Professors Jack Broucek (left) and Dan Hooley of the music faculty will present a duo-piano recital Wednesday evening, April 27. This will be a benefit performance for the Music Education Club and will be the third annual concert presented by these artists of the keyboard. A program designed to please all types of music lovers has been planned for this recital, which will be given in McCroan Auditorium.

Periodical Dept. Initiates Drive For Magazines

A program has been initiated by the GTC library periodicals department under the supervision of Miss Grace Cooper. This program is to bring the periodical department up to date, acquire missing materials, and lay the groundwork necessary if GTC should ever offer work at graduate level.

The periodicals section has a file of 8,400 newspapers, 780 of which date from the 19th century, mostly post-bellum.

Six dailies are now received and 8 weeklies are available through the generosity of their publishers. Missing back copies of those papers kept indefinitely have been secured and files have been brought up to date and complete. The library also has the index to its file of over 17 years of New York Times.

The periodicals department has also started to work on binding those magazines which the college could not afford to send to regular binderies and the periodicals of less importance. The average cost of binding one volume of magazines is from $3.50 to $7.50. Much of the binding left undone during the depression and war years is now being accomplished.

Incomplete volumes of magazines are being completed and duplicate copies are being sold.

The college has also received gratis from another college library back volumes of several magazines and these are being cleaned and mended.

Most of the work of cleaning, mending and binding of all periodicals is being done by the student assistants in the library.

ACE Meeting Scheduled Wed.

The GTC student chapter of the Association for Childhood Education will hold its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon, April 20, at 3:45 in room 7 of the Laboratory School.

Members are urged to be present and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Group Presents Unusual Music

Ten students and two faculty members will go to Savannah next Monday night to present a program of brass instruments and organ music to the Savannah chapter of the American Guild of Organists. On the program will be Mel Seidel, James Jones, Stanley Brobston, S. B. Campbell, Milton Norras, Bob Priestly, Carlos Hand, Don Flanders, Maralon Westbrook, and Bobby Moore. Faculty members going are Jack W. Broucek and Dana King.

The group will present music that is very unusual in that it is not performed except in large cathedrals in Europe.

The same program will be presented Tuesday night, April 19, for the Statesboro Music Club convening at the First Baptist Church.

Applications For Rooms Received

Miss Helen G. Duncan, daen of women, announced today that she will receive applications for fall quarter room assignment the week of April 25. Certain hours for signing up will be scheduled and students are asked to follow the schedule.

Girls who will be seniors by Christmas will be given first choice of rooms, then juniors, then sophomores. More details will be released at a later date.

GTC Receives Visiting Students

Georgia Teachers College will be host to visiting high school seniors this weekend.

On Saturday morning at 10, an informal coffee hour will be held in the parlor of East Hall for the seniors and their hostesses. At this time, the visitors will register and be issued meal tickets for meals from Saturday noon until Sunday noon.

On Saturday night, West Hall will sponsor a dance in the gym, in honor of the campus guests. Music for the dance will be furnished by the Professors.

Meadows Heads BSU Officers

New officers for the GTC Baptist Student Union were named at a meeting of BSU members Wednesday night, April 6. A total of 13 officers were filled to serve for the 1955-56 term.

Gene Meadows, sophomore, Register, was elected president to succeed Anngene Culbreth who is serving as president of the organization this year.

Waters Given Assistantship

Nan Waters, senior, Savannah, has been appointed to a teaching assistantship in the biology department of Vanderbilt University for the 1955-56 session.

Notice of the appointment comes from Leonard B. Beach, Dean of the graduate school, and was authorized by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University.

Miss Waters will begin September 20, and will work toward an MS in entomology.

While at GTC, Miss Waters has been outstanding in academic work and has participated in many extra-curricular activities. Among them are two leading dramatic roles in Masquer's productions.

Miss Waters transferred to GTC as a junior from Armstrong Junior College winter quarter of 1954.

