new students will just intermix casually your chances of acquiring many friendships, that you will cherish for a lengthy period of time, is enormously high.

Some of you will find it hard to adjust socially, but if you carry the open mind attitude with you it will be quite easy for you to secure a worthy position in our social structure.

The students and teachers again roll out the carpet with bold face letters that say WELCOME.

An Objective Well Accomplished

The scheduled recreational period in Cone Hall recreation room for both boys and girls is a welcome addition to the social side of our campus.

The idea of this new entertainment was first proposed by the Student Council after Dana King of the music faculty offered to furnish a combo, for week-night dancing. Then the social committee, a group of representative students, acting as a sub-committee of the Student Council, worked out the plan with the assistance of Miss Ida Long Rogers, dean of women.

The Student Council and the social committee hope that all T.C. students will enjoy this new entertainment. It should be an answer to that ever present question, "What is there to do around here?" Both the Student Council and the social committee say this is only a beginning, but they are constantly and diligently striving to improve and increase the student entertainment and activities here at T. C.

The Editor Speaks

It has kept up its consistency of happening every time. If you want to collect a sure bet, just place your bet on it anytime.

"Our boys" dropped a couple of basketball games they should have won and the cheering section has dropped them right at the moment they needed boosting most.

I don't think the action displayed by the team has been up to par, but they are "our boys" and they always represent T.C. extremely well. I hold firm belief that they have contributed as much to the progressing success of T.C. as any other factor involved. Yet, when their artillery misfires when it shouldn't have, the students plague them instead of giving out with support.

There are a few who stick with the team come what may, but the larger portion act as though some sort of whammy has been served up to them when the squad doesn't quite live up to its expectancy.

Why yell your head off for a losing cause? Just ask any athlete and he will tell you that he can perform at a much higher efficiency of some support is given. It is not a glory hound attitude he will express, but he appreciates knowing he has the support even more, if it is supplied when the chips are really down. This applies to the Professors in the same manner.

One thing that really makes me burn is to see the students booster the squad when they are winning and when the going gets rough, they fail to give any inspiration at all. That is what has happened at T.C. For a good example, when the powerful Quantico Marines landed, and they certainly had everything well in hand, the students didn't support "our Team" at all. Then when the Professors came through to rack up the Mercer Bears everyone was on their toes trying to raise the gym roof. Sure it is good to urge them on when they are winning, but they really need it most when they are on the long end of a score.

If you students aren't consistent with your support, how do you expect them to retain consistent play.

Homecoming

May Prove Itself As A Busy Event

How will we ever live through it? It's just too much! How could it happen this way?

And just what is this horrible catastrophe? Why—the week before Homecoming, of course! That Thursday night there is a ballgame. Friday night comes the Beauty Review, and it just so happens that those two nights are the only times we can work on floats in the warehouse. It also just so happens that there are classes to attend. (They go on for ever!)

If you think you are busy now—just wait till then. Of course, you can always close your eyes and say "no" a thousand times and you'll be able to stay in the dormitory—by yourself!

There have been several suggestions heard as to what should be done. One suggested that after the ballgame we would go to the warehouse and work on floats all night. Then sleep all day Friday—or at least until afternoon. Then—to the warehouse again—until time for the Beauty Review. After the review, more work in the warehouse. That leaves a minor little item, like classes, out for Friday.

Of course you can't sleep on Homecoming, so—you'd better stock up on vitamin pills, and be prepared to prop your eyes open and go your merry way.

Book Report

HEIDI

By Johanna Spyri

This book is one of the best loved children's books today, yet it appeals to adults as well. Probably the reason for its appeal to adults is the setting, which is in beautiful, scenic Switzerland. Each description which Miss Spyri uses seems to make the snow-capped mountains of this European country alive, and they invite one to read farther to get all the magnificent beauty and splendor which one can get from word pictures.

Young children enjoy reading the book because of the outstanding characters which are on their own age level. The book follows the exploits of a little girl and her friends atop one of the Swiss Alps. There is a note of adventure and excitement intertwined in the pages of Heidi's everyday life in the realm of the natural works of nature in Switzerland.

Whether one is a young person or an adult, there is something for each in such a heart-warming story of an innocent child, if one will only pick the book up and begin to read. Once one gets into the plot and setting of the book, he will not be able to put the book down until the last page has been read. Whether one wants to read for pleasure, or whether one wants to take a dream trip to Switzerland, Miss Spyri has provided for each in this, her story of Heidi.

Public Opinion Poll Answers

In trying to create interest in social activities on campus, the following poll has been administered: What and how are some ways and means that a better, more entertaining social life can be attained here at T. C. using the existing facilities.

Carlton Humphrey: "One thing I've heard mentioned more than any other is the fact that such a great number of people leave school to go home on weekends.

"The excuse these people give is that there is nothing of interest going on over the weekend. They're right, but there could be something of interest happening. We have a fine band, but have a dance only occasionally. I would suggest all the dormitories getting together and "rolling back the rugs" every weekend. The dormitories could take turns acting as host. And this includes the new boy's dormitory. They have ideal facilities which will probably never be used.

"All intramural sports have failed because of lack of interest among students who couldn't actually participate in them.

"It seems to me that the problem lies in the seeming phlegmatic attitudes of the students. We will have to improve T. C.'s social life. No one else is going to do it."

Dan Hutchins: "You don't have anything without Saturday classes, unless you have it during the week. Everybody goes home, you might get participation but not success."

"Bub" Denham: "I don't know of anything that can be done with the facilities that exist now."

