CHANGES COME GRADUALLY but surely on the GTC campus, so gradually that we sometimes don't take time to notice them. This picture panel, however, illustrates considerable improvement completed or started on the campus last year. These four buildings represent three-quarters of a million dollars in construction. Top left, is Cone Hall which was opened last year. Next to it is the new home for the president which was occupied only this summer. Bottom, left, is the nursery school which was opened last year. And bottom right, is the gymnasium which is under construction now and slated for completion (we hope) early next year. Incidentally, the construction is now much further along than when this photo was made last June.

Masquers Plan 'Bernardine' As Fall Production

Masquers has written for production rights for "Bernardine" and tentative plans are under way to present this play as the fall quarter major production, according to Miss Dorothy Few, play director.

"Bernardine" is a delightful story of teenage boys, written by Mary Chase, author of the familiar "Harvey." Dramatists Play Services describes "Bernardine" as "An understanding and warm-hearted comedy about real growing youths and the relations between them and grownups."

"Bernardine" was chosen because of its humorous lines and situations and because Masquers read it with so much enjoyment," says Miss Few. The reading was held Monday night after a regular Masquers meeting.

The play requires 13 boys and six girls in the cast, and calls for five different, stylized scenes.

"Bernardine" is a new play, and was first produced in New York in 1952. It is not definitely known whether production rights are available. If so, Miss Few issues an invitation to all students interested in dramatics to try out for a part. All talent is needed for a production requiring such a large cast and so many changing scenes.

Excerpts from "The Happy Time," by Samuel Taylor were also read, but difficulties of

'Rat Revue' Date Set for Nov. 5

Plans for the annual "Rat Revue," freshman talent show, were discussed at the first meeting of the Zeta Omicron Chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Monday night.

The event will take place November 5 in the college auditorium.

All freshmen with musical talent are eligible to participate in this program. Entrants will be judged in vocal, instrumental, or piano performance and a one-quater music instruction scholarship will be awarded to winners in each of the three fields.

Plans Set For Dorm Services

Plans for the Student Christian Association activities during fall quarter were made at the SCA meeting last week.

Included in these plans was a tentative schedule for Evening Watch and vesper services in the dormitories. According to this schedule, each denomination will have charge of the services in each dormitory for a period of one week.

The SCA is the coordinator of all religious activities among the different denominations.

all characters developing the same French accent made this selection impractical.

Social Science Discussion Held Tuesday Night

The plan for a series of informal discussions for social science majors was inaugurated at the home of Dr. T. B. Alexander Tuesday night. Eight seniors majoring in social science attended the first of these weekly seminars. The topic discussed was segregation of races from early history down through the recent Supreme Court ruling regarding segregation in our schools.

All social science majors are invited to participate in these Tuesday night gatherings. Dr. Rogers will be host for the meeting held at his home next week. Transportation will be furnished.

Enrollment Is Settled at 583

Final enrollment figures as released by the office of the registrar show an increase over last year. The total enrollment is 583, with 306 women and 277 men.

The breakdown by class shows the freshmen class in the lead with 105 women and 113 men, making a total of 218. The sophomore class comes next with 90 women and 57 men, a total of 147. The junior class has 54 women and 63 men with a total of 117. The smallest class, the seniors, numbers 101, with 57 women and 44 men.

GTC Class Officers For '54-55 Are Nominated By A Revised System

Nominations for the senior, junior and sophomore class officers were made this week. Under the new nomination system, which was used for the first time last year, each nominee must have received two nominations to be eligible to run for office. The election by-laws, which stated that each nominee must receive five nominations to be eligible to run for an office had to be adjusted since there were fewer nominations than had been expected.

Lab School PTA Meets Oct. 13

The Laboratory School Parent-Teacher Association met Wednesday night. The parents went to class rooms for 30 minutes where the children told of their various activities and studies. From there the parents were conducted on an organized tour of the building. The meeting was then held in the auditorium while the children saw movies in the gym.

A Product of Faith

Two long awaited dreams of the Student Council and students are about to become a reality; music in the dining hall and coffee in the "Blue Tide."