"Dear Brutus" cast set For Spring Production

The cast for the forthcoming Masquers production, "Dear Brutus," was announced today by Miss Dorothy Few, play director. Production date for this play has been set for May 19 and 20.

FBLA Slates Unusual Dance

Detailed plans concerning the forthcoming Preference Party were announced this week by Gloria Averitt, general chairman of the party committee. Sponsored by the FBLA Club, the party will be held on Saturday, April 30, and will be informal. Arrangements are being made for dancing on the tennis courts to the music of the college orchestra with bridge, canasta, and other party games in the gymnasium, for those not desiring to dance.

On Wednesday and Thursday, April 20-21, a committee composed of Peggy Henderson, Gwen Lanier, Gloria Averitt, and Careen Hatcher, will receive requests for dates. The committee will be seated at a table on the main floor of the Administration Building at an hour to be announced next week. Each girl will go to the committee and list her first, second, and third choices as dates for the party. Each request will be marked with the time it was received so that a girl placing the first request for a date will be considered first; when two girls list the same man as their first choice the request received earliest will be the one used while the girl placing the later request will receive the date listed as her second choice.

After all requests have been received and tabulated so that each girl will be assured a date, the lists will be turned over to a committee composed of "B" Ginn, Sampson Herndon, and John Tootle who will invite the boys on behalf of the girls who have asked for them. No man will know whether he is first, second, or third choice of the girl taking him to the party. The acceptances will be turned back to the committee of girls who will then visit each women's dormitory and inform each girl individually of the name of the man she will escort to the Preference Party.

As previously announced, the man who is listed as the first choice of the most girls will automatically become the Most Preferred Man at TC, and will be escorted to the party by Diana Bair, Miss TC of 1955.

After obtaining the date of her choice for the occasion, each girl will be expected to call for him at either Sanford or Cone Hall and escort him to the party.

"Dear Brutus," a comedy-fantasy in three acts by James M. Barrie, centers around the question: What if we could live our lives again? "It is on this assumption that Barrie has based this lovely fantasy."

Darwin Humphrey, freshman, Vidalia, has been chosen to portray Mr. Dearth, "a good man who has gone wrong, and in his heart despises himself for it." In the dream scene, Margaret, his daughter, will be portrayed by Diana Bair, freshman, Pelham.

Shirley Rountree, junior, Twin City, has been cast as Alice Dearth, "a woman who can be fascinating and dangerous, who also is discontented and despises her husband."

The part of Lab, "a rather unearthly, very small and old man," will be played by Robert Allen, junior, Thomasville. Joanna Trout, "sentimental, but a good sort," will be portrayed by Mary Henderson, sophomore, Collegeboro.

Carlton Humphrey, junior, Milledgeville, will play the part of Mr. Purdie, "a young barrister who is modestly sure that he is of deeply passionate nature."

In the role of Mrs. Purdie will be Nan Waters, senior Savannah. Mrs. Purdie is "a simple young wife, wistful, who knows her husband is fond of Joanna."

Jimmy Snooks, junior, Springfield, has been cast as Mr. Coade, "a happy, lazy old man." His wife, Mrs. Coade, "who is a delightful sunny old lady, will be played by Lorene Brown, sophomore, Eldorado.

Carl Tyson, senior, Lenox, will play the part of Matey, "a correct but furtive butler." Jane Seabolt, senior, Acworth, will portray Lady Caroline Laney, an aristocrat "who considers herself superior to the others," but who drops her affections in the dream scene.

Lucille Parker, freshman, Macon, will serve as understudy for the women's roles for the production.

Because of the second act dream scene, "Dear Brutus" posed a problem in casting. Miss Few says, "This play offers a great challenge to each of the actors and actresses because the characters reverse themselves when each gets a 'second change' at life. Type casting was impossible for this play."

The play shows how the characters revert in a dream scene to the life that they might have lived if the "second chance" were impossible. Though the scene reverts to its modern setting at the end, the audience is left with the feeling that life has not been spent in vain.

