Approximately 250 junior college and high school students will be guests here next week.

Monday approximately 30 students from South Georgia College, Douglas, will be on campus. The students will arrive at 11 o'clock and will be under the direction of the student council.

Saturday, December 11, has been set as the date for the annual formal Christmas dance given to the students by the faculty. The dance will be from 8:30 until 11:30 with the floor show starting at 9 o'clock.

Dr. Georgia Watson, professor of education, is general chairman; Dr. Jack Averitt, associate professor of social science, is chairman of finance; and Dana King Jr., assistant professor music, and the Professors, the official dance band of GTC, have charge of the music.

Co-chairmen of the program committee are Roy Powell, assistant professor of English, and Daniel Hoolcy, assistant professor of music; of the refreshment committee, Miriam Moore, instructor of education in the Laboratory School, and Ella Johnson, assistant professor of English; and of the decorating committee, Ruth Lee, instructor

Schedule Set For Pre-Registration

The administration has announced the schedule for pre-registration for the winter quarter.

Registration will be held in the gymnasium Wednesday, December 8, from 9:30 to 11:00.

Faculty members will be present from 10 until 10:45 to initial cards.

Plans are being made by the Women's Recreation Association to play intramural basketball during the winter quarter.

in education in the Laboratory School, and Harold Steele, instructor in biology.

The faculty is in complete charge of all the decorations, refreshments, and the program for the dance.

'Talk of Many Things'

"The time has come," the walrus said, "to talk of many things"—paper, Coke bottles, cigarette butts, coffee cups and other such junk that pollutes the fair GTC campus.

Students who have been here several years will remember Miss Mae Michael, the paragon of the "cleanliness is next to Godliness" virtue. Under Miss Mae's influence, Georgia Teachers College had a much shinier face; students may have gotten tired of being prodded but that system at least had some effect. GTC is not made up of babbling children but maybe a good old-fashioned lecture is needed at this time.

Some public-spirited campus group could sponsor a clean-up program that would save face as approximately 250 prospective students hit the campus next week; however, such a measure would be only temporary. What is needed on the part of the student is a real pride and deep down concern for the school. Pride in a nice looking campus is no different from pride in a winning basketball team, and in some years is much easier to achieve.

The GEORGE-ANNE now advocates the abolishment of the sect known as litterbugs and a self-disciplinary action on the part of each individual to pick up trash that's there and to keep a new layer of litter from being laid down. In other words, don't drop it, pick it up.

'Profs' Cage Season to Open Saturday Night

The Georgia Teachers College Professors will play their first official game of the season Saturday night at 8:30 p. m., when they meet the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia, in the GTC gymnasium. Coach J. B. Searce Jr., has issued his probable starting line-up for the opening game. They are, Chester Webb, team captain and center, Elberton; forwards Jimmy Ford, Augusta, and Ronnie Rush, Savannah; and guards Don Wallen, Wheelwright, Ky., and Howard "Bo" Warren, Ludowici.

Futura Fantasy Chosen Theme Of Ninth Revue

All campus organizations except girls' dormitories and religious groups are invited to enter contestants in GTC's Ninth Annual Beauty Revue to be held February 11, at 8:15 p. m. in the college auditorium. All the girls chosen as contestants must be registered on campus and unmarried.

Evening dresses, either long or short, are to be worn this year.

"Futura Fantasy" has been chosen as the theme and will be used through all four acts. All the sets will be abstract. Buddy Faulk is chairman of the committee to construct the sets.

The Beauty Revue winner will be Miss GTC of 1955, according to Cherrell Williams, chairman of the Beauty Revue.

Contestant blanks have been sent to all organizations eligible to elect representatives and these blanks must be returned by December 10.

Margaret Stanion, assistant professor of physical education, will direct the rehearsals.

Play Set Friday By Little Theatre

"Ramshackle Inn," George Boston's mystery farce in three acts will be presented by the Statesboro Little Theatre, December 10 at 8:30 in the College auditorium.

This play, written solely for entertainment, centers around Belinda Pryde, a spinster librarian from a small town in colonial Mass. Desirous of seeing more of the world, and particularly more people, she buys an inn, and becomes involved with a gang of liquor runners.

Among the cast are Dr. Fielding Russell, Nancy Stubbs, freshman, Statesboro, and Bee Carroll, son of Dean Paul Carroll, and Henry McCormick, a former member of the GTC faculty, also has a role.