Tomorrow an 18 watt amplifier and ten speakers will be installed in the dining hall proper and a 45 rpm record player and a hand mike will be placed in Mrs. Melton's office. At first, music over the record player will come from a two hour and 15 minute album of incidental dinner music. Later more records will be provided by the Student Council. The mike will be used for announcements and none of the equipment may be moved.

Chase and Sanborn's instant coffee, at a nickle a cup will be sold in the "little store" beginning next week. If this weather ever turns cold, this should be a welcome addition to the various products available at the "Blue Tide."

That's the Way It Is

By CHERRELL WILLIAMS

From time to time some personal opinions of the editor will appear under the title "That's the Way It Is."

To begin in a conversational mood I'd like to tell you about the name of our paper, "The George-Anne." Way back in the dark ages when GTC was an A & M school and had only male students, the paper here was known as "The Georgian." When it became coed, the name was changed in honor of the occasion.

While I'm still in a rather light mood I'd like to invite all students to feel free to write "Letters to the Editor" at any time; these letters must be signed if they are to be published.

To get down to brass tacks, or the real subject of this particular column you must turn to the front page of this paper. There you will see a lot about class elections and the results of our peculiar system of nomination of candidates for elections.

With all this activity, now seems to be a good time to discuss the privilege and duty of voting in campus, city, county, state and national elections. Elected officials are almost like the weather; everyone talks (complains) about them, but no one seems to care enough to do anything about the situation.

Sometimes faculty members and a few interested students complain about the lack of interest in student elections, but a quick look at percentages of registered voters using their privileges in national elections, shows that GTC isn't much different from any other place. Of course, the fact that others aren't perfect doesn't make our own sins any less.

Here in Georgia we can vote when we are 18, and making that the voting age all over the nation has been the subject of much discussion during the past few months. However, the primary object of such a move would be the betterment of the country; when students refuse to make a decision among people they know, how can they be expected to make careful choices in state and national contests when they aren't familiar with the candidates.

Rat Squeaks

By BOBBY HOLCROW

Yes, we're still thinking about Mother and that special one back home, but slowly and surely, we're beginning to find our place on the campus at GTC. We're still meeting new freshmen, upperclassmen, and professors. This we're enjoying—but one thing which seems very unnecessary, is the "rat" hats!

We aren't complaining! We haven't been here long but we've learned that the upperclassmen's word is law. You can spot the freshman without his "rat" hat, because he even walks, talks, and looks as though he's still out of place.

We have been here three weeks and still we can't understand the art of how the upperclassmen set the alarm for 10 or 8 and arrive on time for that of 8 and arrive on time for that looking forward to the time when we can be just as "speedy."

Another art which we haven't thought about perfecting is the art of bluffing. How many freshmen will a professor see reading away in social studies baffled, bewildered, and yet interested, only to find out after class he was reading Superman? It just isn't done—not by freshmen, that is! This is a skill upon which we will have to wait until after the first quarter to begin practicing.

One thing which is definitely new to some of us is the gnat invasion! You can very easily distinguish an upperclassman by the way he can talk, blow away the gnats with each side of his mouth, and never change his expression.

Another baffling situation that is facing us freshmen is the way upperclassmen have trained their sleeping habits. One night they make enough racket to keep the whole dorm awake and yet never bother "Mother." We try it and if we are fortunate enough not to get caught, we find we couldn't keep them awake even by tearing down the dorm.

The upperclassmen may think we're still green, but we're slowly learning the ropes. Our first day in class our professors came in and said "Hello." We immediately returned the gesture. Now when he comes in and says "Hello" we write it down.

All kidding aside we're about to get used to this mode of living at GTC and it's real crazy; just like this column.

Believe . . .

"Belief is power! Whenever a man says 'I believe,' and really means it, he lays hold on one of the greatest forces known to man. What a man, and a people, believe, therefore, becomes a matter of the greatest importance. It is important for every person to know what he really believes; also to choose with intelligent care for himself the beliefs that rule his life . . ."