Is This Typical?

George was a typical GTC student, but just a little on the shy side. He was standing in line and he was hungry.

All of a sudden George was nearly swept off his feet by three little darlings who just had to get with a friend up near the front of the line.

A little dazed, George managed to regain his balance and he stepped back in line again. He was still hungry and still waiting.

No sooner had he stepped back in line than four or five Mr. Big Men came crushing their way brashly toward the front of the line. George stepped away a little to make room for them, when along came Miss Smiles who was, as usual, talking and giggling her way up past the rest and heading in the general direction of the steam table.

A slight trace of a sign came across George's face but before he could finish it here came three young trotters from the nearby dormitory crashing their way up to the front.

George seemed disappointed that so many people could be so impolite. By this time he was so far back in line and so hungry he gave up, opened a pack of crackers, got a cup of water and sat down to enjoy his evening meal.

Congratulations!

Congratulations to Nan Waters on receiving an assistantship to Vanderbilt University. Nan will be working toward an M.S. degree in entomology.

An Opportunity...

Any college student naturally would like for the college he attends to have a good appearance; one that will make a favorable impression on a visitor or a prospective student.

We have a campus that is much prettier than the average college campus, with both a touch of the old and new in architecture. However, the one spot on campus that is the most frequented by students and visitors remains the bleakest and most barren place on campus.

When one steps into the Administration Building at the front entrance he finds himself facing a great big clock (often several minutes late) and, at times, a chair filled with copies of the same paper you are now reading. This is not very awe-inspiring, to say the least.

The GEORGE-ANNE staff feels that this situation could be very easily relieved with just a small amount of work. Why couldn't we have a trophy case in the center of the hall against the auditorium wall? This would serve not only for trophies, but photos, clippings, and other things which reflect the athletic and scholastic achievements of GTC.

There have certainly been individuals in GTC's history distinguished enough to warrant a portrait in the most central place on campus. Not only would this make for a more collegiate look and brighten the bare monotonous walls of the building, it would also probably revive a little school spirit among the students.

A good opportunity lies in this project for some club, class, or other organization that would like to do something that would be of benefit to GTC. The backing and support of the GEORGE-ANNE is assured.

Win Friends

By CAROLYN PIERCE

Everyone presumably wants to win friends and influence people. After reading some other college papers, their situations seem to be the same as ours here at GTC. Anyway, I've about come to the conclusion that there is a way to accomplish this "grim" task.

First of all, never forget to push just as far ahead in chow line as possible. You can try toppling a few people over in the process, if you're in an especially good mood.

When in class or assembly, always keep a pack of chewing gum handy and pop away. You may produce some new "tones" if you really put your heart into the job. If you aren't the chewing gum type, try catching up on your correspondence, or even catch a few winks if you were up late the night before.

If a test is announced for the day, just take the hour off. Since the instructors have so much leisure time, they certainly won't mind taking it at a later date.

Since there aren't enough activities to keep one from saying there isn't anything to do around here, stroll around the campus, make a lot of noise and if you see a couple sitting on a bench, slide in between them and start a lively conversation about the latest weather conditions.

If you happen to belong to any activities, never attend any of the meetings of which you're reminded. Let someone else do the work if the club is planning a social of some sort, but don't miss going to the party. There might be some fun and it wouldn't be complete without "the life of the party."

Grumble and gripe just oodles about the work you just have to do in or out of class. You're just taking the old course 'cause "they" made you. It certainly won't be any help to you later on. So why strain yourself.

If you know anyone like this, ask him or her to read this article, but don't be surprised if someone asks you to do the same.

Personality...

TOM PERRY

A winning smile and spontaneous wit characterizes Tom Perry, our personality for this week.

Tom is a senior, physical education major from Savannah. Hence the nickname "Geechee." Graduating from Savannah High, Tom then entered Armstrong Junior College, transferring to GTC last term.

