Annual Preference Party Arranged For April 27

Bobby Teasley, president of the F.B.L.A., announces that the Preference Party dance will be held on April 27 at 8 p. m.

The dates set aside for the girls to prefer are Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, April 17, 18, and 19. Girls must put down three preferences. Tables will be set up in the administration building to record the preferences.

The time, and the boys' names will be recorded when the girls prefer. If two girls prefer the same boy for first choice the one who registered earliest will get the man of her choice, while the other must go with her second preference.

Men and women will be notified on the following Monday and Tuesday.

Teasley also wants to remind the students that the dance is informal and it will be held on the tennis court. A good floor show will be planned and will be highlighted by the crowning of Mr. Preferred of G.T.C. by Miss G.T.C. of 1957.

The dance is an annual affair, and gives girls a chance to return the "treats" the boys give all year, or to meet new boys they might not otherwise get to know.

ENROLLMENT

This quarter's enrollment took its perennial spring slump with a total of only 808 students, according to Miss Viola Perry, registrar. This is compared with totals of 851 winter quarter and 865 fall quarter of this year.

There are 53 new students here, and six re-enrolled after missing winter quarter. During this school year, there has been a total of 997 different individuals enrolled on campus, including 546 men and 451 women.

According to Miss Perry, fall quarter's enrollment will probably reach the 950 mark, however, she stated that this is only a speculation, since it is too early to be positive.

Industrial Arts Fair Begins In New Gymnasium May 4

The 1957 First District Industrial Arts Fair, sponsored by the Industrial Arts Teachers Association and Associated industries of Georgia, will be held here on May 4 in the new physical education building, according to an announcement made by H. M. Carmichael, the district chairman, this week.

Exhibits will arrive at 9 a. m. The exhibits for the fair will be displayed to the public from 11 o'clock to 4:30. Awards totaling $110 in cash and certificates of achievements will be presented at 2 p. m.

Judges for the fair will be as follows: Wood division, Phil Hamilton, Dixie Plywood Co., Savannah, Ga.; James W. Gunter, Bowen Furniture Co., Statesboro, Ga. Metal division, H. E. Rittenhouse, chief Engineer, Rockwell Statesboro Corp. Drawing division, Phillip Beckworth, Union-Camp Paper Corp., Savannah, Ga.; Curt Steinberger, chief draftsman, Rockwell Statesboro Corp. Electric division, M. O. Lawrence, Georgia Power Co., Statesboro, Ga. Graphic arts and open division, Dr. D. H. Hackett, G.T.C.; Shields Kenan, Kenan's Print Shop, Statesboro, Ga.; E. C. Godfrey, G.T.C.

The purpose of the Industrial Arts Fair is to constitute a program of recognition for junior and senior high school students enrolled in industrial arts classes and to encourage fine craftsmanship among a great number of students.

MASQUERS' DANCE

The Dance this Saturday night will be conducted by Masquers, G.T.C.'s drama club. Diana Bair, club president announced that the theme will be, "Come to the Circus." Music will be furnished by G.T.C.'s very fine combo.

New Fraternity Is Initiated Here To Honor Men

Kappa Phi Kappa, a men's national undergraduate honorary education fraternity, is in the process of being organized at Georgia Teachers College.

Interest in this organization was stimulated when a group representing the club came down from Atlanta to discuss with Dean Paul Carroll the possibilities of having the fraternity on this campus. After the requirements were discussed and it was found that G.T.C. could meet these, Dean Carroll contacted some eligible men and thus formed the nucleus for this new club.

This group of men has petitioned the national organization for a charter, and if and when it is received, the charter members will be initiated and the fraternity will become a formal organization on campus.

Two faculty members, Dean Paul Carroll, and Parrish Blitch, assistant professor of business education, are members of the fraternity and will act as advisors to the group.

G.T.C.'s Postal Service is Cut

G.T.C.'s post office will be among those affected by a nation-wide cut in weekend service this Saturday, according to Z. L. Strange Sr., postmaster here.

Beginning tomorrow, only first class mail and newspapers will be dispatched or handled on Saturday or Sunday. There will be no window service or handling of third class mail, including parcels and printed matter.

The change came after Post Master General Summerfield's demand for a $47 million budget failed to get Congressional approval this week.