How true the above statement should be to the students of GTC! We should "choose with care" our beliefs and activities so that we will move toward constructive goals. This is a personal responsibility, and each individual must learn to intelligently judge the value of all undertakings. This is the basic step to adulthood.

Round And Round

By BABS WISENBAKER

The girls at East Hall, or a great many of them at least, have really been kicking up their heels this past weekend. It would appear that the girls are having no trouble whatsoever finding places to go and things to do.

One event, speaking of the wedding of Patsy Edenfield, caused quite a bit of activity in East Hall.

The girls who participated in the wedding were Ann Whiddn and Betty Jo McDougald, who served; Sue Cowart sang, June Edenfield was a bridesmaid, and Mickey Addison, a former student of GTC, spent the weekend on the campus and served as a bridesmaid in the wedding.

Girls attending the wedding from East Hall were Jewell Hart, Etta Ann Akins, and Mickie Webb. Mickey spent the weekend in Statesboro with Windel Marsh and attended the wedding from there.

Nancy Rowland spent the weekend on the campus of the University of Georgia, and she attended the game in Athens which was played between Georgia and Texas A & M.

Betty Jean Beasley spent the weekend in Savannah visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Beasley.

Joyce Mitchell was a bridesmaid in the wedding of her friend, Barbara Bray, in Savannah this past weekend.

West Hall girls are managing to find something to do other than going home this year. Socially, they are very busy "little rats."

Rochelle Woodward spent a very pleasant weekend in Thompson with her roommate, Edith Smith.

Jan Whelchel enjoyed a most delightful weekend with her grandmother in Alma.

After a week's absence, due to a dread disease (homesickness), Anzell Powell is again residing in West Hall.

Carlene Usry of Augusta plans to spend the weekend in Savannah with Gwen Shell. While there Carlene and Gwen will attend the Commercial High-Richmond football game.

Jo Gordon is making plans to visit Jo Ann Carroll of Claxton and attend the football game.

The freshmen also have engagement on their list of activities. Wynell Owens, Guyton, has become engaged to Milton Gray of Savannah.

Lewis Hall girls do not sit by and see the upperclassmen have all the fun by any means. The senior girls certainly know how to find and also how to make it.

Last Tuesday night a surprise birthday party was given for Harriet Woodward, who is a junior from Hazellhurst. It can well be said that a good time was had by all.

Three GTC students were among the 65 youth throughout south Georgia that attended the Methodist Older Youth Assembly in Americus August 23-29. The theme of the assembly was "Discovering God's Will and Living By It." Attending were Rachel Powe, Jimmy Snooks and Lewis W. Strickland.

Three GTC students were on the staff of Camp Takodah at Keene, N. H. this summer. They were Larry Evans, Phil Norton and Tom Perry. Gene Meadows was a staff member at Camp Echo Hill in Clinton, New Jersey. Edward Robbins was a counselor at the Jewish Education Alliance camp in Savannah.

Peggy Jones, who graduated from TC last year, visited some of her Lewis Hall friends last weekend. Peggy is now teaching the sixth grade in the Jesup grammar school.

Other visitors to the campus were Mary Jac Ramsey and Mary Dillworth, who are both practice teaching in Vidalia. The girls spent Saturday afternoon last week here and returned to their practice teaching "home" Saturday night.

Rosemary Ammons, former president of the FTA and a 1954 graduate of Georgia Teachers College, is teaching science now at the Statesboro High School.

Several dormitories report some excitement in the form of a campus circuit rider who wanders past the girls' dormitories at night. Although authorities have been alerted to watch for the "night-rider," the case has provided a "break" in the monotony of evening study hours, some of the girls report.

Things at this particular time are certainly going "Round and Round" and where it is going to stop nobody knows—let's hope that it doesn't stop.

On The Clothesline

By NANCY ARMSTRONG

What on earth can I wear today?" or "Why doesn't it turn cold like it should be in October?" are certainly two familiar statements around the girls' dormitories these days. Everyone agrees that even the monsoon season would be better than this in-between weather.

Since it's supposed to be fall though, let's talk about fall fashions and pretend that someday it will be cool enough to wear them.

The man's shirt blouse and white buck shoes are definitely "in" for the season.