Jerry Silverman: "My opinion is that we should do away with all activities here because they don't want it. Maybe if they didn't have any activities they would want them and attend."

"Sylvia Griner: "A Sunday afternoon movie, a good one, maybe a foreign film, would help."

Etta Anne Akins: "There aren't too many existing facilities to work with. Maybe some sort of recreation and dancing in the gym might help."

Mary Alice Jones: "I think we're doing pretty good for a school this size. If you want to and take part in everything there seems to me that there's plenty to do."

Lorene Brown: "By giving more parties and for everybody to attend those given. I think the dance after the ball game was enjoyed by the majority that was there."

Shirley Morgan: "By having more dances and parties on weekends. Have something different. I think that being allowed to stay out later for a dance is better also."

Warnell Denmak: "I can think of no better way for the student to get acquainted than being brought together at least one hour nightly. This, at present, we do not have. A few years ago the students could go to the gym and dance for an hour or so—with the new recreation center in Cone Hall and a fine floor in the gym why can't we pull together and appoint someone to consult the faculty on behalf of the student body in bringing about more friendship hours of recreation. Being the gym and the Cone Hall recreation centers are the only means of having indoor sports why in the thunder can't we do something about it. By the way, who does the gym belong to anyway?"

A Question of Doing or Not Doing

This week the Public Opinion Poll was not a question of being or not being, but a question of doing or not doing.

It may seem that the above statement is merely a simple paragraph placed in its position to add some humor to this column that most people consider very boring.

Beneath the surface of this simple statement exists a complex arrangement of thoughts. The poll question was: "How and what are some of the means and ways that a better social life can be attained at T.C. with the present facilities." This proposal was inspired by Ida Long Rogers, Dean of Women, who has been greatly interested in improving the social life on campus.

It is truly a position of doing, or not doing that we hold here at G.T.C. Everyone knows we need more facilities, but we know there is a very slim chance of acquiring all these necessities in the immediate future. Thus it is left up to us, the students and faculty, to make the best we can of the present existing materials.

If anything is to be accomplished the students must acquire the desire to have better campus activities, plus supplementing it with a great amount of cooperation.

A perfect example of this combination is the activities that are to take place in Cone Hall. The students wanted the activities and undertook a campaign to secure them. Results were the administration was glad to see the objective through.

Professors Lick Hapless Alabama Teachers 90 to 68

The Georgia Teachers College five got back in the win column last Saturday night at the expense of a hapless Jacksonville Alabama State team by a score of 90 to 68. During the first few minutes of the game the score remained fairly close but late in the half they had run up a 48 to 31 lead. Webb led the first half scoring for T.C. with a 15 point effort. Warren and Belflower followed closely with 12 and 10 respectively. Waldrep had 12 for Jacksonville State at the half and wound up with a 34 point total.

Big George McLeod got on a wild scoring spree last Thursday night against Thornton's team and racked 46 points, as Genevrino's team stomped Thornton by a score of 92-36. McLeod could score at will over the hapless opponents as he scored 32 points the first half of the ball game. Brown was the only player on the losing team to get in the double column by shooting 12 points. Genevrino's and Childs got 11 and 10 points respectively.

Lamb Eases Out 55-50 Victory In First Contest

Intramural basketball started off with a bang Thursday night with two games being played.

The first game was a close one as Lamb's team eased out a 55-50 victory over Allen's Tumblebugs. The affair was a close one all the way, with the victors not more than 11 points ahead at any interval during the contest.

Perry scored 12 markers to lead for the winning team, but Thompson, who did not score in the first period, came through to capture the scoring honors with 15 points. Silverman and Brannen sank 14 points each. Forehand netted 11 points to be the only other player to get into the double column for the Tumblebugs.

The Georgia Teachers Professors suffered their worst defeat of the season at the hands of the powerful Quantico Marines led by ex-All-Americans "Peerless" Paul Arizin and Richie Regan by 101 to 87 score last Friday night. The Professors grabbed a quick 4 to 0 lead but from there on out it was Quantico all the way, with Arizin and Regan continually posing a threat.

Quantico led at half-time by a 55 to 36 score. Jim Harley led T.C.'s first half scoring effort with 11 points but center, Chester Webb was high with 13 markers for the Professors. Boney Phillips was the only other T.C. player to score in the double-digit column for the game.

Both coaches cleared the bench in the last half with every player on both squads seeing action.

Wesley Group Sponsors Many Student Interests

By VIVIAN COWART

The Wesley Foundation on the campus is the religious organization for Methodist and any other interested students. Every week they hold a meeting at Forum Hour at the Statesboro Methodist Church. Mary Flanders is the president for this year but because she is away practice teaching, the vice president, Cherrell Williams is leading the organization. Cherrell, Cathy Holt, and Anelle Dent have just returned from the National M. S. M. (Methodist Student Movement) conference in Kansas. This is only one of the many activities which Wesley Foundation members can attend. Others are M. S. U. state meeting, a retreat every spring at St. Simon's Island, and the coming peace conference. Anyone who is willing to put something into this organization can get a lot out of it.

Probably the most distinctive achievement for this year will be the redecoration of the Sunday school classroom at the church. The Methodist students have their own classroom and select their teacher for each quarter; Miss Ida Long Rogers is the teacher for this quarter. Miss Rogers and a student committee went to Savannah last weekend to choose materials and color schemes for the room and it is going to be quite a renovation.

The Wesley Foundation has never been anywhere or done anything but what everyone had fun. If the entertainment isn't