According to Mr. Strange, the new plan will probably be only temporary because of public demand and weekend pile-ups of work.

Collins, Schell Are Honored

Bobby Schell and Powell Collins were honored last weekend at the F.B.L.A. convention held at Rock Eagle State Park, near Eatonton, Ga.

Bobby was elected by the Georgia Chapter as the college vice-president, while Powell was elected as Mr. Future Business Executive for 1957.

Powell won top honors after he was interviewed by committee of businessmen. His plans for the future and his fine scholarship record figured heavily in his choice. Powell received a trophy as an award.

Others representing Georgia Teachers College were Merinda Barbee, Pat Fletcher, Rose Watkins, Betty Claxton, Ruth Bennett, Avonell Morris and Miss Jane Martin, instructor in business education here at G.T.C.

Education Profs Plan Next One

The fifth in a series of television programs was to be presented today by Georgia Teachers College over WTOG-TV in Savannah at 3:30 p. m.

This week's program is being presented by the Social Science division of the school. A panel discussion on "Federal Aid to Education" will be the presentation. Members of the panel include Dewayne Dutton, a senior, who will act as moderator; Peter O'Millian, senior; Britt Fayssoux, senior; Star Woodard, senior; and Bob Mitchell, junior.

According to a spokesman from the group, this topic was selected because of its significance to educators and also because of its concern to future teachers who might be affected by a measure of this type. The program will consist of questions, answers, and discussion so that the audience will get an over-all view of just what is entailed in Federal aid to education.

Jack N. Averitt, professor of social science, worked with the group in coordinating the program and getting it ready for presentation.

There will be one more TV program this year. The program will be presented by the education department under the direction of Miss Bertha Freeman, associate professor of education.

According to reports received at the college, the TV programs have done a great deal in introducing residents of this area to the school, which is the main purpose of these presentations.

SPRING MOVIE SCHEDULE

This quarter's Friday evening movie schedule has been released this week by Student Council President Dewayne Dutton, and includes the following:

April 12—"Red Danube"; April 19—"Saturday's Hero" (black and white); April 26—"Hell Below Zero" (color); May 3—"Helen of Troy" (color); May 10—"Knock on Any Door"; May 17—"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers"; May 24—"A Song to Remember" (color).

THIS WEEK'S GIRL OF THE WEEK is Sandra Hanson, better known as Sandy. A sophomore from Avondale Estates, Sandy is majoring in elementary education. While on campus, she has been a member of the George-Anne staff, and on West Hall's house council. Pictured here she looks like one of the spring flowers, which is understandable, since she was chosen as one of the ten finalists in last year's Beauty Revue.

Organizations Are Assets

Two new organizations have made their appearance on our campus this year. They are the Pre-Ministerial Association and Kappa Phi Kappa fraternity. Both of these clubs have a fine group of members and are in a position to contribute much to the student body. It is inspiring to see new groups of students joining together in order to offer more services to our college life.

The Pre-Ministerial Association has already contributed much to the students in sponsoring a revival in which student ministers participated and were in complete charge. Besides this event, they also have daily devotions for men students. Our campus has religious organizations but it is gratifying to see one that is composed of our future church leaders who can do much in helping to elevate and maintain spiritual ideals at our school.

Kappa Phi Kappa is an honorary fraternity that is now in the process of being organized. Its main purpose is to create and maintain interest in the field of education. Although it is limited to men there is a sister organization which will be one of the objectives of the club next year. This is a national fraternity and can do a good deal in getting eligible young men to become interested and to enter the field of education.

Day Deemed Success

G.T.C.'s third Parents' Day came off to a shining success, according to authorities here. The bi-annual event was this school's largest since its initial appearance in 1953.

Parents' Day gives students' families a rare chance to meet the instructors who play a major role in making our school what it is. It offers an opportunity to examine facilities and dorms here. It also allows the visitors a glimpse of the type clubs at G.T.C. as they listen to the band and philharmonic choir perform.

This day can create a closer feeling between parent and student by virtue of a better understanding of "where all that time and money are going."

We are looking forward to the next Parents' Day two years hence, and feel that this plan is a step forward in building a better school.

Yer Out!

On page one of this paper, there appears a picture taken on a day when attendance was at its best at a baseball game, still there can be seen vast spaces with apparently no one sitting in them.