Although Tom's first love is athletics, he has shown varied interests since coming to GTC, being a member of the T Club, the Canterbury Club, Interdormitory and Cone Hall Councils, and he has lately been serving as a dancing instructor.

We have chosen Tom because of the good will that seems to permeate through those around him.

As Others See Us

By CARLTON HUMPHREY

Have you ever sat in a group looking through a school yearbook? I did earlier this week, and was surprised to hear the same comment repeated over and over. "Oh! This is an awful picture of me." Then immediately was heard, "Why, that's a good picture of you, but look at me!"

Does the camera lie, or did we really look that way when our pictures were made? Perhaps it's a good thing we can always fall back on "Well, that's not like me." But then when others say we ARE like that, the props are knocked from under our egos.

We at GTC are like persons looking at a yearbook. We have been associated with the college for so long that we have lost the objective viewpoint and distant opinion of the school that might be gained by an outsider.

Just as individuals find fault with their own image, we criticize our environment. For instance, every student here has, at one time or another, complained about food in the dining hall. It is impossible to convince us that the meals are not terrible. Yet, surprisingly, transfer students praise our meals in comparison with those at other colleges. That is, until they've been here long enough to lose the objective viewpoint... then, they too, criticize the meals.

The same is true of other aspects of our life here. We complain about a lack of social activities on weekends and the failure of events that do take place. Yet visitors to the campus seem to enjoy the social activities, and return again and again.

Perhaps, too, if we could see ourselves as others see us, we would see some things we don't like. With an objective viewpoint, these unseen faults could probably be corrected.

But like persons looking at a yearbook, we'll no doubt go on seeing ourselves in the dim, half-seeing light of the ego, and will never see ourselves as others see us. Who knows, maybe this is best for we might not be able to bear a true picture. It might run from the extremes of rejection to complete joy at the surprising goodness of our lives.

The self-centered viewpoint can paint a rosy picture that is sometimes flattering. With this outlook we can say, "That doesn't look like me," and make ourselves believe this without thinking whether it is true or not. No matter how many people say, "It's just like you!", with our viewpoint we can deceive ourselves into believing that they're wrong or that perhaps the camera had a defective lens.

But wouldn't it be nice, just for a while, to see ourselves in plain white light, as others see us? Maybe we could discover some hidden virtues and correct some hidden vices.

Then we could quietly slip back into the peaceful state of self deception and realistically view our neighbors who are living in the same false but wonderful world.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

JOE AXELSON

On The Sideline...

The Georgia Intercollegiate Conference race could end right here on this campus this weekend. Or it could simply tell us that a close two-team race is in order in the league's first year.

Georgia Teachers is definitely in the driver's seat with our 6-0 mark. North Georgia is 1-0, rain and weird scheduling to blame. The Cadets are always tough, I'm told, and just how good they are this season, we'll have a chance to see here on the home grounds.

If our Professors take two from the Cadets today and tomorrow, the conference race will be virtually over. A series split or double defeat would make the final game against North Georgia at Dahlonega on May 5 all-important.

The Professors have already swept the three game set from third place Valdosta State, and barring a major miracle, Oglethorpe and Piedmont shouldn't bother either GTC or North Georgia.

The new gymnasium is nearing completion, in case you haven't looked lately. The floor has been completed, the tiling and painting are about finished, and only a few things are left to wind-up. Of course the roll-away bleachers, classroom equipment, backboards, scoreboard, and a few hundred other things have to be installed be-

Coach Searce is rounding next year's freshman basketball squad into being, and it looks like the best in the school's history. The signing of Walker Cook and Wayman Banks to athletic association scholarships has already been announced, and four more inkings will be announced soon. The boys are big, and they're the best kind, of course.

Plans call for a full schedule for the freshmen, against other freshman teams and junior colleges. But some of these boys will be in contention for front-line spots. And remember Tommy Howard, the first base phenom, played two years for Wake Forest and has a year of cage eligibility remaining.