Others are Dorothy Brannen, Anne More Gunter, Jimmy Gunter, Julie Turner Allen, "Dub" Lovett, Fred Porter, Lewell Akins, Bernard Morris, Dorothy Darbey Knight, Claire Marchman Macon Jr., Dean Baxter, and Al Sutherland. A large part of the cast are former GTC students and Masquers.

Webb is a junior and is the tallest member of the squad at 6'7". He has been selected as all-state center for the past two years. He was leading scorer last year with 529 points.

Coach Searce said Ford did not see any action last year as a freshman, but he has displayed so much effort and determination since practice opened that he has a chance to see what he can do in a game situation.

Rush received all-state honors last year in high school. Coach Searce said he should give the Professors added broad strength with his 6'6".

Parris Island Marines defeated GTC 101 to 65, at Parris Island on Wednesday night, in the season opener for both teams.

Doug Corry and Bo Warren led the Professors with 18 and 17 points respectively.

GTC opens the home season tomorrow night against the Atlanta division of the University of Georgia.

Warren, a sophomore, is an even six feet, and was second in scoring last year with 292 points. He scored 997 points his last year in high school to set a record for individual scoring.

Wallen, a sophomore, is one of the four returning lettermen. He wasn't in the starting line-up for any game last year, but saw considerable action as a substitute.

The Professors played Parris Island Marines Wednesday night in an exhibition game. Under the NCAA ruling of 1952, all games with service teams must be played as an exhibition game, and not counted in team records for individual statistics.

T Club Selects Cheerleaders

Six cheerleaders and two alternates were chosen for GTC in try-outs held at the gymnasium Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

Betty o Collins, freshman, Lyons, was chosen captain, receiving 14 votes out of a possible 15. Others are Diana aBir, freshman, Pelham; Beverly Perkins, freshman, Richland; Martha Evans, junior, Newington; Anne Whiddon, sophomore, McCrae; and Lena McNeal, sophomore, Newton. Alternates selected were Beverly O'Conner, sophomore; Lumpkin, and Shirley Jones, freshman, Hazelhurst.

About 22 girls tried out.

What's The Issue?

By CARLTON HUMPHREY

There are several issues of worth floating around the campus, and I will take the liberty of including these under the same headline.

First on the critic's agenda is "Rat Day." Another event has come and gone, and after observing my third one (twice as a disinterested spectator, once as a disinterested participant) I can't help but breathe a sigh of relief.

Hazing of freshmen is rapidly dying out in most schools. Why can't we follow suit and omit it from next year's program. Besides being a waste of time (for who can carry on normal activities with the smell of onion in the air?) this juvenile practice proves expensive to everyone except the laundry man. Can't we put the money spent for cleaning bills, eggs, onions, lipstick, etc., etc., etc., to some better use?

If we have to set the freshmen apart from the rest of the school, it seems that we could do it without placing them in such degrading circumstances as "Rat Day" provides. Isn't the "Rat Hat" enough to impose upon individuals who have enough adjusting to do by being new students?

Next item: Before the holidays, the juniors and seniors were asked to fill out blanks pertaining to their feelings toward GTC. Among these questions were such things as "Do you think GTC is hard enough?" Well, do you? Of course, we all complain that we are overloaded, but how long do you study each day. Do you spend more than ten minutes on each course unless a test is scheduled? I don't.

Judging from some opinions (by no means the majority) GTC is only a little more difficult than high school, the main difference being that we work by the quarter instead of the year. Otherwise, we are, only having four more years of high school, or so it seems from some reports.

Are we preparing for advanced study in graduate school by attending GTC? Very seldom is a great amount of library work assigned; few term papers really turn out as more than extended reports. A very small percentage of students ever get around to reading outside assignments.

Where does the fault lie, if there is a fault? The professors must take some of the blame for not enforcing requirements. But most of the fault lies in us. We simply don't have the initiative to learn all we can from all the courses we pay to take.

We are content to sit back and "get through" a course with a minimum of effort. If changes are made, they must come from us. Is GTC to become a slightly better than average high school?

I'd better end this before I unwittingly commit treason to the Alma Mater, and what's worse, to my fellow students. Let's hear your comments on the issue.

How's Your PQ

By BOBBY HOLCROW

Can you always be depended upon to do what you say? Do you cheerfully help others? Do you refrain from showing off how much you know? Do you avoid talking of that date last night? Are you careful not to exaggerate?