This year, attendance has been good compared to previous years, but still there lacks the student enthusiasm usually present in college athletics.

It is true that G.T.C. home games are all being broadcast which partially explains why there are so many vacant spaces in the stands. Yet, if one cared to venture into a personally conducted survey, it is almost sure that the results would be that there are more non-listeners among those students who choose not to attend the games.

There is also the problem here that was found during the basketball season as well. The problem simple is that even though students attend games, they oftentimes prefer to remain inert and silent during the complete contest. Some students even go so far as to reprimand those who do choose to yell for the home team. Now there comes the question, just how far does team support go? Should one sit and exercise his vocal chords through the complete affair, or just when there is some apparent praise due?

Baseball players are human, and they need encouragement as much or even more than others. It could be just as wrong to sit and not encourage the players as it is not to come to the games at all.

Though the stands be practically empty, baseball will still go on without complete support from the local citizenry, but it would be a much nicer game if the players could look into the stands and see hundreds or even thousands of familiar faces urging them on.

Remember, the best dose of medicine for any ball club, whether sick with discouragement or pennant contending, is one prescription of public support.

LETTER TO EDITOR

(Editor's Note: This letter was written in reference to the column by Willene Fisher in last week's George-Anne.)

Give the girlie a blue ribbon; I'll take a bud.

Undoubtedly you're right, girlie, the jeers are there to antagonize the visiting players into a state of utter confusion, and not only do the yells come from the bleachers, but from the home dugout. Pray tell me where else did you expect them to come from?

As for your next question, is this good sportsmanship? Is the Pope a Catholic?

You say, "This is the most inconsiderate demonstration of lack of sportsmanship ever witnessed by MANY of the students." Let me see now, you also said, "The yells come from the bleachers," but that couldn't be right because MANY of the students sit in the bleachers, or maybe Preacher's doing it all. But that couldn't be right either, he's not many, just one.

I say, girlie, you have me all confused. Would you run that article again, please? In the meantime, would you run an article for all the ex-D.I.'s to report to the ball diamond? I believe there's a flaw in our cadence.

—BOBBY BELTON

Dear Editor:

In all this feuding and fussing over a little thing like the tone of voice and the syllables used at baseball games, I am afraid that some of your students have lost the real value obtainable at baseball games.

The question should not be whether or not it is proper to count the steps of an opponent off the field in cadence, but rather the question should be, "how much does baseball really mean to me." Another question that you might ask yourself, is "why do I come to a baseball game?"

Wake up my friends, it is much more important for you to realize your individual responsibilities toward your fellow students who are working to produce entertainment for you.

When you go to games, yell! Yell your head off in your own way, but please don't discourage someone else by downgrading their method of verbal support.

After all, they love the game as much as you, or even possibly more.

Well, I am only an observed so maybe I should keep my mouth shut, huh.

Hyde and Seek

The debating teams of Harvard University and Georgia Tech battled to a tie last week when they discussed this question: "Does Elvis Presley deserve an athletic scholarship?"

The young men from the Ivy League took the negative side and said that giving the rock 'n' roll performer an athletic scholarship would be a waste of money.

The Techmen seem to think that Presley would be an asset because of his competitive spirit. This "competitive spirit" referred to was exemplified recently during a tussel with a service station attendant. Presley remarked, "I don't take nothing from nobody." ... Time marches on.

Many people have asked me if the information about Barnes Funeral Home wanting three men to live in their establishment is true.

Anytime that you read anything that is printed in this column, you can rest assured that it is true. I am a firm believer in getting the truth or facts before printing a story.

Real gone, man, real gone. Those are the only words that I know that could describe Jill Corry's new hit record, "Make Like a Bunny, Honey."

Do you save S & H Green Stamps? If you do not, could I interest you in saving them for me. I am in need of a new typewriter and lack only a few books. Remember me, will you?

Can Alice Williams sing or can she sing? Those of you that did not attend Lewis Hall's "Under the Sea" dance Saturday night missed hearing this young lady give the musical notes. Alice was only going to sing one song but was such a big hit, the audience called her back for two encores. The next thing you know, we'll be watching her on Channel 11 in place of Buddy Livingston.