This year the new color is avocado green. Hats, gloves, shoes, purses, and just everything is being featured in this color.

A fashion which has been with us for several years, and, by the way one which completely out-modes the well-known Dior is the very practical knit suit. This year the knit dress is making its debut. Many of the new knit suits this year have slightly flared (and some even tiered) skirts. If you have never owned one and are in the market for a basic fall outfit, try a knit suit. They wear like iron and are suitable for almost any occasion. Some styles are being shown with detachable angora collars concealing a knit collar underneath.

Many of the fashion experts are predicting the exclusion of the ever beloved crinoline in the very near future. No matter what they say, we all agree that they should, and very probably will, be around for quite a spell longer. Many girls around the campus have come forth with a unique idea, that of making crinoline out of plastic screen wire. They stand out like mad and certainly don't require starching. A bit of advice to the owners of nylon crinolines from an old veteran of the ordeal in Lewis Hall—never try to starch one of these things 'til they stand alone. At that stage they crackle and pop with every step you take, and cause very embarrassing moments to the uncomfortable victim.

Well, that's about enough for this week. I'd better hang my "close" on this line.

JOE AXELSON

On The Sideline...

The injury list around the physical education division looked like the aftermath of a rough football game last week, but the injured are about back to normal now.

Baseball Coach J. I. Clements was in bed more than a week with what the doctors diagnosed as a herniated disc. He returned early this week and has resumed his teaching duties.

The boy you saw around the campus recently, using the longest crutches in the world, (for the benefit of the freshmen) was basketball center Chester Webb. It seems that large Chester was seining for minnows barefooted a couple of weeks ago, and stepped on a long, sharp stick. Blood poisoning resulted and Chet logged in several days in Bulloch County Hospital. There are those who might say that Chester's long period of recovery was lengthened by the stiff conditioning sessions going on in one of his classes, coaching football, but don't believe it.

Freshman basketball candidate Lou Cunningham, picked up a large blister on each foot after playing too much basketball during registration week. Coach J. B. (Dr. Kildare) Searce moved in quickly with his surgical instruments, and a few days after Lou's screams died away, he was moving around in good style.

Plans are underway for the fall interclass intramural program. The boys will have two leagues, one each in touch football and volleyball.

Fall plans for the girls will be confined to volleyball. Miss Margaret Stanion will be in charge of the girls' program, and Coach Clements will supervise the boys.

Coach Searce has released

Garland Campbell, freshman basketball prospect, just completed a busy few days.

Kessler in States After English Job

Elizabeth Kessler returned to the United States on August 19, from England where she was an exchange teacher under a program aided by Fulbright Funds, U. S. Department and U. S. Office of Education. The object of this exchange program is to promote good relations between the countries.

Miss Kessler was in England for one year, during which time she taught in two schools. The first quarter of the year was spent in teaching in a secondary modern school in Withernsea, Yorkshire. The remainder of the year was spent teaching in a girls' grammar school (a select high school) located in Beverly, Yorkshire where the school year began September 6, and ended July 27.

In Beverly, Miss Kessler found the people to be very friendly and helpful. She said: "Frankly, I hate to leave Beverly."

The English countryside is beautiful, according to Miss Kessler. She says that she now understands just how Robert

Social Committee Plans Activities For Coming Year

GTC has a special committee that is at present engaged in some very interesting work that concerns everybody in general.

It is composed of Etta Ann Akins, Cathy Holt, "Bo" Ginn, Larry Evans, and Phil Norton, chairman. These people make up GTC's social committee. On the shoulders of this committee rests the task of drawing up a social calendar for this fall quarter. A tentative schedule for the dances and other social events has been set. After all details have been completed, this schedule will be announced.

Miss Duncan, the new dean of women, has provided wonderful help in working with the committee. She said that the committee would welcome offers from the various clubs to act as sponsors for some of the forthcoming activities and they

Browning felt when he wrote in Italy, "Oh! to be in England now that Aprils here."

A native of Savannah, Miss Kessler received her A.B. degree from Newberry College, Newberry, S. C., and her M.A. from the University of South Carolina in Columbia. She has done further work at George Peabody College for Teachers.