One of the greatest qualities that is known to man is that of dependability. If you say I'll do it are you saying it to impress someone, or do you know you'll do it. It does matter!

Everyone enjoys being treated friendly and it just costs a little more to put a smile on your face and it does mean so much more. Who enjoys being greeted, if you can call it that, by a person with a mile-long face.

Probably one of the most irritable feelings in the world is that of listening to a person use a dozen two bit words. Or a person who is a good swimmer tell how many persons he can outswim. The one hope for this person is to focus from his own self-expression to being an instrument of comfort, happiness, and joy to someone else.

Talking about dates cause confusion. Here is half of a conversation between a couple of boys in the dorm. "Sure a girl's gets reputation from dating." Sure I appreciate a girl that doesn't kiss—I just don't date them."

The last is on terminological ineptitude or the English word liar. This reminds me of the minister closing his service one Sunday morning saying "Next Sunday I'm going to preach on liars. For the preparation I'd like for each of you to read the 17th Chapter of Mark." The following Sunday he rose to start the service and asked how many had read the scripture for preparation. Nearly everyone raised his hand. "You are the very one's I want to preach to, because there is no 17th Chapter of Mark. Do you need to talk to the preacher?"

Believe . . .

"It is better to give than receive." How many times do you hear that during each Christmas season? The question is though, do you believe it and put it into practice? Most of us have always had life's gifts handed us on a silver platter and never sacrificed in order to do something for someone else.

Sure, we give a quarter to a blind beggar on the street, and maybe even give some of last year's clothes to a poor tramp but we demand that Dad give us more allowance and pester Mom for new clothes in return.

We seem to have forgotten the real reason for celebrating Christmas these last few centuries. Our thoughts center around only ourselves, our families and closest friends, for getting that The Great Teacher gave the supreme sacrifice. His life to save the souls of generations to come. He did not know what creed, race or faith He died to save—why then must we be so careful to wish only people of our color a "merry Christmas," or kneel beside only people of our faith to give thanks? For once let's honor Christ on His birthday in the way He would have us do.

Babblings by Babs

BABS WISENBAKER, Editor

From all appearances it seems that everyone decided to go home and stay there instead of flitting from one place to another over the holidays.

There were a few of the girls, however, who did manage to pull themselves away from home long enough to go to the Georgia-Georgia Tech game.

Shirley Roundtree attended the "Big" game in Athens Saturday, and stayed for the dance following the game. Ralph Flanagan played for the dance, and Shirley said that both she and her date, Bob Tanner, had a swell time of it.

Julia Pryor went to the game with her father.

Shirley Atkins and Sue Buchanan visited Shirley's sister at the University and attended the game Saturday.

Other GTC students that saw the Bulldogs and the Jackets in action at Sanford Stadium were Wylene Fowler, Celia Cokman, Jimmy Jurvis and Ed Dukes.

Aside from the football story, we gathered that:

Ross Watkins was the maid-of-honor in the wedding of June Roberts, a former GTC student, Thanksgiving day. Shirley Eunice attended the wedding also.

Linda Mock was on campus last Monday. Linda was on her way home after a visit in South Carolina with her husband, Royce Mock.

Diane Wright, Carolyn Pierce, Betty Jo McDougald, Frances Barfield, Anne Whiddon, Al Lawson, Anson Calloway, and Cliff Walton attended Homecoming at Middle Georgia College in Cochran.

Sylvia Bacon and Nancy Stubbs attended the Thanksgiving game between GMC and South Georgia College in Milledgeville.

Charles Dill visited his fiancée, Winona Hester in Chula over the holidays.

George Rohn, a former student of GTC, visited the campus Monday night.

Margaret Hale and Carolyn Readdick attended the basketball game between Armstrong and Georgia Southwestern. Being Geechees themselves, they sure were happy to see the Armstrong Geechees defeat their opponents by a score of 71-69.

On November 20, Lewis W.

Strickland had as his guest, Mr. and Mrs. Archie G. Mizelle of Montgomery, Alabama.

John Tootle visited Edward Abercrombie of Forsyth during the holidays. From Forsyth, he journeyed to Ft. McClellan, Alabama to visit another friend.

Mary Henderson spent Friday and Saturday of the holidays in Hawkinsville as the guest of Joanne H.

Edward Abercrombie traveled to Rome, to serve as an usher in a friend's wedding.