When so much fuss was made over President Eisenhower speeding a few weeks back, I don't think it was the idea of him breaking the speed laws as it was the thought of having Richard Nixon as President if something should happen to Ike.

Education is a progressive thing. In the grades you learn the names of the men who invented all the important gadgets. In high school you are told that somebody else really invented them. And in college you discover that the world would be better off if nobody had.

BRITT FAYSSOUX

A Burning Question

During the past few weeks both the proponents and the opponents of federal aid for education have strongly advanced their arguments on the subject.

Leading advocates for federal aid point out that many state governments cannot support an adequate educational program and are therefore in great need of help from the Federal Government.

President Eisenhower is pushing the bill now in Congress. It would provide $325,000,000 a year for the next four years to build additional needed schools.

Some of the strongest opposition to this bill comes from Southern congressmen and senators. They oppose it for a number of reasons. First, they state that the need for Federal aid is overexaggerated by its proponents. These opponents of the bill believe that state governments can provide adequate funds for education if they only will. Senator Talmadge of Georgia stated that "Georgia has proved by her example with the State School Building Authority program inaugurated during my administration as governor that it is possible for individual states to build the schools they need without the help of the Federal Government. Any other state wishing to measure up its responsibility can do likewise."

The strongest objection of the Southern members of Congress to the bill comes, of course, from the fear of Federal control. Most of the Southern members of Congress firmly believe that eventually Federal aid would become embroiled with the integration issue. They believe Federal aid would become a powerful weapon in the hands of the integration forces. Proponents of the bill scoff at this attitude. But the attitude remains very strong in Southern circles and it is well founded. Regardless of one's stand on the segregation issue, it is a fact that Federal aid to various state programs has in the past led to certain federal controls. Education has always been a local and state function. Extra funds for education regardless of where they come from would, of course, be desirable, but if these funds mean any other kind of control other than local and state, then in the final analysis they would do more harm than good.

Campus Column

By JOYCE JACKSON

This week there seems to be quite a mystery on campus. Last week Mr. Powell reported that he had found a girl's crinoline slip in the restroom which adjoins his office. This raised a question but when he discovered that someone has been taking showers in there, the mystery became greater. He says that the crinoline can be claimed with proper identification. (Heavy rains and a leaky roof resolved the mystery of the shower.)

This week the Marvin Pittman Methodist Church has been running its revival with Dr. Tom Watson speaking. He addressed the assembly Monday with an inspiring message telling us, "You can do it, if you really want to."

Our baseball team must have believed this message when they went out on the field against the University of Georgia Monday and Tuesday. We are proud to have broken their five game winning streak with a first score of 6-4 and a second of 9-2. Many fans remained to watch the game Monday until it was called off at the end of the fourth inning because of the rain.

I wish to apologize to the girls of Lewis Hall for the slip-up in my column last week. A group that sponsored such a wonderful dance as the "Under the Sea" dance really deserves the credit and not someone else.

Sunday was really a wonderful day. Everyone seemed so happy and friendly and the parents seemed to enjoy being on our campus, taking part in the planned program and meeting their children's teachers and friends. It was a joy to have them.

Sunday was also the wedding date for one of our former students, Peggy Mercer, who was married in Cordele.

A couple who started going steady this week are Ann Manery and J. C. Martin, or so I hear by way of the grapevine.

I'd like to remind you of the play night held every Wednesday. If you don't go to the matinee dances, sorta drift over to the new gym and get in on some good, wholesome fun.

Baseball Players Recommend Marriage as Great Institution

By JOYCE JACKSON

"It's a great institution" was the reply I received when I asked our four married baseball players what they thought about marriage.

Billy Lowe, 26, the oldest of the four has been married 5 years. He and his wife, Frances, have a little boy 3 years old and are expecting another visit from the stock "any minute." Billy graduated from Montgomery County High School and transferred from Brewton Parker where he played both basketball and baseball. He is a senior, majoring in health and physical education and will graduate in June. "It will be good to be home with my family again," he said, after relating that he had been away from them for three years. Frances was principal of Uvalda Grammar School until Christmas, but she is now content with being a housewife and "waiting."

Billy plans to coach after graduation and to start working on his masters degree at Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee this summer.

Jimmy White, 22, considers himself the luckiest of the group because he and his wife live here in Statesboro and he goes home to her every night.