With the exception of the center spot, competition for positions next season is going to be rough indeed. We're not going to be naive here and say that Chester Webb is going to have to fight for the center position next season. No one realizes this any better than Webb himself, of course, and the way he hustled this past year, indicates he won't let this knowledge slow up his desire to play.

This is a good situation for any team, and I don't imagine Coach Searce dreads the coming problem of picking five starters, or, for that matter, 12 squad members. Competition is a healthy thing for any endeavor, and next year's edition of the Professors could be the best in history.

An interesting schedule is being lined-up for next year, and several new opponents are on the dotted line. The most unique team to ever play at Statesboro will be the University of Mexico this coming season. The team is

The intramural softball league for the spring quarter will be an inter-class league. Each class has an athletic officer appointed by the class president. This officer is in charge of getting together the class team and will either act as the team manager or will appoint a team manager.

The games will be played at the softball field. All games will begin at 6 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. No games will be played on Friday or during the weekend.

A home team will be designated and will be responsible for game equipment, umpires, and reporting results. Any team who does not have nine men on the field ready to play by 6:10 p. m. will forfeit the game. No inning will be started after 7:20 p. m. To be an official game, at least four full innings must be completed.

Each team will play each other team three times. The league winner will be determined on a per cent basis.

Valdosta State is Victim of GTC Baseball wins

By LARRY HYDE

Georgia Teachers College defeated Valdosta State College in two Georgia Intercollegiate Conference games played on the local diamond last Friday and Saturday. GTC won the first game 14 to 3, and took the second contest by a score of 13 to 0.

Jack Maxwell went the distance in the first game to chalk up his third win against no defeats. He gave up five hits, struck out five and walked four.

Every player in the "Profs" lineup had at least one hit. Preston Sizemore, Don Wallen and Jack Maxwell had three apiece. Two of Sizemore's hits were triples. Kelly Powell and Bo Warren each hit home runs.

In the second game, Ace Little shut out Valdosta State as he allowed only two singles. In winning his third game against no defeats, Ace struck out six and walked none.

Kelly Powell was the big gun for GTC with four hits, including two home runs and six runs batted in. He also handled six chances in the field perfectly and stole two bases. Ace Little and Tommy Howard also homered.

Centerfielder Bo Warren singled in the fourth inning to run his consecutive game hitting streak to 15.

For a while business had been lagging behind in the direction of engagements and marriages. However things are looking better now. Real, honest-to-goodness proof of this can be seen on the third finger, left hand of Betty Jean Beasley, Bobbie Ryon and Carolyn Readick.

Sally Kingman, a former GTC girl, will speak the vows with Don Jarvis on June 5. Anne Harrison, Sally's former roommate will be a bridesmaid.

While I'm on this subject, I might as well give you the statistics that have been compiled from West Hall. There are 21 girls going steady, and 3 engaged in that dorm. Of approximately 250 girls living in the dormitories, 60 of them go steady, 13 are engaged, and 5 are married. Hummmm!

Shirley Maxwell was among the many that were away from campus (for reasons other than home) this weekend. Shirley visited Sandra Austin in Shannon.

Katherine Waters was hostess to Jo Gordaon and Wallace Waters at her home in Eastman.

Mickey Webb spent Easter in Tennille as the guest of Ellen Blizzard.

Pat McCorkle was visitor in Carolyn Tuttle's home and Julia Pryor visited with her roommate, Martha Evans, in Newington.

Mrs. Milton Morris was on campus Friday. Mrs. Morris, the former Sara Harrell, was visiting friends in West Hall. Also away from campus last weekend was Ed Abercrombie. Ed was the guest of Keith Turner in Ashburn.

And say! What about Mary Lee Quarterman's visitor last Friday? Yep, you're right. He was Harry Mills and he is a student at the Citadel.

Virginia Sikes also had a guest during the weekend. For the life of me, I couldn't find out his name though.

Martha Ann Wynn received a rather nice gift from the Easter Bunny. What? A brand-new Ford!