Anne Whiddon has been selected to represent the Science Club in the Annual Beauty Revue.

Sammy Lamb and Bill Denny, GTC alumni, were on campus recently.

Leila Smith and Jimmy Fulford tied the matrimonial knot two weeks ago last Wednesday.

Mary Alice Jones has received an engagement ring from Jim Harley, who is playing basketball for Fort Jackson.

Also sporting a ring is Melba Prosser. Melba is engaged to Bobby Davis, an alumni of GTC.

Ann McHugh and John Huxford will be united in Holy matrimony on December 19.

Also on that date, Linda Hagan and John Lee Boykin will speak their vows.

December 30 will find Josh Durden at the altar with Helen Hughes.

Harold Wynn and Pauline Vickers will tie the knot on December 31.

All those people we were talking about back there that went to the Tech-Georgia game thought they had a big trip, but just listen to the story of Gene Meadows' weekend. He left the county last Tuesday and went up north to see the Maryland-Missouri game. While up in that general vicinity Gene found his way to a show at the Radio City Music Hall and also saw "that Modern Miracle," VistaVision, in the form of the movie "White Christmas."

Next week we'll more than likely be shooting you all a line of visitors to the campus, in the form of dates for the faculty formal, until then I'm babbling.

Signed,
BABS.

On The Sideline...

Everyone who does a column of this sort eventually delivers himself at length on the local team's prospects, and who am I to break precedent At no extra charge, here it is.

The 1954-55 edition of the Professors just doesn't impress at the present time. Little Annie Rooney herself wouldn't predict anything but a very mediocre season for the locals on the hardwood. Coach J. B. Searce has never had a losing season in his seven years at the helm, but if it doesn't happen this season then he will get this corner's nomination as the coach-of-the-year. Forget your Rapps and Ibas, J. B. Searce will be THE boy if we win 11 or more of the 22 official games scheduled this year.

Forget the Parris Island game on Wednesday. This was written before it happened, and if GTC did better than a 12 to 2 0point loss in that one, they're to be heartily congratulated. In the first place, since all games with service teams are exhibitions, the loss won't count on our record. That is no face-saving gesture on the part of Searce either. You may not know it but GTC has whipped the Marines 12 out of the 19 games played against them since 1932.

Coach Searce decided to use this game to get as long a look as possible at his newcomers because from here on out they all count.

Now let me justify the pessimistic discussion above. Most of the other teams on our schedule have improved considerably. Brochures and write-ups filtering into our mailbox list scads of returning regulars, players that Coach Searce can recall as being very good even last year.

One team, Wofford College, returns all five starters from last season. That's our December 18 opponent in Augusta. Help!

Although we have returned Chester Webb, a great ball-player already, and Bo Warren, a very good and potentially great player, the abilities of our lost lettermen far outweighed what our newcomers have shown to date.

The big loss was, of course, little Horace Belflower. Every team that aspires the fast break (and what team doesn't nowadays?), needs a sure-shooting, ball-handling guard to run the show. Searce is still looking for his replacement.

If you don't have the good outsized shooter to bring the defense out, the opposition can collapse around your big man and make things very unpleasant indeed.

No one else has enough game experience under his belt for us or anyone to predict what will happen when the clock starts running against the perennial toughies like Florida State, Mercer, Stetson, Spring Hill, Erskine, Belmont Abbey, and so on.

Now let us consider the things on our side. The best coach in the state in J. B. Searce. The best school spirit in this part of the country. A New York Yankee-like habit of winning. You never know. No one thought last fall that the Georgia Bulldogs would be considered for the Agator Bowl this year, but that's the case.

My prediction for a season record over the 22 games that count? All right. We'll win 12 and lose 10. As a matter of fact, I already have started composing my letter of March 1, 1955. Dear Sirs: I would like to nominate J. B. Searce as Coach-of-the-year ...

Horne Honored At Vet Fish Fry

The Vet Club had a fish fry last Wednesday night at Martin's Pond. The social was in honor of the Vet Club Sweetheart, Betty Horne, and her court.

Approximately 30 students attended. Other guests of honor were Anne Whiddon, Dale Warnock, Carol Thomas, Ann Johnson, and Ruby Ann Wilson.

A record dance will be held in the gymnasium Saturday night after the basketball game according to Phil Norton, president of the Student Council.