On July 27, he married the former Sue West who attended

Dr. J. A. Boole, associate professor of biology, made a field trip Monday, April 8, to the Boy Scout's camp two miles north of Statesboro. The botany class makes these excursions every week on Mondays and Wednesdays, and often on Fridays, to collect flowering plant specimens.

HAMILTON IS HEAD

Dr. Marshall Hamilton, associate professor of education, will be chairman of a committee to visit Valdosta State College, April 15-17, to evaluate their program of training secondary and junior high school teachers.

The job of the committee will be to evaluate the College's program and to make recommendations to the State Department of Education, which will aid them in determining if these programs for preparation will be approved.

Roy has pitched for G.T.C. for 3 years. He is a junior and business major, but he would like to play professional baseball for a couple of years after he graduates.

Preston played ball for G.T.C. during his freshman and junior years, but attended Junior College in Augusta last year. He also is a junior, majoring in social studies. He is considering entering the ministry, but if he doesn't, he would like to teach and coach.

Marriage must be a great institution, or at least it seems to be for these men.

About SPORTS

By FRANK TURNER
SPORTS EDITOR

The new cutback rule in the Masters Tournament didn't go over too well with the spectators and most of the golfers. This rule is the one that eliminates after two rounds all competitors over 150.

Thus the axe fell just closely enough to whack off Ben Hogan and Cary Middlecoff with scores of 151 and 152 respectively. These two old pros were probably the greatest sentimental favorites, not to speak of a host of other popular ones also cut, in the whole array of Masters.

Only the low 40 players were allowed to go into the final two rounds. But there was talk of changes and Cliff Roberts, tournament committee chairman, hinted there may be some revisions before next year's tourney. One might be to modify the cutback rule, taking in the low 50 instead of the low 40 players.

Many people, including myself, are in favor of no cutback rule at all even if the field is left too crowded. After all, the whole field plays the first two rounds, of which there is no way of getting around. So why can't all the golfers be included all the way. It was that way for a long time.

An old saying in baseball is "The game's not over until the last man is out." About the same applies in this case. For instance, Hogan had he been given the chance could have possibly (but not probably) come back with say two 66's (Doug Ford's final score which won) added to his 151 for a 283 total which would have tied Ford for the lead. This of course would have been very unlikely, but if Ford shot a 66, why not conceive of Hogan doing it twice?

Well, so much for that. Now on the baseball scene, Cleveland's Indians and the New York Yankees lead A.L. in the spring exhibitions with 16-12 and 16-13 records respectively. As most agree the Yanks will probably be too much for the Indians from April 16 to October.

In the N.L. Pittsburgh leads with a 17-8 slate. The Pirates, tabbed for a second division finish come the last of September, had better be saving a few of those victories till later. Milwaukee, the pennant favorite of many of the experts, was second with 19-9 through Tuesday.

The best spring hitter so far has been Stan Musial with 24 hits in 51 trips for a .471 average.

The best pitching performance was turned in by Johnny Podres, who faced only 18 Yankees in hurling six hitless and runless innings against them March 25.

Hats off to Governor Marvin Griffin, who has urged that Georgia fans support minor league baseball, as baseball is "an institution which has meant so much in developing the minds and bodies of our young boys."

Softball Intramurals Begin

Intramural softball which was scheduled to begin last Monday night was called off because of the rain. The beginning game was held then on Tuesday afternoon with the Rams playing the Flyers.

However, once started, the intramural program promises to be a successful one, since no team has forfeited because of lack of players.

Hall Honored As Mound Man

When Vondall Hall came to G.T.C. from Wheelright High School in Wheelright, Ky., he had one of the most fabulous records of any athlete ever to enroll here.

He pitched four years on his high school baseball team, completing a 21-1 record. His only loss was in the second round of the state tournament in 1953 at the hands of New Port Catholic High School. This team went on to win the championship in 1953.

Here at G.T.C. in four years, Vondall has won 13 and lost 4 to set a new school record for pitchers. One of the losses was to an excellent Paris Island Marine team. The score was 1-0; the only run of the game was unearned.

Vondall had an opportunity to play professional baseball after he finished high school. The former St. Louis Browns offered him a class C contract in their farm system.

This season is not half over yet, so look for Vondall to improve his record this year of two wins and no losses.