James Hart was the exchange teacher here while Miss Kessler was abroad.

Rat Caps Now On 'Frosh' Heads

Wednesday, September 29, was a big day for business at the Blue Tide and surprisingly, for us freshmen. RAT CAPS!!

A long line of smiling freshmen were getting their long awaited caps. We didn't have to have them until supper but for safety most of us had them by dinner.

At first we couldn't quite get used to the newness of always wearing a cap but now they have become a part of us. A part we wouldn't dare be seen without until after Rat Day... a day awaited by freshmen with great expectations.

The first few days we noticed the girls matching their outfits to the blue of the caps but it becomes more evident day by day that we have grown rather indifferent to our caps.

No matter what our reactions are to them now they will make good souvenirs of our freshman days at GTC.

would also appreciate any ideas that anyone might have for different types of socials.

Sanford Hall will set the pace this Saturday night with a sock hop. This has become an annual event at GTC and it is always eagerly anticipated by everybody. So, for a real good time this Saturday night grab a date and follow the crowd to the gym. Don't be late and don't miss out on a single minute of the fun that will start at eight o'clock.

More Society...

Gee, they almost left us out. This is news that's got to be printed.

Bobbie Jean Warren had an exciting weekend. She went home like all of us would like to do and then went to Atlanta to attend the fair. Of all things to bring back for a souvenir was a chartreuse monkey. Crazy, huh?

One of the University of Georgia's fans, namely Nan Waters, attended the game in Atlanta this weekend. Much to her dismay, Texas A & M won 6-0.

Two alumni came back this weekend... one to see Sue Marie Collins and the other to see "Ye Ole Campus." Wonder who had the most fun? Just ask Red Harper.

An Evening to Remember

By LORENE BROWN

Wrecks always bring excitement but to have on GTC's campus is beyond comparison.

Saturday afternoon, being the one afternoon of the week that when we go to chow nobody pushes to get in, we just sat calmly until our time came; perhaps because we slept all afternoon and were still walking around in a daze or perhaps because we'd done a week's work in one day and were fagged out, with no ambition left.

After chow everyone visited the post office not really caring if Mom wrote, or if Sue and John had a new addition to the family.

Everyone scattered out then; the boys stood in huddles here and there shooting the bull, some few couples strolled across campus holding hands and most of us girls sat on the steps or on the porches of our dorms, daydreaming of home or of some cute guy on campus for when we have a new crush.

Our dreams were disturbed several times by a kid in a blue-souped-up Model A, as he came flying by, grinning at all the girls. Then it seems that from out of the clear sky Betty Jo Woodward had stopped in front of East Hall to let Watson Weathers and Peggy Henderson out. Just as Watson opened the door to get out, here came the kid in the Model A.

All eyes at that moment were focused on the lad wondering what he was going to do next. "Surely he'll stop, he's got to." But all the screams, ohs and ahs, and even the girls hiding their faces from the horrible scene didn't stop him.

He whirled to the right, just missing a new Ford with a boy and an old man in it, hitting Betty Jo's fender and helping Watson finish opening the door; he whirled to the right again running into the bumper of another car.

Everybody was scared stiff when it was over and especially the kid in the Model A, who said he didn't see the stopped car. I wonder why. Still grinning at girls I guess.

A second after the wreck had happened people were everywhere asking: how did it happen? Are they hurt? Then as in all cases a mystery man came from behind the dorm a few minutes after the wreck who knew the answers to each question asked and who knew everything concerning the wreck.

As the crowd gathered for a cleared view of the cars and of the kid in the Model A, as they kept talking to themselves, each one telling what he would have done had he been in the lad's place, we spotted the mystery man running about campus stopping all traffic telling them what had happened. He became the emergency cop directing traffic and telling of the wreck everywhere he went.

After what seemed hours, the sheriff came and with the help of our mystery man the wreck was over.

The crowd thinned out then going merrily on their way, to study, to the dance or perhaps just to have a big time in general and each carried with him the memory of an exciting afternoon and a vision of a kid in a souped-up Model A.