THE FAIR STORE

"Statesboro's Finest Store"

The Music Box

By HARRIET WOODWARD

Hey there! Welcome back to ye olde Alma aMter! Hope all you guys and dolls had a fine time!

Well, they're all singin' 'bout "eHart of Stone" here on the Sweetheart Campus. The Charms and the Fontaine Sisters are both knockin' themselves out on this one.

The craziest thing I've heard lately is Art Carrie's "Song of the Sewer." Another dilly is "Here Today and Gone Tomorrow Love" by that doll, Vicki Young.

Seems that Eartha Kitt has a new Christmas Carol for us. It's "This Year's Santa Baby," but you know, I'm still crazy 'bout Bing Crosby's old but still beautiful version of "White Christmas."

Folks have gone crazy over the mambo lately. I heard two more the other night. They were "The Little Brown Mambo," and "The American Patrol Mambo" by Ralph Flannigan. Someone even wrote a "Marilyn Monroe Mambo" and a "Steam Heat Mambo." I'm just jivin'—they came from the Broadway production "The Pajama Game." Now why doesn't someone write a TC Mambo!!

Our favorite hot canary has turned out another top tune. It's "Fortune In Dreams" by Kay Starr and almost as good as "Wheel of Fortune."

If you haven't heard "Count

Your Blessings" by the newly-engaged Eddie, please get on the ball and hear it. It's a real sweet ballad and just listen to those words... they really have a message.

I don't particularly go for Liberace's singing but I'll have to admit that he sounds fine on his new tune, "I Miss You So."

In the way of "Jig" music, we have a new one. It's not quite as "gone" as the "Annie" records but it's got plenty of rhythm. It's Ruth Brown's version of "Somebody Touched Me." Tune in on Late Date and maybe you'll hear it.

If it's local talent you want, you ought to hear the TC trio, alias the "Tonettes" sing "The Little Shoemaker." They do it in their usual vivacious manner, and you know, they seem to enjoy singing it as much as we enjoy hearing it. If you want to cause a riot, ask them to sing their "sausage song." It's a scream!

Before I stop, let me put in a plug for an "oldie" that has been given the "new look." Know you've heard it oodles of times! It's "You'll Never Walk Alone" and Roy Hamilton really "gets with it."

Keep your eyes open for mistletoe and your ears open for jingle bells, and I'll see you soon.

ACE Sponsors Doll Show Here

Announcement was made this week of a doll show to be staged at the Laboratory High School, December 9, at 3:30 p. m. The show will be sponsored by the Association of Childhood Education.

Miss Bertha Freeman, associate professor of education and sponsor of ACE, states that children of Statesboro and Bulloch county may enter their dolls in the show in the following categories: oldest doll, prettiest doll, ugliest doll, tiniest doll, and quaintest doll.

Entries must be made at the office of Miss Freeman on Monday or Tuesday between 1 and 4 o'clock. There will be an entry fee of 25 cents with each doll.

Before the doll show there will be a brief program of dance in the Laboratory School auditorium.

An admission of 10 cents will be charged for the program and doll show.

Two girls from Savannah will have entries.

Methodists Lead Basketball Band Will Perform At Half-time shows

The Wesley Foundation will sponsor a Christmas Carol activity Sunday night, December 12. Students from all denominations are invited to participate according to Midge Bentley, vice president.

A bus will be by each dormitory at 6 p. m. to transport students who wish to meet at the Methodist Church and leave from there to go to the different sections of Statesboro. Refreshments will be served at the church after the caroling.

Concert Band Records Show

The GTC concert band and dance band under the direction of Dana M. King recorded a half-hour program for Radio Station WWNS Tuesday, Nov. 23.

Numbers played by the concert band were "The Klaxton," "Storm King," and "Ticonderoga." The dance band rendered "Once in a While," "High Noon," and "Intermission Riff."

The college basketball band will perform only four times at ball games this season due to the limited seating capacity in the gym. The dates they are to perform are December 13, January 22, February 10, and February 19.

The college basketball band is not the full marching band but consists of 16 instrumental music majors from the marching band. The seniors in this group plan the program for each ball game and are in charge of rehearsal. They rehearse at 10 o'clock each night in the gym because it is in use at all other times. This arrangement is the only one of its kind in the south.

When the new gym is completed and put in use, the basketball band and majorettes will perform together at every game. They are looking forward to performing in the new gym when they will have enlarged floor space and more freedom and variety in types of shows used, reports Dana King, assistant professor of music.
